FILES AN ANSWER.

ALFRED PETERSON STATES HIS SIDE OF A CASE AND

Says a Receiver Should Not be Appointed for a Shoe Business in This City.

Lisbon, Jan. 8.—(Special.)—Alfred Peterson, of East Liverpool, has filed an answer in court in the case instituted a few days ago by John Carlson, his partner.

Peterson claims there is no valid reason or excuse whatever for the appointment of a receiver for the firm, as the business has been fairly prosperous, and if the same was now placed in the hands of a receiver it could not but result in great and irreparable loss, both to him and the plaintiff.

He states that they carry a $3,000 stock of shoes with only $800 indebtedness and that he has offered to settle with Carlson by selling to him his interest for $800, or buying Carlson's for $900, the purchaser to assume all indebtedness of the firm. He says that he is still willing to do this and wants the petition dismissed. A. H. Clark filed the answer.

A PENTECOSTAL SCENE.

Revival Services Held at Methodist Protestant Church Very Largely Attended.

At the revival meeting last night in the Methodist Protestant church the pastor, Rev. Gladden, preached from John 3:9, "How can these things be?" The after service was a pentecostal scene of unusual character. Throngs surrounded the altars for a deepening and quickening experience. Sobs were heard, tears flowed amid ejaculations and broken utterances. People were at the altars who had not been there before, and voices were lifted in earnest prayer that were new to the regular attendants. Truly it was a time of refreshing, from the presence of the Lord, an uplifting service, well attended and full of interest from the first. The singing was a feature.

The service will begin tonight at 8 o'clock sharp. You are cordially invited.

COMMUNICATION FROM DR. TAGGART

Says United Presbyterian Church Does Not Positively Forbid Secret Societies But

"Church Members Ought Not to Have Fellowship With Such Associations."

CHURCH POSITION IS OUTLINED

Mr. Editor—An article on "the United Presbyterian church" appeared in your last evening's paper, which, whatever may have been the motive by which it was "communicated," betrays a good deal of ignorance on the part of the writer in reference to the principle and polity of the church of which he writes. It also makes some misquotations and therefore misrepresentations of the articles of the testimony referred to.

The article on secret societies is not fully quoted, and a very important word in what is quoted is changed. The article does not say "church members must not have fellowship with such associations," but rather "ought not to have fellowship with such associations," which by many in the church is interpreted as bearing strong testimony against "such associations" without making it an absolute prohibition under all circumstances. The interpretation that has been put upon this article by the general assembly of the church in exempting its application to certain secret societies gives at least an implied sanction to such an interpretation.

In reference to the correctness of the principle presented in the article: "That all associations, whether formed for political or benevolent purposes, which impose upon their members an oath of secrecy, or an obligation to obey a code of unknown laws, are inconsistent with the genius and spirit of Christianity," we believe that no Christian who fully and truly understands the nature of an oath, or an ordinance of God, to be administered only under His authority by an officer of church or state, can have any doubt. An oath administered by a man without such authority is a profanation of a holy ordinance and a violation of the third commandment.

Then for a man to solemnly swear

to obey a code of unknown laws or to give his support to that of which he is supposed to be entirely ignorant, simply on the representation of others, is certainly not only "inconsistent with the genius and spirit of Christianity," but with the spirit of true manhood. It is very significant that the great evangelists of all ages of the church, as Mr. Finney and Mr. Moody, have testified against secret oathbound societies.

The article on Psalmody is correctly and fully quoted, and if the principle accepted by all Presbyterian churches that God is to be worshipped in no other way than that appointed in His word as true, then we believe that a union on Scriptural grounds can only be consummated by the Presbyterian churches coming back to the use of the God-inspired Psalter of their fathers.

Before noticing the reference to the article on communion let me say that the writer of the article seems to have a wrong conception of the province and power of the general assembly. That court of the church has no authority to change any article of the testimony. Its province so far as any doctrine of the church is concerned is not enactment or repeal, but simply interpretation, and if he was acquainted with the action of the general assembly in this respect he would know that as far back as 1868 it gave an interpretation of that article that saved a disruption of the church, and placed the application of the principle embodied in the article in the hands of sessions of congregations. As thus interpreted, while it gives no minister the right to throw the sacraments of the church open to all without discrimination, it does not exclude any Christian who applies in a proper way. There is no ignoring of the spiritual unity of all Christians. The only purpose of the article is to preserve the purity of the divine ordinance. It is no barrier in the way of the union of the churches.

I have written the above in no spirit of controversy, but simply to correct some false impression, I was afraid the article in yesterday's paper might make on minds not familiar with the testimony of our church. We, as a church, hold to the supreme authority of God's word as the only rule of faith and practice and seek to base all our doctrines and practices on its teachings.

In reference to the union of the Presbyterian churches, I have only to say that if it can be brought about in harmony with the teachings of God's word it is a consummation devoutly to be wished. I believe the tendencies of the times in which we live is in that direction. I believe that the century upon which we have entered will see a consolidation of the forces of our Lord in many ways, and that the union of churches nearly allied in faith and practice will be one of these ways.

My earnest prayer is that when the moment comes, as I pray it may, the motto of our church, "the Truth of God—Forbearance in Love," may have full exemplification. J. C. TAGGART.

An oath administered by a man without such authority is a profanation of a holy ordinance and a violation of the third commandment.

Then for a man to solemnly swear

to obey a code of unknown laws or to give his support to that of which he is supposed to be entirely ignorant, simply on the representation of others, is certainly not only "inconsistent with the genius and spirit of Christianity," but with the spirit of true manhood. It is very significant that the great evangelists of all ages of the church, as Mr. Finney and Mr. Moody, have testified against secret oathbound societies.

The article on Psalmody is correctly and fully quoted, and if the principle accepted by all Presbyterian churches that God is to be worshipped in no other way than that appointed in His word as true, then we believe that a union on Scriptural grounds can only be consummated by the Presbyterian churches coming back to the use of the God-inspired Psalter of their fathers.

Before noticing the reference to the article on communion let me say that the writer of the article seems to have a wrong conception of the province and power of the general assembly. That court of the church has no authority to change any article of the testimony. Its province so far as any doctrine of the church is concerned is not enactment or repeal, but simply interpretation, and if he was acquainted with the action of the general assembly in this respect he would know that as far back as 1868 it gave an interpretation of that article that saved a disruption of the church, and placed the application of the principle embodied in the article in the hands of sessions of congregations. As thus interpreted, while it gives no minister the right to throw the sacraments of the church open to all without discrimination, it does not exclude any Christian who applies in a proper way. There is no ignoring of the spiritual unity of all Christians. The only purpose of the article is to preserve the purity of the divine ordinance. It is no barrier in the way of the union of the churches.

I have written the above in no spirit of controversy, but simply to correct some false impression. I was afraid the article in yesterday's paper might make on minds not familiar with the testimony of our church. We, as a church, hold to the supreme authority of God's word as the only rule of faith and practice and seek to base all our doctrines and practices on its teachings.

In reference to the union of the Presbyterian churches, I have only to say that if it can be brought about in harmony with the teachings of God's word it is a consummation devoutly to be wished. I believe the tendencies of the times in which we live is in that direction. I believe that the century upon which we have entered will see a consolidation of the forces of our Lord in many ways, and that the union of churches nearly allied in faith and practice will be one of these ways.

My earnest prayer is that when the union comes, as I pray it may, the motto of our church, "the Truth of God—Forbearance in Love," may have full exemplification. J. C. TAGGART.

Marriage and Divorce In the New Century.

(Copyright, 1900, The Christian Herald, New York.)

Reckless Marriages Should be Prevented.

By Bishop Samuel J. Fallows, Reformed Church of Illinois.

The new century should be characterized, in its earlier periods, by the passage of uniform and just divorce laws by the several states. Whether congress has the power to pass a constitutional law prescribing the same conditions for obtaining divorce in all the states is an open question. Eminent authorities do not agree upon the subject. Commissions of lawyers have been appointed at different times to urge uniformity of action by the various state legislatures. Little, however, has thus far been accomplished toward that end in any state.

In all the states, except South Carolina, which has no divorce laws, the violation of the marriage vows is an absolute cause for divorce.

In nearly all the states, physical incapacity is a cause, so is wilful desertion. The time of such wilful desertion varies from six months in Arizona, to one year in twenty states, to two years in ten states, to three years in eleven states and to five years in three other states. Habitual drunkenness is a cause in all but ten states. "Imprisonment for felony," or "conviction for felony" is a cause in all the states and territories except six.

Cruel, abusive treatment, intolerable cruelty, extreme cruelty, repeated cruelty are causes in all the states except seven.

Failure to provide by the husband is a cause, the time varying from six months in Arizona to one year in six states, to two years in Indiana and to three years in Delaware. No time is specified in the remainder of the states.

Fraud and fraudulent contract are causes in nine states.

Absence without being heard from is a cause, varying from three years in some of the states to seven in others. Voluntary separation for five years is a cause in Wisconsin.

Ungovernable temper, outrages or excesses, and the like, are causes in a large number of the states.

Insanity, idiocy at the time of marriage, incurable insanity are causes in several states.

In different states, other causes include notorious immorality of the husband before marriage but unknown to the wife; when the husband is a fugitive from justice; any gross neglect of duty; inability of husband and wife to live in peace and union; vagrancy of the husband, etc.

Previous residence for divorce varies from six months in six states, to one year in thirty-six states and territories, and three years in three other states.

In the state of New York absolute divorce is granted only for adultery.

The ratio of divorces to marriages varies from one to six in some of the states, to an average of one to thirteen or fourteen in other states.

In Cook county, in which Chicago is situated, the number of default divorce cases, that is cases where only one side is heard, is nine times that of the cases where both parties are present in court. About five or six minutes is the average time spent in hearing each case.

In 1890 these courts dissolved the marital relation in 35,000 cases. From 1867 to 1886 they granted 328,716 divorces.

The number of children affected by these proceedings, according to the records, was 267,739. Multitudes of other children were not included in this number.

The laws should be uniform throughout the country, as I have stated. As a churchman I might insist on one cause only for divorce—marital infidelity. But marriage is a civil contract as well as a religious ceremony. The state has the right to prescribe other causes. But they ought to be of a grave and serious character.

Christians must aim to prevent reckless marriages. They must help devise stricter methods of legal administration. They must strive to end the anomaly of a man's having a wife in one state who is not his wife in another, where he may reside.

A National Divorce Law Would End Bigamy.

By Judge David McAdam, of the New York Supreme Court.

You ask me what reforms should the new century bring in the matter of the divorce law—should we not have a uniform and just national divorce law? After considering all points, I find that the question merits an emphatic affirmative. The present condition of affairs with reference to divorce is deplorable. We have now 45 states, all of which (excepting South Carolina, in which divorces are not granted) have legislated differently upon this branch of the law of domestic relations. The legislation would not be so injurious in its consequences if the divorces authorized were confined to cases where both parties to the marriage actually resided within the state where the proceedings were instituted, so that actual service of process might be made within the jurisdiction of the state court. Such a decree, process having been personally served on the defendant within the state, is valid everywhere.

A uniform and just national divorce law would work a real reform. To enable congress to pass such a law it would be necessary to amend the federal constitution so as to grant to the national government power to legislate with reference to divorce. In conformity with the method of amendment which has heretofore been followed, congress might itself, by a two-thirds vote in each house, prepare and propose amendments, which proposed amendments would become law upon their ratification by the legislatures of three-fourths of the states. The difficulty of the task involved in procuring the consent of three-fourths of the states to their deprivation of jurisdiction in this important part of the law of domestic relations is, however, discouraging to the average reformer.

The marriage law should also be a national instead of an exclusive state concern. At present a man may marry in each of the 45 states, and if allowed to return to the state where he first married, he cannot be punished there for the bigamies. To reach him he must be indicted in another state, and then be extradited by the governor of that state, so that he may be tried there. And bigamous cohabitation within the United States could be made a criminal offense, cognizable by the federal authorities, so as to punish a party who, having committed bigamy in Canada or any other foreign country, lives in this country with the spurious wife. As a result of such national legislation there would be few bigamists in the country, and many here now might find good cause to emigrate to other climes.

A Conservative View of Uniform Divorce Laws.

By Frederick R. Coudert.

Several weighty arguments might be presented in favor of congressional legislation upon the subject of a uniform divorce law in all states. It certainly is unfortunate that a divorce regularly obtained in one state from a competent court should fail of its effect in another, and that a man or a woman should be a husband or wife in New York and a single man in Dakota or Nebraska. This, at least, is one of the troubles that might be removed by national legislation.

But is there not much to be said on the other side? I may frankly say, at the risk of impairing my regard that your readers may have for my opinion, that the way to deal with divorce laws would be to abrogate them in toto. The interests of society at large are paramount. Our sympathies are not always judicious advisers; the relief given to individuals is often a curse upon society.

While the national law would thus remedy one great inconvenience at least, we should inquire in advance of acting what kind of law we are likely to secure from congress. The state of New York has upon this subject been very conservative, and has only granted divorces in extreme cases. Most of our citizens of New York would be of opinion that if the national law which many desire is still farther to relax the marriage tie, it were best to allow things to remain as they are rather than to fly into the arms of unknown evils. Surely it would not be an advantage to citizens of New York to have the legislation of these states made the law here. It would save expense in individual cases, no doubt, as it would be easier to employ an attorney in this city, and less expensive, than to resort to professional service a thousand or two thousand miles away. Possibly many are only deterred from breaking up their present home by the expense. Why reduce the cost of matrimonial separation far below the present tariff of disbursements? On the whole, in the ignorance of what law we might get from congress, assuming that it would be inferior to our own, I am inclined to think that, unsatisfactory as the condition of things now is, it is safer to keep it out of national legislation.

PRESIDENTIAL LIGHTNING.

Storm's Frank Nerved a Young Law Student to Bet and He Won.

"The lightning caused me to bet on the presidential election in 1860," said a Wall street man, "and I won."

"I'm not more superstitious than the average individual," continued the man, "although my act would indicate the contrary. I was a young man in a law office in a Kentucky town. My preceptor had pasted over his desk a poster containing the portraits of all of the candidates, Lincoln and Hamlin, Breckinridge and Lane, Douglas and Johnson and Bell and Everett. The poster contained the platforms of the various parties. There was some uncertainty in that campaign. My preceptor was an enthusiastic Douglas man and wanted to bet all he had on his candidate. It was my first experience in a presidential campaign, and I had a fool notion that Bell and Everett would be elected. I had never made a money bet, but I was aching to take up my Blackstonian preceptor, although I lacked nerve."

"One day there was a thunderstorm. The lightning loosened a number of things in the town, the building in which I was a law student being one. In one of its pranks the lightning cut in the wall on which that political poster was posted. The result was that the upper part of the poster hung down from the wall, covering up all the candidates save Lincoln and Hamlin. Despite my sympathies for Bell and Everett I imagined I saw in this condition of the poster the result of that election, and a few days later when the Douglas enthusiast talked on his upper notes and offered to bet $25 even on his man I took him up. He was very much astonished to think I would bet on Lincoln and Hamlin. He said I was a young ass and other things and that he would bet with me to teach me a lesson. After the election he asked me how I came to take the chance, for there were few Lincoln votes in the town. When I told him the source of my tip, he grew serious."

"You have won your first bet on a presidential election," he said, "but remember, young man, lightning never

Made It Fit the Name.

"Red Rock, N. Y.," said a man who spent some time there, "isn't much of a place, but there is something interesting about it that I fancy all the world doesn't know. The present name is not the one it has always borne, and what its other name was I don't know. Whatever it was the people did not like it and concluded they would change it. There was no particular reason why they should call it Red Rock, but that was determined upon, and so Red Rock it became."

"Then in the course of time strangers of an inquiring turn of mind began to ask why the place had such a name and as no reason could be given newcomers to the neighborhood began to want a name that meant something. This insistence grew so strong that the old residents began to look around for a reason for the name of their place, and at last they found a huge boulder near by which they said was what had suggested the name. But the boulder was gray instead of red, and the progressists insisted that that would not do. At last the old timers hit upon a new plan, and, procuring a barrel of red paint, they painted the big rock red. Red Rock indeed it was now, and not only was all opposition to the name overcome, but the painting of the rock every spring has become an annual festival, and the people celebrate it with a big picnic and general celebration."

"It was a new idea to me, and if there is any other town anywhere on earth that is christened every spring with red paint or any other color I don't know where it is."—New York Sun.

Whether congress has the power to pass a constitutional law prescribing the same conditions for obtaining divorce in all the states is an open question. Eminent authorities do not agree upon the subject. Commissions of lawyers have been appointed at different times to urge uniformity of action by the various state legislatures. Little, however, has thus far been accomplished toward that end in any state.

In all the states, except South Carolina, which has no divorce laws, the violation of the marriage vows is an absolute cause for divorce.

In nearly all the states, physical incapacity is a cause, so is wilful desertion. The time of such wilful desertion varies from six months in Arizona, to one year in twenty states, to two years in ten states, to three years in eleven states and to five years in three other states. Habitual drunkenness is a cause in all but ten states. "Imprisonment for felony," or "conviction for felony" is a cause in all the states and territories except six.

Cruel, abusive treatment, intolerable cruelty, extreme cruelty, repeated cruelty are causes in all the states except seven.

Failure to provide by the husband is a cause, the time varying from six months in Arizona to one year in six states, to two years in Indiana and to three years in Delaware. No time is specified in the remainder of the states.

Fraud and fraudulent contract are causes in nine states.

Absence without being heard from is a cause, varying from three years in some of the states to seven in others. Voluntary separation for five years is a cause in Wisconsin.

Ungovernable temper, outrages or excesses, and the like, are causes in a large number of the states.

Insanity, idiocy at the time of marriage, incurable insanity are causes in several states.

In different states, other causes include notorious immorality of the husband before marriage but unknown to the wife; when the husband is a fugitive from justice; any gross neglect of duty; inability of husband and wife to live in peace and union; vagrancy of the husband, etc.

Previous residence for divorce varies from six months in six states, to one year in thirty-six states and territories, and three years in three other states.

In the state of New York absolute divorce is granted only for adultery.

The ratio of divorces to marriages varies from one to six in some of the states, to an average of one to thirteen or fourteen in other states.

In Cook county, in which Chicago is situated, the number of default divorce cases, that is cases where only one side is heard, is nine times that of the cases where both parties are present in court. About five or six minutes is the average time spent in hearing each case.

In 1890 these courts dissolved the marital relation in 35,000 cases. From 1867 to 1886 they granted 328,716 divorces.

The number of children affected by these proceedings, according to the records, was 267,739. Multitudes of other children were not included in this number.

The laws should be uniform throughout the country, as I have stated. As a churchman I might insist on one cause only for divorce—marital infidelity. But marriage is a civil contract as well as a religious ceremony. The state has the right to prescribe other causes. But they ought to be of a grave and serious character.

Christians must aim to prevent reckless marriages. They must help devise stricter methods of legal administration. They must strive to end the anomaly of a man's having a wife in one state who is not his wife in another, where he may reside.

A National Divorce Law Would End Bigamy.

By Judge David McAdam, of the New York Supreme Court.

You ask me what reforms should the new century bring in the matter of the divorce law—should we not have a uniform and just national divorce law? After considering all points, I find that the question merits an emphatic affirmative. The present condition of affairs with reference to divorce is deplorable. We have now 45 states, all of which (excepting South Carolina, in which divorces are not granted) have legislated differently upon this branch of the law of domestic relations. The legislation would not be so injurious in its consequences if the divorces authorized were confined to cases where both parties to the marriage actually resided within the state where the proceedings were instituted, so that actual service of process might be made within the jurisdiction of the state court. Such a decree, process having been personally served on the defendant within the state, is valid everywhere.

A uniform and just national divorce law would work a real reform. To enable congress to pass such a law it would be necessary to amend the federal constitution so as to grant to the national government power to legislate with reference to divorce. In conformity with the method of amendment which has heretofore been followed, congress might itself, by a two-thirds vote in each house, prepare and propose amendments, which proposed amendments would become law upon their ratification by the legislatures of three-fourths of the states. The difficulty of the task involved in procuring the consent of three-fourths of the states to their deprivation of jurisdiction in this important part of the law of domestic relations is, however, discouraging to the average reformer.

The marriage law should also be a national instead of an exclusive state concern. At present a man may marry in each of the 45 states, and if allowed to return to the state where he first married, he cannot be punished there for the bigamies. To reach him he must be indicted in another state, and then be extradited by the governor of that state, so that he may be tried there. And bigamous cohabitation within the United States could be made a criminal offense, cognizable by the federal authorities, so as to punish a party who, having committed bigamy in Canada or any other foreign country, lives in this country with the spurious wife. As a result of such national legislation there would be few bigamists in the country, and many here now might find good cause to emigrate to other climes.

A Conservative View of Uniform Divorce Laws.

By Frederick R. Coudert.

Several weighty arguments might be presented in favor of congressional legislation upon the subject of a uniform divorce law in all states. It certainly is unfortunate that a divorce regularly obtained in one state from a competent court should fail of its effect in another, and that a man or a woman should be a husband or wife in New York and a single man in Dakota or Nebraska. This, at least, is one of the troubles that might be removed by national legislation.

But is there not much to be said on the other side? I may frankly say, at the risk of impairing my regard that your readers may have for my opinion, that the way to deal with divorce laws would be to abrogate them in toto. The interests of society at large are paramount. Our sympathies are not always judicious advisers; the relief given to individuals is often a curse upon society.

While the national law would thus remedy one great inconvenience at least, we should inquire in advance of acting what kind of law we are likely to secure from congress. The state of New York has upon this subject been very conservative, and has only granted divorces in extreme cases. Most of our citizens of New York would be of opinion that if the national law which many desire is still farther to relax the marriage tie, it were best to allow things to remain as they are rather than to fly into the arms of unknown evils. Surely it would not be an advantage to citizens of New York to have the legislation of these states made the law here. It would save expense in individual cases, no doubt, as it would be easier to employ an attorney in this city, and less expensive, than to resort to professional service a thousand or two thousand miles away. Possibly many are only deterred from breaking up their present home by the expense. Why reduce the cost of matrimonial separation far below the present tariff of disbursements? On the whole, in the ignorance of what law we might get from congress, assuming that it would be inferior to our own, I am inclined to think that, unsatisfactory as the condition of things now is, it is safer to keep it out of national legislation.

PRESIDENTIAL LIGHTNING.

Storm's Frank Nerved a Young Law Student to Bet and He Won.

"The lightning caused me to bet on the presidential election in 1860," said a Wall street man, "and I won."

"I'm not more superstitious than the average individual," continued the man, "although my act would indicate the contrary. I was a young man in a law office in a Kentucky town. My preceptor had pasted over his desk a poster containing the portraits of all of the candidates, Lincoln and Hamlin, Breckinridge and Lane, Douglas and Johnson and Bell and Everett. The poster contained the platforms of the various parties. There was some uncertainty in that campaign. My preceptor was an enthusiastic Douglas man and wanted to bet all he had on his candidate. It was my first experience in a presidential campaign, and I had a fool notion that Bell and Everett would be elected. I had never made a money bet, but I was aching to take up my Blackstonian preceptor, although I lacked nerve."

"One day there was a thunderstorm. The lightning loosened a number of things in the town, the building in which I was a law student being one. In one of its pranks the lightning cut in the wall on which that political poster was posted. The result was that the upper part of the poster hung down from the wall, covering up all the candidates save Lincoln and Hamlin. Despite my sympathies for Bell and Everett I imagined I saw in this condition of the poster the result of that election, and a few days later when the Douglas enthusiast talked on his upper notes and offered to bet $25 even on his man I took him up. He was very much astonished to think I would bet on Lincoln and Hamlin. He said I was a young ass and other things and that he would bet with me to teach me a lesson. After the election he asked me how I came to take the chance, for there were few Lincoln votes in the town. When I told him the source of my tip, he grew serious."

"You have won your first bet on a presidential election," he said, "but remember, young man, lightning never strikes in the same place twice."

Made It Fit the Name.

"Red Rock, N. Y.," said a man who spent some time there, "isn't much of a place, but there is something interesting about it that I fancy all the world doesn't know. The present name is not the one it has always borne, and what its other name was I don't know. Whatever it was the people did not like it and concluded they would change it. There was no particular reason why they should call it Red Rock, but that was determined upon, and so Red Rock it became."

"Then in the course of time strangers of an inquiring turn of mind began to ask why the place had such a name and as no reason could be given newcomers to the neighborhood began to want a name that meant something. This insistence grew so strong that the old residents began to look around for a reason for the name of their place, and at last they found a huge boulder near by which they said was what had suggested the name. But the boulder was gray instead of red, and the progressists insisted that that would not do. At last the old timers hit upon a new plan, and, procuring a barrel of red paint, they painted the big rock red. Red Rock indeed it was now, and not only was all opposition to the name overcome, but the painting of the rock every spring has become an annual festival, and the people celebrate it with a big picnic and general celebration."

"It was a new idea to me, and if there is any other town anywhere on earth that is christened every spring with red paint or any other color I don't know where it is."—New York Sun.

FOOD COMMISSIONER

Will Endorse Statute Forbidding Adulteration of Coffee—Thirty Days' Notice.

Hon. J. E. Blackburn, state dairy and food commissioner, has issued a circular announcing that the statute forbidding the adulteration of coffee by coloring, coating, polishing or powdering, or by other manipulation, will be strictly enforced after 30 days.

Mr. Blackburn holds that simply to label the article "compound" when coffee has been filled, coated or glazed,
is not compliance with the law. The practice of preparing coffee to retain water, for the purpose of increasing its weight, is also forbidden by the department.

A DAY IN WALL STREET.

Some Stocks Unloaded For Awhile Monday—Later Market Apparently Became More Firm.

New York, Jan. 8.—Monday morning,
it was natural to expect, after the excessive and artificial advances of the closing trading of last week, that speculators would be in a condition
of anxiety to skim the cream of the profits. This class was, in fact, on hand in full force and the eagerness with which stocks were unloaded and
the reckless disregard shown for a half, or even a full point in price, indicated a nervous dread that the passing minutes might mean the loss of opportunities for fortune. But even in that early period of the market there were not lacking signs of strength, and there was quite a long list of gains between one and two points.

Gradually the fact began to emerge
that there were brokers of the floor
who had apparently orders to take all offerings at a certain level of prices below the market. The course of prices thereupon gradually steadied and then moved upwards with an impressive surge.

During the rest of the day
it was simply a question where
the new points of strength
would develop. With the appearance of anything like a bull leadership in
a given stock, or with the first sign of manipulation for an advance, a perfect horde of speculators were ready to rush pell-mell to buy the same stock. None of these advances were well held, and the process of profit taking cost them all the way from two to nearly five points. But even at that reaction, many handsome

RISK THEIR HEADS.

Some Say Chinese Negotiators Decided to Sign and Take the Consequences.

Pekin, Jan. 8.—Agreements identical for each nation were presented to Prince Ching. Those close to Prince Ching and Li Hung Chang say they have decided to sign, even if they lose their heads, without regard to the latest orders from the court.

Others, who were apparently equally close, said they would not sign immediately, asserting also that there were two factions surrounding the court, about equally strong, and that it would be impolitic for the Chinese plenipotentiaries at present to act for themselves.

JUDGE SMITH INFIRM AND WEAK.

Member of Penn'a Superior Court Unable
to Sign His Schedules in Bankruptcy.

Pittsburg, Jan. 8.—In the United States district court Judge Peter P.
Smith, of the Pennsylvania superior court, filed his schedule of assets and

liabilities in the case in bankruptcy
filed against him. He owes $49,565
and has assets of $15,600, the assets
consisting entirely of mortgages.

Attached to the schedule is a certificate by a notary public that the bankrupt is too weak and infirm to sign the schedules, but that they are signed by his daughter at his request
and in the presence of the notary.
That he is a sick man is shown by
the fact that he owes $623 for medicine and the service of physicians.

FOOD COMMISSIONER

Will Endorse Statute Forbidding Adulteration of Coffee—Thirty Days' Notice.

Hon. J. E. Blackburn, state dairy
and food commissioner, has issued a circular announcing that the statute
forbidding the adulteration of coffee by
coloring, coating, polishing or powder-
strictly enforced after 30 days.

Mr. Blackburn holds that simply to label the article "compound" when
coffee has been filled, coated or glazed,
is not compliance with the law. The practice of preparing coffee to retain
water, for the purpose of increasing its weight, is also forbidden by the department.

MONTHLY REPORT.

DR. C. B. OGDEN HAS COMPLETED REPORT FOR DECEMBER.

It Shows That Four Deaths Were Caused by Diphtheria Last Month.

The report of Health Officer Ogden for the month beginning December 1 and ending December 31, is as follows:

Births, males 8; females 12.
Deaths, males 12; females 5.

asthma, 1; typhoid fever 2; pneumonia, 4; convulsions, 1; R. R. accident, 2; street car accident, 1; catarrhal enteritis, 1; diphthero croup, 1.

During the month there was reported 16 cases of diphtheria, 29 cases of measles, 4 cases of scarlet fever and 5 cases of typhoid fever.

REGULAR MEETING.

Council Will Probably Have a Long Drawn Out Session This Evening.

Council will hold a regular meeting this evening, and it is probable the session will be lengthy, as it has been several weeks since the last meeting was held.

The franchise for the new street railway will come up, while the monthly reports of the city officers will be received.

In addition to this there is a great deal of miscellaneous business to be transacted.

DECIDE YOURSELF.

The Opportunity is Here Backed by East Liverpool Testimony.

Don't take our word for it.
Dont depend on a stranger's statement.

Read East Liverpool endorsement.
Read the statements of East Liverpool citizens.

And decide for yourself.

Here is one case of it.

Mrs. Mount, of 165 Fourth street, says: "If weakness across the loins and sharp pains in the back which occurred in attacks for two or three years are any indication of kidney complaint, then I had it. I knew what caused the trouble, but how to check it was a mystery until my husband procured Doan's Kidney Pills at the W. & W. pharmacy for himself. The result in his case was so satisfactory that I used two or three boxes. They cured me. At least up to the present date there has been no symptoms of a recurrence."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents, Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N.
Y., sole agents for the U. S.
Remember the name, Doan's, and take no substitute.

DO MISSIONARY WORK.

The Ambition of Senator Gallinger's Son
Will Join an Episcopal Church Order.

Washington, Jan. 8.—Brother Leo will be the name by which, after Jan. 25, William Gallinger, the eldest son of the senator from New Hampshire, will be known to the religious world of the Episcopal church. On that date his novitiate will begin in the Order of the Atonement at the monastery of Craymore, three miles distant from Carrington-Hudson.
At the end of two years Brother
Leo will be formally ordained a priest of the Episcopal church, and after that date Father Leo will go out upon his chosen work as a missionary.

Some Stocks Unloaded For Awhile Mon-
came More Firm.

New York, Jan. 8.—Monday morning,
it was natural to expect, after the excessive and artificial advances of the closing trading of last week, that speculators would be in a condition
of anxiety to skim the cream of the profits. This class was, in fact, on hand in full force and the eagerness
with which stocks were unloaded and
the reckless disregard shown for a
half, or even a full point in price, indicating a nervous dread that the passing minutes might mean the loss
of opportunities for fortune. But even in that early period of the market there were not lacking signs of
list of gains between one and two points.

Gradually the fact began to emerge
that there were brokers of the floor
who had apparently orders to take
all offerings at a certain level of prices below the market. The course
of prices thereupon gradually steaded and then moved upwards with an impressive surge.

During the rest of the day
it was simply a question where
the new points of strength
would develop. With the appearance of anything like a bull leadership in
a given stock, or with the first sign
of manipulation for an advance, a perfect horde of speculators were
ready to rush pell-mell to buy the
same stock. None of these advances were well held, and the process of
profit taking cost them all the way from two to nearly five points. But even at that reaction, many handsome

RISK THEIR HEADS.

Some Say Chinese Negotiators Decided
to Sign and Take the Consequences.

Peking, Jan. 8.—Agreements identical for each nation were presented to
Prince Ching. Those close to Prince Ching and Li Hung Chang say they have decided to sign, even if they
lose their heads, without regard to
the latest orders from the court.

Others, who were apparently equally close, said they would not sign
immediately, asserting also that there
were two factions surrounding the
court, about equally strong, and that it would be impolitic for the Chinese plenipotentiaries at present to act for themselves.

JUDGE SMITH INFIRM AND WEAK.

to Sign His Schedules in Bankruptcy.

Pittsburg, Jan. 8.—In the United States district court Judge Peter P.
Smith, of the Pennsylvania superior court, filed his schedule of assets and

liabilities in the case in bankruptcy
filed against him. He owes $49,565
and has assets of $15,600, the assets
consisting entirely of mortgages.

Attached to the schedule is a certificate by a notary public that the bankrupt is too weak and infirm to
signed by his daughter at his request
and in the presence of the notary.
That he is a sick man is shown by
the fact that he owes $623 for medicine and the service of physicians.

Arrested For Brutal Crime.

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 8.—Robert Underdunk, wanted for a brutal assault on Minnie Miller, aged 16 years, near Patterson's creek, this county,
and frightening her sister, Virginia, aged 14, so she died, was arrested at his home in Shepherdstown, W. Va., and consented to come here without a requisition. Two companions of Underdunk were also arrested near Miller's.

FOOD COMMISSIONER

Will Endorse Statute Forbidding Adulteration of Coffee—Thirty Days' Notice.

Hon. J. E. Blackburn, state dairy
and food commissioner, has issued a circular announcing that the statute
forbidding the adulteration of coffee by
coloring, coating, polishing or powder-
strictly enforced after 30 days.

Mr. Blackburn holds that simply to label the article "compound" when
coffee has been filled, coated or glazed,
is not compliance with the law. The practice of preparing coffee to retain
water, for the purpose of increasing its weight, is also forbidden by the department.

JUDGE SMITH INFIRM AND WEAK.

to Sign His Schedules in Bankruptcy.

Pittsburg, Jan. 8.—In the United States district court Judge Peter P.
Smith, of the Pennsylvania superior court, filed his schedule of assets and

liabilities in the case in bankruptcy

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY

TUESDAY, JANUARY 8, 1901.

OUR SIDEWALKS.

The general impression in trade centers, such as the city of East Liverpool, is that sidewalks are intended for the use of pedestrians.

RUNNING THE GAUNTLET.

Chief Thompson will confer a favor upon the ladies of East Liverpool if he will instruct his roundsmen to disperse the young toughs who form a gauntlet on the pavements at the upper end of Washington street almost nightly.

HAS FITS.

The arc light at the corner of Forest and Walnut streets is subject to fits. Sometimes it sees fit to burn and sometimes it sees fit not to burn. Respectfully referred to Superintendent Thompson, of the Ceramic Light company.

THE ARMY BILL.

The army bill will pass, as it should. Troops are required in the Philippines, in order that our volunteers may come home. These latter soldiers have done splendid service and are worthy of warm commendation. They should be permitted to practice marksmanship at short range, with copperheads as targets, when they do reach home, where they would have been domiciled in comfort long since, had it not been for the aid, comfort and sympathy furnished Aguinaldo and his bolo assassins by these same delectable cops. So lah.

P. D. ARMOUR.

All the great wealth of Philip D. Armour could not purchase for him a single minute of life. How insignificant the wealth of the whole world is in comparison with the value of a single human soul. Wealthy beyond compare is the man or woman who has purchased an eternity of happiness by the acceptance of the atonement made by the Son of God on Calvary's rugged mount. Philip D. Armour, in his dying moments, asked that the Lord's prayer should be read to him by the nurse at his bedside. His request was complied with; and as each sentence was finished by the nurse, the dying man repeated it, and the record is that "when the amen had been repeated by him, he sank back on the pillow and closed his eyes restfully." He apparently accepted God's mercy and died in the faith. God grant that this may be so, and that he has secured an inheritance that "is incorruptible, undefiled and that fadeth not away;" a resting place in "the house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens." Rev. Dr. Gunsaulus seems to assert that Philip D. Armour was a Christian man. The world knows that he was a just and a charitable man. He is in the presence of the Great

Judge, who is no respecter of persons, and before whom the king and the beggar stand on the same footing. "Be ye also ready, for ye know not the day nor the hour when the Son of Man cometh."

LAZINESS.

Laziness is a fatal disease. Fatal to ambition and to success. It is a bar against advancement of boy or of man. No employer, if he possesses good business characteristics, will keep a lazy man in his employ. The lazy fellow will not only hinder and hamper your work on account of his personal laziness or shiftlessness, but he will inoculate good and pushing and honorable workmen who are daily associated with him with his disease. The writer has tested the case fully. He has had the misfortune to employ both lazy men and lazy boys. The boys were gotten rid of right speedily, after being given a fair test; the men were held for a considerable length of time; and it required all the push and hustle in our lives and organisms to make amends for the loss incurred by the lazy and worthless fellows, and they came nigh ruining men who were really good and honest unionists, and believers in the adage that a fair day's pay should secure to an employer a fair day's work in return. Further, the lazy boy or man invariably carries in his makeup the characteristics of unlimited gall, infinite cheek and brazen impudence. Don't puzzle yourself over the conundrum as to what you will do with a constitutionally lazy boy or man. Discharge him instantly. He will never be anything but a hindrance and a block in your way.

LOST HIS CRIP.

A good story is told of an East End man who, on very few occasions, looks upon the wine when it is of the hue that puts men off their base.

Saturday night he came to town, and together with a few congenial spirits took on a load that would have kept a regular guessing. He had in his possession a satchel containing a valuable lot of jewelry, and after a few vain attempts to handle the grip and jag at the same time he gave it up, as it made him wobble, much after the fashion of an East Liverpool street car on the hill road.

He left the grip in trust at a Second street saloon and in about two minutes thereafter didn't know he ever owned a satchel. Mr. Pedler went home and was made as comfortable as it was possible for a man to be in his inebriated condition.

When he got sober he began to be very much concerned about the safety of his carpet bag, which was said to contain goods to the amount of $400. He came to this city early Monday morning, and after numerous attempts to locate his property, enlisted Constable Miller in his search.

All the business houses and saloons on the hill were canvassed without disclosing anything that would lead to its recovery, and as the pedler's memory was not in the best of order, he could make no suggestion that would aid the officer in his search. Finally Miller took the matter in his own hands, and succeeded in locating the valuables in the saloon of William Hancock, Second street and Locust alley, and had no difficulty in getting possession of the grip.

The East End man settled all obligations, secured his property and vows that when he indulges in another bout he will leave his valuables at home.

THE BOARDER RULES THE HOME

The Husband Demands That the Fellow Shall Take His Departure

BUT THE WIFE LAYS DOWN

The Law and Says That the Husband Shall Go and the Boarder

REMAIN IN FULL POSSESSION

It is an astonishing case. The husband bears the reputation of being a good and honest and honorable Christian man, a good workman and a good provider, the head of a household, the father of three boys.

The boarder is a married man, with a wife in the old country. He is a much larger and stronger man than the husband, and is said to boast of his prowess as a bully and a pugilist. He is also a hard drinker, and the husband informs us that the fellow has made night hideous in his home and that he, the husband, has feared serious trouble at times and has not removed his clothing or gone to bed during the entire night.

The husband further states that he was very anxious to avoid trouble of any kind or character, even legal trouble; but affairs finally reached such a climax that he could no longer, as an honorable man, remain quiet, and he demanded that the blackguard and interloper should vacate his castle. The wife objected, and said he should not go, and the husband then told her that either himself or the boarder would go, and the woman said that, if such were his decision, the husband might take his departure, which he did.

Today, the husband came to the News Review office, asking the writer what he should do under such circumstances, and the writer gave him about the following advice:

"Go to Mayor Davidson and tell him the whole story, just as you have told me. Tell him the plain, unvarnished truth. Then ask that Mayor Davidson shall send with you to your home an officer of nerve and courage. Enter your home with the said officer, fully prepared to defend yourself in case of an unexpected attack by the bully and tough you have described to me. Order him to leave your home, which the law designates as your castle, at once, giving him time, under the eye of the officer, to pack his traps or whatever belongs to him. If he refuses to go repeat your order for him to vacate the premises, and if he still refuses, throw him out, or knock him out, or drag him out, assisted by the officer, if the mayor so permits. Possibly the mayor may advise you to take an easier way from the start. Possibly he may have you swear out a warrant against the fellow and let the law take him out as a disturber of the peace. But you get him out. Make sure of that, as the law gives you the right to do so. And when he goes, insist that the woman who has chosen him in preference to yourself shall go also; as we do not believe that any law, human or divine, will ask you to claim as your wife a woman who has acted as you say this woman has acted."

If the husband tells the truth in this very peculiar case, and he bears the reputation of being a strictly truthful and honest man, the boarder in question should be given an abbreviated and limited order to leave East Liverpool in an abbreviated and exceedingly limited space of time, under penalty of such treatment as would cause him to remember the special occasion as long as life shall last. East Liverpool needs to purge herself of all such miserable scum.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 8, 1901.

OUR SIDEWALKS.

The general impression in trade centers, such as the city of East Liverpool, is that sidewalks are intended for the use of pedestrians.

RUNNING THE GAUNTLET.

Chief Thompson will confer a favor upon the ladies of East Liverpool if he will instruct his roundsmen to disperse the young toughs who form a gauntlet on the pavements at the upper end of Washington street almost nightly.

HAS FITS.

The arc light at the corner of Forest and Walnut streets is subject to fits. Sometimes it sees fit to burn and sometimes it sees fit not to burn. Respectfully referred to Superintendent Thompson, of the Ceramic Light company.

THE ARMY BILL.

The army bill will pass, as it should. Troops are required in the Philippines, in order that our volunteers may come home. These latter soldiers have done splendid service and are worthy of warm commendation. They should be permitted to practice marksmanship at short range, with copperheads as targets, when they do reach home, where they would have been domiciled in comfort long since, had it not been for the aid, comfort and sympathy furnished Aguinaldo and his bolo assassins by these same delectable cops. So lah.

P. D. ARMOUR.

All the great wealth of Philip D. Armour could not purchase for him a single minute of life. How insignificant the wealth of the whole world is in comparison with the value of a single human soul. Wealthy beyond compare is the man or woman who has purchased an eternity of happiness by the acceptance of the atonement made by the Son of God on Calvary's rugged mount. Philip D. Armour, in his dying moments, asked that the Lord's prayer should be read to him by the nurse at his bedside. His request was complied with; and as each sentence was finished by the nurse, the dying man repeated it, and the record is that "when the amen had been repeated by him, he sank back on the pillow and closed his eyes restfully." He apparently accepted God's mercy and died in the faith. God grant that this may be so, and that he has secured an inheritance that "is incorruptible, undefiled and that fadeth not away;" a resting place in "the house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens." Rev. Dr. Gunshulke seems to assert that Philip D. Armour was a Christian man. The world knows that he was a just and a charitable man. He is in the presence of the Great

Judge, who is no respecter of persons, and before whom the king and the beggar stand on the same footing. "Be ye also ready, for ye know not the day nor the hour when the Son of Man cometh."

LAZINESS.

Laziness is a fatal disease. Fatal to ambition and to success. It is a bar against advancement of boy or of man. No employer, if he possesses good business characteristics, will keep a lazy man in his employ. The lazy fellow will not only hinder and hamper your work on account of his personal laziness or shiftlessness, but he will inoculate good and pushing and honorable workmen who are daily associated with him with his disease. The writer has tested the case fully. He has had the misfortune to employ both lazy men and lazy boys. The boys were gotten rid of right speedily, after being given a fair test; the men were held for a considerable length of time; and it required all the push and hustle in our lives and organisms to make amends for the loss incurred by the lazy and worthless fellows, and they came nigh ruining men who were really good and honest unionists, and believers in the adage that a fair day's pay should secure to an employer a fair day's work in return. Further, the lazy boy or man invariably carries in his makeup the characteristics of unlimited gall, infinite cheek and brazen impudence. Don't puzzle yourself over the conundrum as to what you will do with a constitutionally lazy boy or man. Discharge him instantly. He will never be anything but a hindrance and a block in your way.

LOST HIS GRIP.

A good story is told of an East End man who, on very few occasions, looks upon the wine when it is of the hue that puts men off their base.

Saturday night he came to town, and together with a few congenial spirits took on a load that would have kept a regular guessing. He had in his possession a satchel containing a valuable lot of jewelry, and after a few vain attempts to handle the grip and jag at the same time he gave it up, as it made him wobble, much after the fashion of an East Liverpool street car on the hill road.

He left the grip in trust at a second street saloon and in about two minutes thereafter didn't know he ever owned a satchel. Mr. Pedler went home and was made as comfortable as it was possible for a man to be in his inebriated condition.

When he got sober he began to be very much concerned about the safety of his carpet bag, which was said to contain goods to the amount of $400. He came to this city early Monday morning, and after numerous attempts to locate his property, enlisted Constable Miller in his search.

All the business houses and saloons on the hill were canvassed without disclosing anything that would lead to its recovery, and as the pedler's memory was not in the best of order, he could make no suggestion that would aid the officer in his search. Finally Miller took the matter in his own hands, and succeeded in locating the valuables in the saloon of William Hancock, Second street and Locust alley, and had no difficulty in getting possession of the grip.

The East End man settled all obligations, secured his property and vows that when he indulges in another treat he will leave his valuables at home.

THE BOARDER RULES THE HOME

Fellow Shall Take His

BUT THE WIFE LAYS DOWN

The Law and Says That the Husband Shall Go and the Boarder

REMAIN IN FULL POSSESSION

It is an astonishing case. The husband bears the reputation of being a good and honest and honorable Christian man, a good workman and a good provider, the head of a household, the father of three boys.

The boarder is a married man, with a wife in the old country. He is a much larger and stronger man than the husband, and is said to boast of his prowess as a bully and a pugilist. He is also a hard drinker, and the husband informs us that the fellow has made night hideous in his home and that he, the husband, has feared serious trouble at times and has not removed his clothing or gone to bed during the entire night.

The husband further states that he was very anxious to avoid trouble of any kind or character, even legal trouble; but affairs finally reached such a climax that he could no longer, as an honorable man, remain quiet, and he demanded that the blackguard and interloper should vacate his castle. The wife objected, and said he should not go, and the husband then told her that either himself or the boarder would go, and the woman said that, if such were his decision, the husband might take his departure, which he did.

Today, the husband came to the News Review office, asking the writer what he should do under such circumstances, and the writer gave him about the following advice:

"Go to Mayor Davidson and tell him the whole story, just as you have told me. Tell him the plain, unvarnished truth. Then ask that Mayor Davidson shall send with you to your home an officer of nerve and courage. Enter your home with the said officer, fully prepared to defend yourself in case of an unexpected attack by the bully and tough you have described to me. Order him to leave your home, which the law designates as your castle, at once, giving him time, under the eye of the officer, to pack his traps or whatever belongs to him. If he refuses to go repeat your order for him to vacate the premises, and if he still refuses, throw him out, or knock him out, or drag him out, assisted by the officer, if the mayor so permits. Possibly the mayor may advise you to take an easier way from the start. Possibly he may have you swear out a warrant against the fellow and let the law take him out as a disturber of the peace. But you get him out. Make sure of that, as the law gives you the right to do so. And when he goes, insist that the woman who has chosen him in preference to yourself shall go also; as we do not believe that any law, human or divine, will ask you to claim as your wife a woman who has acted as you say this woman has acted."

If the husband tells the truth in this very peculiar case, and he bears the reputation of being a strictly truthful and honest man, the boarder in question should be given an abbreviated and limited order to leave East Liverpool in an abbreviated and exceedingly limited space of time, under penalty of such treatment as would cause him to remember the special occasion as long as life shall last. East Liverpool needs to purge herself of all such miserable scum.

Night.

"AN UNCHANGING CHRIST"

Was His Subject and His Discourse Was Both Eloquent
and Logical.

ALL THE NEWS OF EAST END

Rev. Grimes, of Connoquenessing, arrived in the East End yesterday and last night occupied the pulpit at the Second United Presbyterian church. The reverend gentleman took for his subject "An Unchanging Christ," and the sermon was one of the most eloquent and interesting ever delivered in the city. He said in part:

"Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, today and forever. This is a most wonderful statement. Nothing would appear more marvelous to us. We are so accustomed to change that we can hardly believe that He changes not, yet the text is true. Time cannot change Him. He is the same today as when he went about on earth doing good. The same today as in the yesterday of his earthly life. The same as He will be in the tomorrow when we shall be with the Lord. Circumstances cannot change him. He is not a creature of moods. He is the same loving one."

In conclusion he said: "How comforting and encouraging the thought of this text. It has encouragement for every class—for the individual Christian, for the church of Christ and especially for the sinner. Christ the Savior changes not, but is able and willing to save, today, even as in the day of His earthly activity."

Rev. Grimes will take for his subject tonight: "The Christian's Lamp," and it is the first of a series.

B. S. AMBLER TELLS WHY METZ-
GAR SHOULDN'T GET DAMAGES.

Says the Salem Railroad Benefited His Property Instead of Damaging It.

Lisbon, Jan. 8.—(Special.)—B. C. Ambler, as receiver of the Salem railroad, filed an answer in court in the $4,000 damage case filed against him by Paul Metzgar.

Metzgar filed the action to recover for damages sustained by him when Ambler raised the grade of the Salem railroad 18 inches. Answering generally to the action Ambler says that all of the claims of Metzgar are ridiculous and unfounded and that instead of damaging Metzgar's property as alleged, the Salem railroad and the defendant have benefited and improved the property, as the plaintiff well knows.

He wants the action dismissed and claims that prior to the building of the Salem railroad there was a very low place just west of Metzgar's property which always contained water, and at Metzgar's request he filled it up so that now it is in good condition and the buildings are so situated that they would no be damaged by water even if the same existed.

A SALEM CASE.

B. S. AMBLER TELLS WHY METZ-

Says the Salem Railroad Benefited His Property Instead of Damaging It.

Lisbon, Jan. 8.—(Special.)—B. C.
Ambler, as receiver of the Salem railroad, filed an answer in court in the $4,000 damage case filed against him
by Paul Metzgar.

Metzgar filed the action to recover
for damages sustained by him when Ambler raised the grade of the Salem
railroad 18 inches. Answering generally to the action Ambler says that
all of the claims of Metzgar are ridicular and unfounded and that instead of damaging Metzgar's property
as alleged, the Salem railroad and the defendant have benefited and improved

the property, as the plaintiff well
knows.

He wants the action dismissed and claims that prior to the building of the Salem railroad there was a very low place just west of Metzgar's property which always contained water,
and at Metzgar's request he filled it up
so that now it is in good condition and
the buildings are so situated that they would no be damaged by water even if the same existed.

SPLENDID SERMON BY REV. GRIMES

He Occupied the Pulpit of the Second U. P. Church Last

"AN UNCHANGING CHRIST"

Was His Subject and His Discourse Was Both Eloquent
and Logical.

ALL THE NEWS OF EAST END

Rev. Grimes, of Connoquenessing, arrived in the East End yesterday and last night occupied the pulpit at the Second United Presbyterian church.

The reverend gentleman took for his subject "An Unchanging Christ,"
and the sermon was one of the most eloquent and interesting ever delivered in the city. He said in part:

"Jesus Christ, the same yesterday,
today and forever. This is a most wonderful statement. Nothing would appear more marvelous to us. We are so accustomed to change that we can hardly believe that He changes not,
yet the text is true. Time cannot change Him. He is the same today
as when he went about on earth doing good. The same today as in the yesterday of his earthly life. The same as He will be in the tomorrow when we shall be with the Lord. Circumstances cannot change him. He is not a creature of moods. He is the same loving one."

In conclusion he said: "How comforting and encouraging the thought of this text. It has encouragement for every class—for the individual Christian, for the church of Christ and especially for the sinner. Christ
the Savior changes not, but is able and willing to save, today, even as in the day of His earthly activity."

Rev. Grimes will take for his subject tonight: "The Christian's Lamp," and it is the first of a series.

HAUNTED HIS DEATH.

Breth Went Through Hazing Motions In Deathbed.

HE AND BOOZ BADLY TREATED.

Shocking Testimony of Members of the Dead Breth's Family—Sister Sent For Some of Dead Boy's Letters—Ex-Cadet Burnham One of the Witnesses.

Philadelphia, Jan. 8.—According to the testimony adduced before the congressional investigating committee, which is inquiring into the charges of hazing at the West Point military academy, Oscar L. Booz, of Bristol, Pa., and John E. Breth, of Altoona, Pa., had a rough time of it during their "plebe" year at that institution. The star witness of the day was former Cadet Anthony J. Burnham, Jr., son of Judge Burnham, of the court of appeals of the state of Kentucky, who was Booz's tent mate while in camp. The committee also heard for the first time testimony in regard to the experiences of Breth from the lips of his father, brothers and sisters.

Said Booz Was a Good Fellow.

Burnham, who was dismissed from the academy for deficiency in studies, said Booz became unpopular after his first fight with Keller. Personally he was a good fellow, but the cadet of the upper classes always aunted him as a coward. During the 12 months Burnham was at the academy there were 10 fights, and as far as he knew no one was punished. Abused cadets, he said, feared to make complaints, because they felt the hazers would make life all the more miserable for them. Booz, while in their tent, had told him of how upper class men had compelled him to swallow tobacco sauce under penalty of being "called out." The fourth class men were allowed their liberty on Saturday afternoons, according to the regulations, but the upper class men would not allow them to leave camp. If they disobeyed them, the "plebes," as a rule, would be punished for it.

The case of John Breth, of Altoona, Pa., who died from an ailment which, it is alleged, he received indirectly as a result of hazing at West Point, was taken up. The first witness called was Dr. E. E. Goodman, of Altoona, the Breth family physician. Dr. Goodman said Breth entered West Point in June, 1897, and died last October. His physical condition before entering the military academy was excellent. Dr. Goodman treated him two weeks after he came home from West Point for hemorrhoids. Later on young Breth went to Pittsburgh, where he was employed as a salesman by a Pittsburgh tobacco house. He returned home two months later suffering from nervousness and insomnia, but soon returned to Pittsburgh. Last October he again treated him for tenfold pneumonia, from which he died. Young Breth never told Dr. Goodman anything about the hazing at West Point. All the information the doctor had come to him from the boy's family. He became very nervous about a year after he returned from West Point and the physician often wondered what could have caused it.

Eating Soap Could Have Caused It.

It had been reported that Breth was compelled to eat soap at West Point. The doctor knew nothing about that, but if the boy had eaten soap it would have explained his physical condition on his return home.

Samuel J. Breth, father of Cadet Breth, testified that his son was appointed by Congressman Hicks, in March, 1897, and was dismissed from the academy because of deficiency in mathematics, in January, 1898. Mr. Breth said members of the family had received letters from the son in regard to hardships at West Point. The father and mother knew that the boys at the academy were more or less hazed, and Cadet Breth and his brother Harry had an understanding between them that if he had anything to write about hardships John would write to Harry only, so that the parents would not worry. He said Harry and one of the daughters visited John at the academy in August, 1897, and on their return home they said John had been severely hazed and that he had nervous prostration. At West Point John told them he had been so severely hazed that he became unconscious. The only one that was mentioned as being among the hazers was a cadet named Bender. The father was questioned at length as to what the cadet told him of the hazing but the young man, it appears, said little to the parents. He told his brothers and sister more, and they kept the information from them. The father learned from the son, Harry, that John had been "choked almost." On his death bed, the father said, the boy went through the "choo-chooing" motions.

Wanted the Original Letters.

Harry Breth, the brother, was called and offered to submit copies of extracts of letters he received from John. The committee decided that it wanted the originals, which are now at the Breth homestead in Altoona. He was excused until the letters could be produced, and in order that Miss Rosa M. Breth, a sister, might return home and send them to the committee her testimony was then taken. She received a letter from her brother while he was in West Point hospital in which he said the surgeon told him that he had a light attack of nervous prostration from overwork. John, however, told other members of the family when they visited him at West Point that his condition was due to hazing. John said he was hazed three times in one night. John wrote home that he had to eat eight slices of bread soaked in molasses. On his death bed he told her that "West Point is the cause of the breakdown in my health." He mentioned the names of Bender, Wood and Young as being "awful hazers."

While in the hospital, she said, John told her that he was visited by upper class men and told "that he had better get out of here tomorrow." In his last illness John told Harry some things of what took place in the hospital to make Harry believe Cadet Breth was even subjected to hazing in the hospital. This completed Miss Rosa Breth's testimony, and she left later for Altoona.

After Robert B. Wallace, who was one of Oscar Booz's instructors in a private school in this city, had told of Oscar's good record as a scholar, William A. Breth, another brother of John Breth, took the stand.

William's story was substantially as follows:

When John came home he told him that he had to do so much "cogging" that he often became exhausted and until his muscles felt like leather. A cadet named Bender made him sit on the point of a bayonet until he fell off. He was made to sit on it again, and during this operation Bender played a violin. On another occasion, a hot July day, after a hard day's drill, he was compelled to don a rain coat and hold out dumb bells. On a Saturday all cadets were given a certain amount of liberty, but Bender prevented him from leaving camp. His brother made a complaint about it, which resulted in Bender exercising him more severely. He regarded "feeling inspection" as a joke. One night he was dragged out of bed, leaving the bedclothes behind him, and was dragged over rough stones in the company street. On another occasion he was so exhaustively exercised that on the next morning the officer in charge of the drill compelled him to drop out of line because of his weakness. One time John was on guard and Bender refused to give the sign of recognition as he passed, which was a breach of the regulations. He reported Bender, and the latter said he would make him fight, but the threat was never carried out. His brother considered West Point military academy the best in the world, but said the upper class men ran the place.

Witness In Danger of Being In Contempt.

Lucien H. Alexander, secretary of the board of examiners for the admission of law students to the bar, was called for the purpose of testifying to Booz's application for admission, and got into a legal tangle with the committee as to whether Booz passed the examination. Mr. Alexander explained that the courts of Philadelphia had made a rule that the matter of how students came out of an examination should not be made public, and he considered he would be in contempt of court if he divulged the information, although he was willing to make a personal application to the court for a rule permitting him to do so. The committee decided that he must choose between being in contempt of the courts of Philadelphia or the United States house of representatives, and he was given until 11 o'clock today to decide.

Mary G. Breth, another sister of Breth, was called and corroborated the testimony of other members of the family. She said her brother told her that one night he was hazed by three separate sets of cadets. He stood the first two, but fainted during the third act of hazing. When he regained consciousness he saw several men rubbing him. They appeared to be greatly frightened. Miss Breth also said that her brother, in speaking of hazing, said he "often ate soap" and "chewed pine ends" at West Point. Miss Breth said her brother did not know Father O'Keefe, who testified before the military

It was intended to meet again this morning.

LODGE MADE A SPEECH.

He Spoke on Philippine Question—Predicted Great Commercial Future for United States.

Washington, Jan. 8.—A notable speech was delivered during the course of the session of the senate by Mr. Lodge, of Massachusetts. Addressing the senate on the amendment of the military committee striking out the provision in the army reorganization bill for a veterinary corps, he discussed briefly and principally in the form of a colloquy with Senator Bacon, of Georgia, the Philippine question and the necessity for an army of 100,000 men. In conclusion he drew a brilliant word picture of the commercial future of the United States, declaring that the trade conflict with Europe already begun could result only in the commercial and economic supremacy of this country over the entire world. In this industrial conflict he apprehended no danger from a material contest with any nation of the world, but he urged the necessity for a strong and scientifically organized army and a powerful navy in order that the United States might be prepared to defend its rights against any possible foe. The speech created a profound impression.

During the course of the session the senate ratified the committee proposition to eliminate the house provision for the establishment of a veterinary corps in the army. Senator Teller, of Colorado, gave notice of a substitute he will offer to the entire pending measure, continuing in full force and effect the act of March 3, 1899, increasing the size of the army for three years, from July 1, 1901.

AGREED ON TIME TO VOTE.

Balloting on Reapportionment Bill May Occur Today.

Washington, Jan. 8.—It was agreed Monday that the final vote in the house on the reapportionment of representation from the various states would be taken before the session closed today. It was expected there would be a sequel Monday to the exciting clash of Saturday between Mr. Littlefield, of Maine, and Mr. Hopkins, of Illinois. But the latter made no effort at rejoinder and contented himself with the direction of the measure toward the final vote. He expressed confidence that the bill bearing his name will be passed today, although there might be a slight change, giving an additional member to Florida, Colorado and North Dakota, bringing the total membership up to 390. The notable speeches Monday were by Mr. Crumacker, of Indiana, dealing with alleged disfranchisement in the south; by Mr. Hepburn, of Iowa, severely arraigning the present rules as annihilating the constitutional prerogatives of the house, and by Mr. Grow, of Pennsylvania, comparing the old system in the house with that of the present.

W. J. BRYAN WAS PRESENT.

He Made a Speech at a Banquet in Omaha—Tillman Also One of the Orators.

Omaha, Jan. 8.—The tenth annual banquet of the Jacksonian club, of Nebraska, was held at the Millard hotel last night. The occasion was one of interest on account of the presence of the Hon. William J. Bryan, who responded to the toast "Democracy," and of Senator Benjamin R. Tillman, whose address was on "The Democratic Party: Its Duty and Destiny." Others also spoke.

100 BOYS MASSACRED.

Many of Them Cling to Christianity In spite of Chinese Tortures.

London, Jan. 8.—A sister of Charity, writing from the Maison De Jesu Infant, at Ning Po, Nov. 20, described the massacre at Nan King of 100 little boys. Some of them, she says, were roasted alive in the church. Others escaped to the orphanage, outside the city, but all were killed and the place burned.

"Despite threats of torture and the frequency of most painful death," the sister declares, "apostasy was wonderfully rare."

A Pastor Elected.

Greensburg, Pa., Jan. 8.—The Rev. Stanley Krebs, of Reading, has been unanimously elected pastor of the First Reformed church here.

MAY ARREST PALMER.

Accused of Keeping Hotel Saloon Open on Sunday.

WARRANT FOR MULTI-MILLIONAIRE

Frank Hall Appeared In a Justice's Court and Made a Charge Against Him. If Convicted, He May Be Fined $200 or Less.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—Potter Palmer, multi-millionaire, social leader and proprietor of the Palmer house, may be arrested today by Constable H. B. Goodrich, of Justice Everett's court, on a charge of keeping the saloon in his hotel open on Sunday. The warrant for the arrest of Mr. Palmer was issued by Justice Everett upon complaint of Frank Hall, who recently endeavored to close the Sunday theaters.

Mr. Hall appeared in the justice's court and swore that Potter Palmer, "on Jan. 6, 1901, did keep open a tipping house, or a place where liquor was sold or given away, upon the first day of the week, to wit: the aforesaid date commonly known as Sunday." In event of conviction upon this charge Mr. Palmer may be fined $200 or less.

A GIRL KILLED.

Tenth Pennsylvania Veteran Accidentally Shot Her Near Waynesburg, Pa.

Waynesburg, Pa., Jan. 8.—Vernon Kelley, constable of Franklin township, went to the home of Miss Anna Clark and her sister to lend them a revolver. Kelley attempted to show the young women how to use the weapon, and, thinking that all of the chambers were empty, began snapping the hammer. He pointed the revolver at Miss Anna and pulled the trigger. The hammer fell on a loaded cartridge, the ball entering the girl's breast, and she died almost instantly. Miss Clark was a respected young woman. She was employed in the Waynesburg Democrat office, and was a student in the Waynesburg business college.

Kelley served with Company K, Tenth regiment, in the Philippines, and was wounded in battle. A week or two ago he narrowly escaped being killed by a gas explosion, in which he was injured. He was almost crazed over the occurrence and at once walked to Waynesburg and had himself placed in jail.

FUNERAL OF P. D. ARMOUR.

It Is Expected to Be Held Tomorrow Afternoon—Rev. Dr. Gunsaulus to Preach.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—The funeral of the late Philip D. Armour, it was expected, will be held about 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, at the home, No. 2115 Prairie avenue. Those who desire to look upon the face of Mr. Armour will be given the opportunity prior to the funeral. The body will lie in state at the Armour home from 9 o'clock in the morning until noon.

While the holding of the funeral from the house will necessarily restrict the number in attendance, all of the Armour employes in Chicago, who number thousands, will be invited to view the body during the morning hours.

Rev. Frank W. Gunsaulus will preach the funeral sermon. The burial will be in the family lot at Graceland cemetery, and the pallbearers will be business associates of the deceased.

MURDERED IN HER HOME.

A Zanesville Woman Beaten to Death. Negro Barber Under Arrest.

Zanesville, O., Jan. 8.—Mrs. Vina Grady, aged 30, was murdered at her home, and Adrian Madison, a colored barber who was seen coming from the house with his clothing covered with blood, is charged with the crime. A blunt instrument, which has not been found, was used. Madison is said to have been infatuated with the woman.

The negro denies that he killed the woman, but admits having been in the house. A year ago, it is said, he tried to commit suicide because the woman refused his attentions. Mrs. Grady's husband, who is in Columbus, left her, it is alleged, because of the notoriety she gained through Madison's infatuation.

HAUNTED HIS DEATH.

Breth Went Through Hazing Motions In Deathbed.

HE AND BOOZ BADLY TREATED.

Shocking Testimony of Members of the Dead Breth's Family—Sister Sent For Some of Dead Boy's Letters—Ex-Cadet Burnham One of the Witnesses.

Philadelphia, Jan. 8.—According to the testimony adduced before the congressional investigating committee, which is inquiring into the charges of hazing at the West Point military academy, Oscar L. Booz, of Bristol, Pa., and John E. Breth, of Altoona, Pa., had a rough time of it during their "plebe" year at that institution. The star witness of the day was former Cadet Anthony J. Burnham, Jr., son of Judge Burnham, of the court of appeals of the state of Kentucky, who was Booz's tent mate while in camp. The committee also heard for the first time testimony in regard to the experiences of Breth from the lips of his father, brothers and sisters.

Said Booz Was a Good Fellow.

Burnham, who was dismissed from the academy for deficiency in studies, said Booz became unpopular after his first fight with Keller. Personally he was a good fellow, but the cadet of the upper classes always aunted him as a coward. During the 12 months Burnham was at the academy there were 10 fights, and as far as he knew no one was punished. Abused cadets, he said, feared to make complaints, because they felt the hazers would make life all the more miserable for them. Booz, while in their tent, had told him of how upper class men had compelled him to swallow tobacco sauce under penalty of being "called out." The fourth class men were allowed their liberty on Saturday afternoons, according to the regulations, but the upper class men would not allow them to leave camp. If they disobeyed them, the "plebes," as a rule, would be punished for it.

The case of John Breth, of Altoona, Pa., who died from an ailment which, it is alleged, he received indirectly as a result of hazing at West Point, was taken up. The first witness called was Dr. E. E. Goodman, of Altoona, the Breth family physician. Dr. Goodman said Breth entered West Point in June, 1897, and died last October. His physical condition before entering the military academy was excellent. Dr. Goodman treated him two weeks after he came home from West Point for hemorrhoids. Later on young Breth went to Pittsburgh, where he was employed as a salesman by a Pittsburgh tobacco house. He returned home two months later suffering from nervousness and insomnia, but soon returned to Pittsburgh. Last October he again treated him for hemorrhoids, from which he died. Young Breth never told Dr. Goodman anything about the hazing at West Point. All the information the doctor had come to him from the boy's family. He became very nervous about a year after he returned from West Point and the physician often wondered what could have caused it.

Eating Soap Could Have Caused It.

It had been reported that Breth was compelled to eat soap at West Point. The doctor knew nothing about that, but if the boy had eaten soap it would have explained his physical condition on his return home.

Samuel J. Breth, father of Cadet Breth, testified that his son was appointed by Congressman Hicks, in March, 1897, and was dismissed from the academy because of deficiency in mathematics, in January, 1898. Mr. Breth said members of the family had received letters from the son in regard to hardships at West Point. The father and mother knew that the boys at the academy were more or less hazed, and Cadet Breth and his brother Harry had an understanding between them that if he had anything to write about hardships John would write to Harry only, so that the parents would not worry. He said Harry and one of the daughters visited John at the academy in August, 1897, and on their return home they said John had been severely hazed and that he had nervous prostration. At West Point John told them he had been so severely hazed that he became unconscious. The only one that was mentioned as being among the hazers was a cadet named Bender. The father was questioned at length as to what the cadet told him of the hazing, but the young man, it appears, said little to the parents. He told his brothers and sister more, and they kept the information from them. The father learned from the son Harry that John had been "choked almost." On his death bed, the father said, the boy went through the "choke choking" motions.

Wanted the Original Letters.

Harry Breth, the brother, was called and offered to submit copies of extracts of letters he received from John. The committee decided that it wanted the originals, which are now at the Breth homestead in Altoona. He was excused until the letters could be produced, and in order that Miss Rosa M. Breth, a sister, might return home and send them to the committee her testimony was then taken. She received a letter from her brother while he was in West Point hospital, in which he said the surgeon told him that he had a light attack of nervous prostration from overwork. John, however, told other members of the family when they visited him at West Point that his condition was due to hazing. John said he was hazed three times in one night. John wrote home that he had to eat eight slices of bread soaked in molasses. On his death bed he told her that "West Point is the cause of the breakdown in my health." He mentioned the names of Bender, Wood and Yonge as being "awful hazers."

While in the hospital, she said, John told her that he was visited by upper class men and told "that he had better get out of here tomorrow." In his last illness John told Harry some things of what took place in the hospital to make Harry believe Cadet Breth was even subjected to hazing in the hospital. This completed Miss Rosa Breth's testimony, and she left later for Altoona.

After Robert B. Wallace, who was one of Oscar Booz's instructors in a private school in this city, had told of Oscar's good record as a scholar, William A. Breth, another brother of John Breth, took the stand.

William's story was substantially as follows:

When John came home he told him that he had to do so much "hogging" that he often became exhausted and until his muscles felt like lead. A cadet named Bender made him sit on the point of a bayonet until he fell off. He was made to sit on it again, and during this operation Bender played a violin. On another occasion, a hot July day, after a hard day's drill, he was compelled to don a rain coat and hold out dumb bells. On a Saturday all cadets were given a certain amount of liberty, but Bender prevented him from leaving camp. His brother made a complaint about it, which resulted in Bender exercising him more severely. He regarded "feeling inspection" as a joke. One night he was dragged out of bed, leaving the bedclothes behind him, and was dragged over rough stones in the company street. On another occasion he was so exhaustively exercised that on the next morning the officer in charge of the drill compelled him to drop out of line because of his weakness. One time John was on guard and Bender refused to give the sign of recognition as he passed, which was a breach of the regulations. He reported Bender, and the latter said he would make him fight, but the threat was never carried out. His brother considered West Point military academy the best in the world, but said the upper class men ran the place.

Witness In Danger of Being In Contempt.

Lucien H. Alexander, secretary of the board of examiners for the admission of law students to the bar, was called for the purpose of testifying to Booz's application for admission, and got into a legal tangle with the committee as to whether Booz passed the examination. Mr. Alexander explained that the courts of Philadelphia had made a rule that the matter of how students came out of an examination should not be made public, and he considered he would be in contempt of court if he divulged the information, although he was willing to make a personal application to the court for a rule permitting him to do so. The committee decided that he must choose between being in contempt of the courts of Philadelphia or the United States house of representatives, and he was given until 11 o'clock today to decide.

Mary G. Breth, another sister of Breth, was called and corroborated the testimony of other members of the family. She said her brother told her that one night he was hazed by three separate sets of cadets. He stood the first two, but fainted during the third act of hazing. When he regained consciousness he saw several men rubbing him. They appeared to be greatly frightened. Miss Breth also said that her brother, in speaking of hazing, said he "often ate soap," and "choked some ends," at West Point. Miss Breth said her brother did not know Father O'Keefe, who testified before the military

It was intended to meet again this morning.

LODGE MADE A SPEECH.

He Spoke on Philippine Question—Predicted Great Commercial Future for United States.

Washington, Jan. 8.—A notable speech was delivered during the course of the session of the senate by Mr. Lodge, of Massachusetts. Addressing the senate on the amendment of the military committee striking out the provision in the army reorganization bill for a veterinary corps, he discussed briefly and principally in the form of a colloquy with Senator Bacon, of Georgia, the Philippine question and the necessity for an army of 100,000 men. In conclusion he drew a brilliant word picture of the commercial future of the United States, declaring that the trade conflict with Europe already begun could result only in the commercial and economic supremacy of this country over the entire world. In this industrial conflict he apprehended no danger from a material contest with any nation of the world, but he urged the necessity for a strong and scientifically organized army and a powerful navy in order that the United States might be prepared to defend its rights against any possible foe. The speech created a profound impression.

During the course of the session the senate ratified the committee proposition to eliminate the house provision for the establishment of a veterinary corps in the army. Senator Teller, of Colorado, gave notice of a substitute he will offer to the entire pending measure, continuing in full force and effect the act of March 3, 1899, increasing the size of the army for three years, from July 1, 1901.

AGREED ON TIME TO VOTE.

Balloting on Resapment Bill May Occur Today.

Washington, Jan. 8.—It was agreed Monday that the final vote in the house on the reapportionment of representation from the various states would be taken before the session closed today. It was expected there would be a sequel Monday to the exciting clash of Saturday between Mr. Littlefield, of Maine, and Mr. Hopkins, of Illinois. But the latter made no effort at rejoinder and contented himself with the direction of the measure toward the final vote. He expressed confidence that the bill bearing his name will be passed today, although there might be a slight change, giving an additional member to Florida, Colorado and North Dakota, bringing the total membership up to 300. The notable speeches Monday were by Mr. Crumacker, of Indiana, dealing with alleged disfranchisement in the south; by Mr. Hepburn, of Iowa, severely arraigning the present rules as annihilating the constitutional prerogatives of the house, and by Mr. Grow, of Pennsylvania, comparing the old system in the house with that of the present.

W. J. BRYAN WAS PRESENT.

He Made a Speech at a Banquet In Omaha—Tillman Also One of the Orators.

Omaha, Jan. 8.—The tenth annual banquet of the Jacksonian club, of Nebraska, was held at the Millard hotel last night. The occasion was one of interest on account of the presence of the Hon. William J. Bryan, who responded to the toast "Democracy," and of Senator Benjamin R. Tillman, whose address was on "The Democratic Party: Its Duty and Destiny." Others also spoke.

100 BOYS MASSACRED.

Many of Them Cling to Christianity In Spite of Chinese Tortures.

London, Jan. 8.—A Sister of Charity, writing from the Maison De Jesus Infant, at Ning Po, Nov. 20, described the massacre at Nan King of 100 little boys. Some of them, she says, were roasted alive in the church. Others escaped to the orphanage, outside the city, but all were killed and the place burned. "Despite threats of torture and the frequency of most painful death," the Sister declares, "apostasy was wonderfully rare."

MAY ARREST PALMER.

Frank Hall Appeared In a Justice's Court and Made a Charge Against Him. If Convicted, He May Be Fined $200 or Less.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—Potter Palmer, multi-millionaire, social leader and proprietor of the Palmer house, may be arrested today by Constable H. B. Goodrich, of Justice Everett's court, on a charge of keeping the saloon in his hotel open on Sunday. The warrant for the arrest of Mr. Palmer was issued by Justice Everett upon complaint of Frank Hall, who recently endeavored to close the Sunday theaters.

Mr. Hall appeared in the justice's court and swore that Potter Palmer, "on Jan. 6, 1901, did keep open a tipping house, or a place where liquor was sold or given away, upon the first day of the week, to wit; the aforesaid date commonly known as Sunday." In event of conviction upon this charge Mr. Palmer may be fined $200 or less.

A GIRL KILLED.

Tenth Pennsylvania Veteran Accident—ally Shot Her Near Waynesburg, Pa.

Waynesburg, Pa., Jan. 8.—Vernon Kelley, constable of Franklin township, went to the home of Miss Anna Clark and her sister to lend them a revolver. Kelley attempted to show the young women how to use the weapon, and, thinking that all of the chambers were empty, began snapping the hammer. He pointed the revolver at Miss Anna and pulled the trigger. The hammer fell on a loaded cartridge, the ball entering the girl's breast, and she died almost instantly. Miss Clark was a respected young woman. She was employed in the Waynesburg Democrat office, and was a student in the Waynesburg business college.

Kelley served with Company K, Tenth regiment, in the Philippines, and was wounded in battle. A week or two ago he narrowly escaped being killed by a gas explosion, in which he was injured. He was almost crazed over the occurrence and at once walked to Waynesburg and had himself placed in jail.

FUNERAL OF P. D. ARMOUR.

It Is Expected to Be Held Tomorrow Afternoon—Rev. Dr. Gunsaulus to Preach.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—The funeral of the late Philip D. Armour, it was expected, will be held about 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, at the home, No. 2115 Prairie avenue. Those who desire to look upon the face of Mr. Armour will be given the opportunity prior to the funeral. The body will lie in state at the Armour home from 9 o'clock in the morning until noon.

While the holding of the funeral from the house will necessarily restrict the number in attendance, all of the Armour employees in Chicago, who number thousands, will be invited to view the body during the morning hours.

Rev. Frank W. Gunsaulus will preach the funeral sermon. The burial will be in the family lot at Graceland cemetery, and the pallbearers will be business associates of the deceased.

On the day of the funeral all of the plants and offices of the Armour company in Chicago and other cities will be closed for the entire day.

The meeting was held under the joint auspices of the Peoples Institute and the Dr. McGlynn Memorial association. Chas. Sprague Smith presided. A letter was read from Father Ducey, regretting his inability to be present, and recalling the virtues and the devotion of Father McGlynn to his church. A telegram from Dr. R. Heber Newton was also read, asking the chairman to "love and honor for the great priest." Some words were made by Sylvester L. Mader, president of the Memorial association; Lawson Parly, the Rev. Father Portell; Henry George, Jr., Charles Frederick Adams and John S. Crosby.

MURDERED IN HER HOME.

A Zanesville Woman Beaten to Death. Negro Barber Under Arrest.

Zanesville, O., Jan. 8.—Mrs. Vina Grady, aged 30, was murdered at her home, and Adrian Madison, a colored barber who was seen coming from the house with his clothing covered with blood, is charged with the crime. A blunt instrument, which has not been found, was used. Madison is said to have been infatuated with the woman.

The negro denies that he killed the woman, but admits having been in the house. A year ago, it is said, he tried to commit suicide because the woman refused his attentions. Mrs. Grady's husband, who is in Columbus, left her, it is alleged, because of the notoriety she gained through Madison's infatuation.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

THE SHIPPING BILL WILL NOT "GO OVER."

Filibusters Disgusting Friends of the Army Bill—Letters Received by Senator Hanna—Practical and Patriotic Thoughts.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Congress has reconvened after the holiday recess, and the work of getting legislation through before March 4 is under full swing. The senate is up to its ears in the consideration of the army reorganization bill, and, despite the statements to the contrary, it is assured of an early vote. In the house the subject of reapportionment is occupying attention as I write, and a hullabaloo is being raised by the representatives from certain sections of the south lest the disfranchised voters be eliminated from consideration in the fixing of the number of "male inhabitants over 21 years of age actually entitled to vote" as the basis of representation in future congresses. Enough has already transpired in this connection to show that the fears of the disfranchisers are thoroughly aroused.

The impression has gone abroad that the action of the senate in supplanting the shipping bill as unfinished business with the army reorganization bill places the former in the category of bills that are likely "to go over," and which means to fail for the lack of consideration. The impression is quite erroneous. The filibustering that goes on now is and can only be directed against the army bill, and it will be impossible for any one to assert that it is in order to defeat the shipping bill that the filibustering tactics are being resorted to in the senate. By the time the friends of the army reorganization bill have had a good full dose of filibustering they will be in no mood to encourage a further display of it in opposition to other important legislation.

Since Senator Hanna has blossomed out as an orator and a contributor to magazines he has been overwhelmed with letters of congratulation, of advice, and many contain stray bits of valuable information. It was my privilege to be permitted to go over one day's batch of letters he received bearing on the shipping subject, and some of them were very interesting. One man, for instance, from Oregon writes him as follows in part: "The press seems to have gone daft on the subject of 'tramp' steamships, as though no other class of vessels carried cargoes. You probably know, but seemingly many newspaper editors do not, that it is the regular line ships which build up trade, not tramps, the latter merely taking care of the overplusages at times. You are on the right track in legislating so as to establish direct lines of steamships to the ports of the world. They are the vessels that build up a nation's trade."

Another, a Democratic ex-member of congress from Georgia, writes him as follows, in part: "And it is upon this point [that providing for the admission of certain foreign built vessels owned by Americans] that I think the bill is so liberal. We in the south have believed that if foreign built vessels were placed under American registry we could as a nation do much to solve the 'shipping problem.' We have thought, too, that their admission would force our home builders to reduce their prices. But I saw very clearly in the Fifty-third congress that no such bill had even a ghost of a show of passing. I happen to know that nearly as many Democrats opposed it as Republicans, and I don't think this sentiment has changed. But your bill lets in, as I understand, 300,000 or 400,000 tons of foreign built ships on condition that their owners build new tonnage in our home yards as great as that admitted. This is a stroke of genius, and if Democrats reject this chance to get a partial free ship bill it seems to me they will never get another. You may make such use of this letter as you care to."

Strangely, in the same mail and

from the north—right in New England, too—comes a strong expression of hostility "to letting any foreign built ships under our flag, much less to any subsidy, so long as we have shipbuilding material and builders to put it together in ships the equal of the best the world over." But this writer further says: "What I hope most to see result from a subsidy bill is the construction of ships of the very highest speed, capable of outsteaming anything else afloat. These are the kind of ships we need and just as many of them as we can get. Don't be influenced by the clamor for 'tramps.' This is not a country where 'tramps' are welcome. We want something more respectable and more useful. One has but to go back to the Spanish-American war and remember the invaluable services of the swift steamships of our only line in the Atlantic trade to be able to realize the superior value of the very swiftest ships."

Senator Hanna's characteristic remark after reading over these suggestions was that they indicated that the object lessons of the Spanish-American war were by no means lost upon our intelligent citizens, and that patriotism is still far above partisanship with a vast majority of our people. ## FILIPINOS ORDERED DEPORTED.

Mabini and Others to Be Deported to Guam.

Manila, Jan. 8.—General MacArthur ordered the deportation of Generals Ricarte, Del Pilar, Hizon, Llanera and Santos to the island of Guam. Nine regimental and four subordinate officers, with eight civilians, including Trias, Teeson and Mabini, notorious assistants of the insurrectionists, have also been ordered to be deported. It is General MacArthur's intention to hold most of the active leaders of the rebels, who have been captured in Guam until the resumption of a condition of peace has been declared.

The first municipal election was held successfully at Baguio, province of Benguet, Saturday. The Igorrotes took part in the election.

SOME BOERS RETIRED.

General Kitchener Reported Fighting With General Babington's Force.

London, Jan. 8.—Reporting to the war office, under date of Jan. 6, Lord Kitchener said:

Our casualties have not yet been received, but are reported slight. A Boer doctor admitted that 20 Boers were killed or wounded. Commandant Duprez was taken prisoner."

"It appears from reports of the wounded who have arrived at Hell-brown that a detachment 120 strong, belonging to Knox's command, came into contact with a superior force near Lindley. I regret to say that Lieutenant Laing, two other officers and 15 men were killed and two officers and 20 men wounded. No details have come from Knox of this action."

19 KNOWN DEAD.

Horrible Fire In an Orphan Asylum.

FEARED THAT OTHERS PERISHED.

Terrific Explosion Occurred, After the Fire Was Discovered by Two Men Passing the Institution in Rochester, N. Y. Persons Were at Work.

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 8.—Fire broke out in the hospital section of the Rochester orphan asylum about 1 o'clock this morning on Hubbell park and the flames spread rapidly to other sections of the institution. It is known that 19 of the children perished and it is feared that many more victims may be reported later.

The fire was first discovered by two men passing the asylum. They hastily sent in an alarm and then turned their attention toward arousing the nurses and the children. A terrific explosion was then heard and in a moment the entire hospital section was in flames. On the arrival of the fire apparatus a general alarm was sent in, calling out the entire department. The smoke began to pour out of every window in the main building and the screams and frantic cries of the children could be heard. The work of rescue began with a will. Children and nurses were carried from the building, all in an unconscious condition, some dead. Ambulances from the city, St. Mary's, Homeopathic and Hahnemann hospitals were summoned and the victims were removed to the several institutions.

There were 199 children at the hospital and a corps of about 30 nurses and attendants. Two of the women attendants are among the dead.

The origin of the fire is not known at this time. The property loss will probably exceed $20,000.

APPEAL FOR FERRELL.

Formal Application For Clemency Made to the Ohio State Board of Pardons.

Columbus, O., Jan. 8.—Formal application for clemency for Rosslyn H. Ferrell, under sentence of death for the murder of Express Messenger Lane last August, was filed with the state board of pardons. The application sets up the grounds of youth of the prisoner, his age being 22; his previous good character; good conduct since arrest; his circumstances at the time of the crime, which is held to have unbalanced his mind; that he was convicted on his own plea of guilty; doubt that the jury was free from prejudice; the claim that his mind was sufficiently unbalanced to entitle him to clemency, although not insane.

The board of pardons will meet in special session to hear the appeal on Thursday.

THE SHIPPING BILL WILL NOT "GO OVER."

Filibusters Disgusting Friends of the Army Bill—Letters Received by Senator Hanna—Practical and Patriotic Thoughts.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Congress has reconvened after the holiday recess, and the work of getting legislation through before March 4 is under full swing. The senate is up to its ears in the consideration of the army reorganization bill, and, despite the statements to the contrary, it is assured of an early vote. In the house the subject of reapportionment is occupying attention as I write, and a hullabaloo is being raised by the representatives from certain sections of the south lest the disfranchised voters be eliminated from consideration in the fixing of the number of "male inhabitants over 21 years of age actually entitled to vote" as the basis of representation in future congresses. Enough has already transpired in this connection to show that the fears of the disfranchisers are thoroughly aroused.

The impression has gone abroad that the action of the senate in supplanting the shipping bill as unfinished business with the army reorganization bill places the former in the category of bills that are likely "to go over," and which means to fail for the lack of consideration. The impression is quite erroneous. The filibustering that goes on now is and can only be directed against the army bill, and it will be impossible for any one to assert that it is in order to defeat the shipping bill that the filibustering tactics are being resorted to in the senate. By the time the friends of the army reorganization bill have had a good full dose of filibustering they will be in no mood to encourage a further display of it in opposition to other important legislation.

Since Senator Hanna has blossomed out as an orator and a contributor to magazines he has been overwhelmed with letters of congratulation, of advice, and many contain stray bits of valuable information. It was my privilege to be permitted to go over one day's batch of letters he received bearing on the shipping subject, and some of them were very interesting. One man, for instance, from Oregon writes him as follows in part: "The press seems to have gone daft on the subject of 'tramp' steamships, as though no other class of vessels carried cargoes. You probably know, but seemingly many newspaper editors do not, that it is the regular line ships which build up trade, not tramps, the latter merely taking care of the overpluses at times. You are on the right track in legislating so as to establish direct lines of steamships to the ports of the world. They are the vessels that build up a nation's trade."

Another, a Democratic ex-member of congress from Georgia, writes him as follows, in part: "And it is upon this point [that providing for the admission of certain foreign built vessels owned by Americans] that I think the bill is so liberal. We in the south have believed that if foreign built vessels were placed under American registry we could as a nation do much to solve the 'shipping problem.' We have thought, too, that their admission would force our home builders to reduce their prices. But I saw very clearly in the Fifty-third congress that no such bill had even a ghost of a show of passing. I happen to know that nearly as many Democrats opposed it as Republicans, and I don't think this sentiment has changed. But your bill lets in, as I understand, 300,000 or 400,000 tons of foreign built ships on condition that their owners build new tonnage in our home yards as great as that admitted. This is a stroke of genius, and if Democrats reject this chance to get a partial free ship bill it seems to me they will never get another. You may make such use of this letter as you care to."

from the north—right in New England, too—comes a strong expression of hostility "to letting any foreign built ships under our flag, much less to any subsidy, so long as we have shipbuilding material and builders to put it together in ships the equal of the best the world over." But this writer further says: "What I hope most to see result from a subsidy bill is the construction of ships of the very highest speed, capable of outsteaming anything else afloat. These are the kind of ships we need and just as many of them as we can get. Don't be influenced by the clamor for 'tramps.' This is not a country where 'tramps' are welcome. We want something more respectable and more useful. One has but to go back to the Spanish-American war and remember the invaluable services of the swift steamships of our only line in the Atlantic trade to be able to realize the superior value of the very swiftest ships."

Senator Hanna's characteristic remark after reading over these suggestions was that they indicated that the object lessons of the Spanish-American war were by no means lost upon our intelligent citizens, and that patriotism is still far above partisanship with a vast majority of our people. J. B. ACRES.

FILIPINOS ORDERED DEPORTED.

Mabini and Others to Be Deported to Guam.

Manila, Jan. 8.—General MacArthur ordered the deportation of Generals Ricarte, Del Pilar, Hizon, Llanera and Santos to the island of Guam. Nine regimental and four subordinate officers, with eight civilians, including Trias, Teeson and Mabini, notorious assistants of the insurrectionists, have also been ordered to be deported. It is General MacArthur's intention to hold most of the active leaders of the rebels, who have been captured in Guam until the resumption of a condition of peace has been declared.

"It appears from reports of the wounded who have arrived at Hell-brown that a detachment 120 strong, belonging to Knox's command, came into contact with a superior force near Lindley. I regret to say that Lieutenant Laing, two other officers and 15 men were killed and two officers and 20 men wounded. No details have come from Knox of this action."

19 KNOWN DEAD.

Horrible Fire In an Orphan Asylum.

FEARED THAT OTHERS PERISHED.

Terrific Explosion Occurred, After the Fire Was Discovered by Two Men Passing the Institution in Rochester, N. Y. Persons Were at Work.

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 8.—Fire broke out in the hospital section of the Rochester orphan asylum about 1 o'clock this morning on Habbell park and the flames spread rapidly to other sections of the institution. It is known that 19 of the children perished and it is feared that many more victims may be reported later.

The fire was first discovered by two men passing the asylum. They hastily sent in an alarm and then turned their attention toward arousing the nurses and the children. A terrific explosion was then heard and in a moment the entire hospital section was in flames. On the arrival of the fire apparatus a general alarm was sent in, calling out the entire department. The smoke began to pour out of every window in the main building and the screams and frantic cries of the children could be heard. The work of rescue began with a will. Children and nurses were carried from the building, all in an unconscious condition, some dead. Ambulances from the city, St. Mary's, Homeopathic and Hahnemann hospitals were summoned and the victims were removed to the several institutions.

There were 199 children at the hospital and a corps of about 30 nurses and attendants. Two of the women attendants are among the dead.

The origin of the fire is not known at this time. The property loss will probably exceed $20,000.

APPEAL FOR FERRELL.

Formal Application For Clemency Made to the Ohio State Board of Pardons.

Columbus, O., Jan. 8.—Formal application for clemency for Rosslyn H. Ferrell, under sentence of death for the murder of Express Messenger Lane last August, was filed with the state board of pardons. The application sets up the grounds of youth of the prisoner, his age being 22; his previous good character; good conduct since arrest; his circumstances at the time of the crime, which is held to have unbalanced his mind; that he was convicted on his own plea of guilty; doubt that the jury was free from prejudice; the claim that his mind was sufficiently unbalanced to entitle him to clemency, although not insane.

The board of pardons will meet in special session to hear the appeal on Thursday.

SALT WATER BLOOD.

An Operation That Is the Saving of Many Human Lives.

Transfusion of blood is a procedure that must have been employed by physicians in very early times. Ovid tells of Medea bringing back youth to the aged by the injection into their veins of the blood of young men, and doubtless the same means was employed by physicians for less fantastic objects. The injection of the blood of one person into the veins of another was until recently done to save life after severe hemorrhage and in various forms of blood poisoning. Sometimes a direct communication was made between the veins of the donor and of the recipient by means of a tube. At other times the healthy subject was bled into a bowl and the blood was beaten to remove the fibrin before it was passed into the blood vessels of the patient.

It is found that the blood when defibrinated is no longer a living fluid, and the corpuscles it contains serve no useful purpose when injected, but rather act as foreign matter which must be got rid of. Accordingly physicians now use distilled water in which a definite proportion of common salt and other chlorides have been dissolved. This solution is warmed and is injected slowly into a vein at the bend of the elbow, about a quart being used.

Often it is not even necessary to pour the fluid into a vein, but simply to inject it through one or more hollow needles into the tissues beneath the skin of the abdomen or the thigh.

This is done not only to supply an equivalent for fluid lost in hemorrhage or cholera, but also in certain diseases in which blood poisoning exists. In this latter case a large amount of fluid is injected slowly, and being taken up by the blood is almost immediately excreted through the kidneys, carrying with it much of the poison which the blood was unable to rid itself of unaided.

This operation has been felicitously called "blood washing," for this is what it really is, and to the process humanity owes the saving of many lives.

Imprisoned by an Ostrich.

A guardsman in the reserve of officers who is better known for his swaggar than his brains had an unfortunate experience in South Africa.

He was stationed about 100 miles from Cape Town at a remount depot. One morning a farmer stopped him as he was taking a constitutional and warned him against crossing an inclosure containing a cock ostrich which had become bad tempered. The guardsman said that no ostrich ever hatched would turn him out of his way and went on unmoved.

As he had not returned home four hours afterward his brother officers were alarmed and sent out search parties. What was their surprise to discover him lying on his back unhurt, with a cock ostrich sitting on his chest.

The bird had knocked him down each time he had tried to rise, but could not hurt him while he lay flat on his back. Yet leave his enemy he declined to do and therefore sat quietly upon him until driven off by the rescue party.—London Express.

HER SUMMONS CAME.

A SIGN IN WHICH MRS. GALLUP READ HER DEATH WARRANT.

She Dropped the Dishcloth and After That Fatal Warning Spent the Balance of the Evening in Telling Mr. Gallup How She Thought He Ought to Run the Funeral.

As Mr. Gallup lighted his tin lantern after supper and started out to buy half a pound of Rio coffee for breakfast and call at the postoffice Mrs. Gallup was in excellent spirits and had most of the dishes ready for washing. He was absent 32 minutes, and when he arrived home he found her huddled up in the big rocking chair, with a pillow behind her head and the camphor bottle in her hand. She took three long sniffs at the bottle and gave three long drawn sighs as he entered, but it was labor thrown away. Mr. Gallup blew out his lantern and hung it up behind the cellar door, and, having deposited the coffee on a shelf in the pantry, he removed and hung up his coat and hat, sat down and took off his shoes and then, taking a circular from his pocket and putting on his glasses with great deliberation, began to read. It was a circular regarding a new discovery in the cure of consumption, and he had not yet finished with the first testimonial when Mrs. Gallup sobbed four times in succession and faintly asked: "Samuel Gallup, do you know that your dyin' wife is present in the room?" He made no reply. That testimonial from one who had been cured after his coffin had been purchased made him hold his breath as he read. "Yes; she is present," dolefully continued Mrs. Gallup after several sniffs huddled up in the big rocking chair at the bottle, "and she wants to hev a few last words with you. When you started over town, I was singin' 'Barbara Allen' and thinkin' my days might be long in this land. Not five minits later the summons come. I had just started to wash the dishes, and I had that cracked blue platter in my hand, but I hadn't gin it over two wipes when the dishcloth fell to the floor with a great spat. You are hearin' what I say, ain't you, Samuel?"

Mr. Gallup wasn't. He was devouring the second testimonial, which gave the case of a woman who had been given up by over 50 doctors, and yet two bottles furnished her with a new pair of lungs.

"When that dishcloth fell, I knew that my time had come. That's the way Mrs. Grover and Mrs. Taylor went. Their dishcloths fell, and in 24 hours they was in heaven. I shall be up there by tomorrow night, Samuel, while you'll be free to stay out all night to hear the political news. I'd hev died before you come back home, only I wanted to talk with you a leetle about the funeral. Let's see. If I die tonight, you'll hold the funeral day after tomorrow, won't you, at 2 o'clock in the afternoo'n?"

Mr. Gallup was listening to a noise outside. He heard something to remind him of a hen trying to crow, and he wondered if it could be that so long after dark.

"If you want it a day sooner, you can hev it," continued Mrs. Gallup after sobs and gasps and sniffs at the bottle, "but you must look out or the nayburs will talk. Better hev it day after tomorrow, and I hope, for your sake, it won't be a rainy day. I've sometimes thought I'd like a big funeral when I went, with over 40 wagons in the purcession and the church bell a-tollin and the dogs a-howlin, but I've given that up. No, Samuel, you needn't make any spread over me. I'm one of the kind that kin go to heaven without any hurrah and fireworks. If there is ten wagons in the purcession, I shall be satisfied. Don't you think ten ought to be 'nuff for a person like me?"

It wasn't a direct question, but had it been Mr. Gallup would not have answered. He was devouring the third testimonial and making up his mind to try a bottle on the sly.

"Ten wagons in the purcession, Samuel, and the bells needn't toll nor nuthin else happen. If anybody is diggin taters or makin soft soap or dyein carpet rags, they needn't stop on my account. If 25 people come to the house, that will be 'nuff. We've got 'leven chairs altogether, countin them with broken backs, and Mrs. Walters will lend you the rest. You'll hev our own preacher, of course, but he needn't go on for an hour or two and tell how good I was and how much you'll miss me. If he says that my toil is o'er, and that you won't never find a more savin' wife, that'll be about 'nuff. Shall you do any cryin at the funeral, Samuel?"

No answer.

"I'd do a leetle bit if I was you—jest a leetle. If you don't, folks will talk about it same as they did about Jim Dewitt. He never cried at all, and to this day folks say he didn't use Hanner right. I don't ask you to break down and sob and git up an excitement, but you kin gasp a few times and wipe your eyes and blow your nose. I'm sorry you'll hev to take that long ride to the graveyard, as you could be playin checkers or sunthin, but I don't see how you are to git out of it. However, you won't never hev to go up there ag'in. When you git ready to buy me a gravestun, you kin send it up by a man. I s'pose you'll buy a stun of some sort, won't you?"

Mr. Gallup didn't hear. In the fourth testimonial a man declared that he had been saved after one whole lung and three-quarters of the other were gone, and it was a sketch to thrill the reader clear down to his toes.

"Of course I don't keer about no gravestun for myself," said Mrs. Gallup as she tried to wipe away her tears with the glass stopper of the bottle, "but if you don't put one up the nayburs will call you stingy. Get a cheap one, however. If you kin git one fur $10 and trade a lot of carpet rags in, I'd do it. I used to think I wanted a whole lot of readin on my gravestun, but I've changed my mind. Jest put on that Susan Gallup expired in the forty-ninth year of her age of general disability and that she has found rest where asthma, boils, backaches and rheumatiz cease from troublin. You needn't say a word about makin 40 yards of rag carpet and a bar'l of soft soap last year while enjoyin sore eyes and a boil on my arm or that I allus kept catnip, smartweed and pepper-mint herbs in the house and was a nurse to all the nayburs. No, Samuel, you needn't—say a word—about them things. Make it—a cheap—gravestun, and you needn't—never go up there—and—and—"

And when Mr. Gallup had finished

the testimonials and fully determined to buy at least three bottles and hide them in the wood shed he rose up, yawned and stretched and looked around to find Mrs. Gallup asleep and the camphor wasted on the floor.

THERE WASN'T ANY ROW.

It Was Simply a Case of Spontaneous Combustion.

He was a very young man, almost too young to be out on the street at that time of the night, 8:30 p. m., and his general appearance indicated that he had been picked up by a cyclone somewhere during his meanderings. He was not utterly demoralized, but there was something in his manner that would lead the close observer to the conclusion that all had not been well with him.

"Gee!" he exclaimed as he spun around the corner and went bump into a policeman.

"Hello," ejaculated that worthy, instinctively grabbing at him; "what's the row?"

"There wasn't any," responded the youth.

"What are you running like that for?" persisted the policeman.

"I've just been up against a case of spontaneous combustion."

"You look too green to burn," chuckled the bluecoat.

"It's on me, just the same. My girl lives around the corner, and I went to see her. I thought it was all—"

"Where does the combustion come in?" interrupted the officer.

"Come out, you mean," corrected the youth.

"Come off!" exclaimed the officer. "Tell me what the row is before I chase you."

"Well, that's what I'm trying to do," pleaded the boy. "The girl's old man and I don't harmonize a little bit, and when he met me at the door he fired me so suddenly that I had vertigo. If you don't call that spontaneous combustion, what the dickens do you call it?"

"Oh, excuse me," apologized the policeman, "you run along home and get into your trundle bed!" and the bluecoat gently wafted the remnant on its way.—Detroit Free Press.

Woeful Ignorance.

Farmer—See here, you! You remember putting two lightning rods on my barn last spring, don't you? Well, that barn was struck six weeks after and burned down.

Peddler—Struck by lightning?

"It was."

"In the daytime?"

"No; at night."

"Must 'a been a dark night, wasn't it?"

"Yes; dark as pitch."

"Lanterns burnin'?"

"What lanterns?"

"Didn't you run lanterns up 'em on dark nights?"

"Never heard of anything like that."

"Well, if you don't know enough to keep your lightning rods showin you needn't blame me. G-lang!"—New York Weekly.

Forewarned.

A Yorkshire vicar tells how he once received the following note from one of his parishioners: "This is to give notice that I and Miss Jemima Brearley are coming to your church on Saturday afternoon next to undergo the operation of matrimony at your hands. Please be prompt, as the cab is hired by the hour. Forewarned is forearmed."—London Tit-Bits.

HAUNTED HIS DEATH.

Breth Went Through Hazing Motions In Deathbed.

HE AND BOOZ BADLY TREATED.

Shocking Testimony of Members of the Dead Breth's Family—Sister Sent For Some of Dead Boy's Letters—Ex-Cadet Burnham One of the Witnesses.

Philadelphia, Jan. 8.—According to the testimony adduced before the congressional investigating committee, which is inquiring into the charges of hazing at the West Point military academy, Oscar L. Booz, of Bristol, Pa., and John E. Breth, of Altoona, Pa., had a rough time of it during their "plebe" year at that institution. The star witness of the day was former Cadet Anthony J. Burnham, Jr., son of Judge Burnham, of the court of appeals of the state of Kentucky, who was Booz's tent mate while in camp. The committee also heard for the first time testimony in regard to the experiences of Breth from the lips of his father, brothers and sisters.

Said Booz Was a Good Fellow.

Burnham, who was dismissed from the academy for deficiency in studies, said Booz became unpopular after his first fight with Keller. Personally he was a good fellow, but the cadet of the upper classes always hunted him as a coward. During the 12 months Burnham was at the academy there were 10 fights, and as far as he knew no one was punished. Abused cadets, he said, feared to make complaints, because they felt the hazers would make life all the more miserable for them. Booz, while in their tent, had told him of how upper class men had compelled him to swallow tobacco sauce under penalty of being "called out." The fourth class men were allowed their liberty on Saturday afternoons, according to the regulations, but the upper class men would not allow them to leave camp. If they disobeyed them, the "plebes," as a rule, would be punished for it.

The case of John Breth, of Altoona, Pa., who died from an ailment which, it is alleged, he received indirectly as a result of hazing at West Point, was taken up. The first witness called was Dr. E. E. Goodman, of Altoona, the Breth family physician. Dr. Goodman said Breth entered West Point in June, 1897, and died last October. His physical condition before entering the military academy was excellent. Dr. Goodman treated him two weeks after he came home from West Point for hemorrhoids. Later on young Breth went to Pittsburgh, where he was employed as a salesman by a Pittsburgh tobacco house. He returned home two months later suffering from nervousness and insomnia, but soon returned to Pittsburgh. Last October he again treated him for typhoid pneumonia, from which he died. Young Breth never told Dr. Goodman anything about the hazing at West Point. All the information the doctor had come to him from the boy's family. He became very nervous about a year after he returned from West Point and the physician often wondered what could have caused it.

Eating Soap Could Have Caused It.

It had been reported that Breth was compelled to eat soap at West Point. The doctor knew nothing about that, but if the boy had eaten soap it would have explained his physical condition on his return home.

Samuel J. Breth, father of Cadet Breth, testified that his son was appointed by Congressman Hicks, in March, 1897, and was dismissed from the academy because of deficiency in mathematics. In January, 1898, Mr. Breth said members of the family had received letters from the son in regard to hardships at West Point. The father and mother knew that the boys at the academy were more or less hazed, and Cadet Breth and his brother Harry had an understanding between them that if he had anything to write about hardships John would write to Harry only, so that the parents would not worry. He said Harry and one of the daughters visited John at the academy in August, 1897, and on their return home they said John had been severely hazed and that he had nervous prostration. At West Point John told them he had been so severely hazed that he became unconscious. The only one that was mentioned as being among the hazers was a cadet named Bender. The father was questioned at length as to what the cadet told him of the hazing, but the young man, it appears, said little to the parents. He told his brothers and sister more, and they kept the information from them. The father learned from the son, Harry, that John had been "choked almost." On his death bed, the father said, the boy went through the "choo-chooing" motions.

Wanted the Original Letters.

Harry Breth, the brother, was called and offered to submit copies of extracts of letters he received from John. The committee decided that it wanted the originals, which are now at the Breth homestead in Altoona. He was excused until the letters could be produced, and in order that Miss Rosa M. Breth, a sister, might return home and send them to the committee her testimony was then taken. She received a letter from her brother while he was in West Point hospital, in which he said the surgeon told him that he had a light attack of nervous prostration from overwork. John, however, told other members of the family when they visited him at West Point that his condition was due to hazing. John said he was hazed three times in one night. John wrote home that he had to eat eight slices of bread soaked in molasses. On his death bed he told her that "West Point is the cause of the breakdown in my health." He mentioned the names of Bender, Wood and Yonge as being "awful hazers."

While in the hospital, she said, John told her that he was visited by upper class men and told "that he had better get out of here tomorrow." In his last illness John told Harry some things of what took place in the hospital to make Harry believe Cadet Breth was even subjected to hazing in the hospital. This completed Miss Rosa Breth's testimony, and she left later for Altoona.

After Robert B. Wallace, who was one of Oscar Booz's instructors in a private school in this city, had told of Oscar's good record as a scholar, William A. Breth, another brother of John Breth, took the stand.

William's story was substantially as follows:

When John came home he told him that he had to do so much "corging" that he often became exhausted and until his muscles felt like leather. A cadet named Bender made him sit on the point of a bayonet until he fell off. He was made to sit on it again, and during this operation Bender played a violin. On another occasion, a hot July day, after a hard day's drill, he was compelled to don a rain coat and hold out dumb bells. On a Saturday all cadets were given a certain amount of liberty, but Bender prevented him from leaving camp. His brother made a complaint about it, which resulted in Bender exercising him more severely. He regarded "feeling inspection" as a joke. One night he was dragged out of bed, leaving the bedclothes behind him, and was dragged over rough stones in the company street. On another occasion he was so exhaustively exercised that on the next morning the officer in charge of the drill compelled him to drop out of line because of his weakness. One time John was on guard and Bender refused to give the sign of recognition as he passed, which was a breach of the regulations. He reported Bender, and the latter said he would make him fight, but the threat was never carried out. His brother considered West Point military academy the best in the world, but said the upper class men ran the place.

Witness in Danger of Being in Contempt.

Lucien H. Alexander, secretary of the board of examiners for the admission of law students to the bar, was called for the purpose of testifying to Booz's application for admission, and got into a legal tangle with the committee as to whether Booz passed the examination. Mr. Alexander explained that the courts of Philadelphia had made a rule that the matter of how students came out of an examination should not be made public, and he considered he would be in contempt of court if he divulged the information, although he was willing to make a personal application to the court for a rule permitting him to do so. The committee decided that he must choose between being in contempt of the courts of Philadelphia or the United States house of representatives, and he was given until 11 o'clock today to decide.

Mary G. Breth, another sister of Breth, was called and corroborated the testimony of other members of the family. She said her brother told her that one night he was hazed by three separate sets of cadets. He stood the first two, but fainted during the third act of hazing. When he regained consciousness he saw several men rubbing him. They appeared to be greatly frightened. Miss Breth also said that her brother, in speaking of hazing, said he "often ate soap," and "chewed rope ends," at West Point. Miss Breth said her brother did not know Father O'Keefe, who testified before the military

It was intended to meet again this morning.

LODGE MADE A SPEECH.

He Spoke on Philippine Question—Predicted Great Commercial Future for United States.

Washington, Jan. 8.—A notable speech was delivered during the course of the session of the senate by Mr. Lodge, of Massachusetts. Addressing the senate on the amendment of the military committee striking out the provision in the army reorganization bill for a veterinary corps, he discussed briefly and principally in the form of a colloquy with Senator Bacon, of Georgia, the Philippine question and the necessity for an army of 100,000 men. In conclusion he drew a brilliant word picture of the commercial future of the United States, declaring that the trade conflict with Europe already begun could result only in the commercial and economic supremacy of this country over the entire world. In this industrial conflict he apprehended no danger from a material contest with any nation of the world, but he urged the necessity for a strong and scientifically organized army and a powerful navy in order that the United States might be prepared to defend its rights against any possible foe. The speech created a profound impression.

During the course of the session the senate ratified the committee proposition to eliminate the house provision for the establishment of a veterinary corps in the army. Senator Teller, of Colorado, gave notice of a substitute he will offer to the entire pending measure, continuing in full force and effect the act of March 3, 1899, increasing the size of the army for three years, from July 1, 1901.

AGREED ON TIME TO VOTE.

Balloting on Reapportionment Bill May Occur Today.

Washington, Jan. 8.—It was agreed Monday that the final vote in the house on the reapportionment of representation from the various states would be taken before the session closed today. It was expected there would be a sequel Monday to the exciting clash of Saturday between Mr. Littlefield, of Maine, and Mr. Hopkins, of Illinois. But the latter made no effort at rejoinder and contented himself with the direction of the measure toward the final vote. He expressed confidence that the bill bearing his name will be passed today, although there might be a slight change, giving an additional member to Florida, Colorado and North Dakota, bringing the total membership up to 300. The notable speeches Monday were by Mr. Crumacker, of Indiana, dealing with alleged disfranchisement in the south; by Mr. Hepburn, of Iowa, severely arraigning the present rules as annihilating the constitutional prerogatives of the house, and by Mr. Grow, of Pennsylvania, comparing the old system in the house with that of the present.

W. J. BRYAN WAS PRESENT.

He Made a Speech at a Banquet in Omaha—Tillman Also One of the Orators.

Omaha, Jan. 8.—The tenth annual banquet of the Jacksonian club, of Nebraska, was held at the Millard hotel last night. The occasion was one of interest on account of the presence of the Hon. William J. Bryan, who responded to the toast "Democracy," and of Senator Benjamin R. Tillman, whose address was on "The Democratic Party: Its Duty and Destiny." Others also spoke.

100 BOYS MASSACRED.

Many of Them Cling to Christianity In Spite of Chinese Tortures.

London, Jan. 8.—A Sister of Charity, writing from the Maison De Jesu Infant, at Ning Po, Nov. 20, described the massacre at Nan King of 100 little boys. Some of them, she says, were roasted alive in the church. Others escaped to the orphanage, outside the city, but all were killed and the place burned.

"Despite threats of torture and the frequency of most painful death," the Sister declares, "apostasy was wonderfully rare."

A Pastor Elected.

Greensburg, Pa., Jan. 8.—The Rev. Stanley Krebs, of Reading, has been unanimously elected pastor of the First Reformed church here.

MAY ARREST PALMER.

WARRANT FOR MULTI-MILLIONAIRE

Frank Hall Appeared in a Justice's Court and Made a Charge Against Him. If Convicted, He May Be Fined $200 or Less.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—Potter Palmer, multi-millionaire, social leader and proprietor of the Palmer house, may be arrested today by Constable H. B. Goodrich, of Justice Everett's court, on a charge of keeping the saloon in his hotel open on Sunday. The warrant for the arrest of Mr. Palmer was issued by Justice Everett upon complaint of Frank Hall, who recently endeavored to close the Sunday theaters.

Mr. Hall appeared in the justice's court and swore that Potter Palmer, "on Jan. 6, 1901, did keep open a tipping house, or a place where liquor was sold or given away, upon the first day of the week, to wit: the aforesaid date commonly known as Sunday." In event of conviction upon this charge Mr. Palmer may be fined $200 or less.

A GIRL KILLED.

Tenth Pennsylvania Veteran Accidentally Shot Her Near Waynesburg, Pa.

Waynesburg, Pa., Jan. 8.—Vernon Kelley, constable of Franklin township, went to the home of Miss Anna Clark and her sister to lend them a revolver. Kelley attempted to show the young women how to use the weapon, and, thinking that all of the chambers were empty, began snapping the hammer. He pointed the revolver at Miss Anna and pulled the trigger. The hammer fell on a loaded cartridge, the ball entering the girl's breast, and she died almost instantly. Miss Clark was a respected young woman. She was employed in the Waynesburg Democrat office, and was a student in the Waynesburg business college.

Kelley served with Company K, Tenth regiment, in the Philippines, and was wounded in battle. A week or two ago he narrowly escaped being killed by a gas explosion, in which he was injured. He was almost crazed over the occurrence and at once walked to Waynesburg and had himself placed in jail.

FUNERAL OF P. D. ARMOUR.

It Is Expected to Be Held Tomorrow Afternoon—Rev. Dr. Gunsaulus to Preach.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—The funeral of the late Philip D. Armour, it was expected, will be held about 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, at the home, No. 2115 Prairie avenue. Those who desire to look upon the face of Mr. Armour will be given the opportunity prior to the funeral. The body will lie in state at the Armour home from 9 o'clock in the morning until noon.

While the holding of the funeral from the house will necessarily restrict the number in attendance, all of the Armour employes in Chicago, who number thousands, will be invited to view the body during the morning hours.

Rev. Frank W. Gunsaulus will preach the funeral sermon. The burial will be in the family lot at Graceland cemetery, and the pallbearers will be business associates of the deceased.

On the day of the funeral all of the plants and offices of the Armour company in Chicago and other cities will be closed for the entire day.

REMEMBERED M'GLYNN.

Anniversary Memorial Meeting in Cooper Union—Ducey Sent Regrets, as Did Rev. Dr. Heber Newton.

New York, Jan. 8.—An anniversary memorial meeting was held last night in Cooper Union in honor of the Rev. Dr. Edward McGlynn, who died about a year ago. The meeting was held under the joint auspices of the Peoples Institute and the Dr. McGlynn Memorial association. Charles Sprague Smith presided. A letter was read from Father Ducey, regretting his inability to be present, and recalling the virtues and the devotion of Father McGlynn to his church. A telegram from Dr. R. Heber Newton was also read, asking the chairman to assume the great priest. "Such a man was made by Sylvester L. Moberg, president of the Memorial association, Lawson Perdy, the Rev. Father Russell Henry George, Jr., Charles Frederick Adams and John S. Crosby.

MURDERED IN HER HOME.

A Zanesville Woman Beaten to Death. Negro Barber Under Arrest.

Zanesville, O., Jan. 8.—Mrs. Vina Grady, aged 30, was murdered at her home, and Adrian Madison, a colored barber who was seen coming from the house with his clothing covered with blood, is charged with the crime. A blunt instrument, which has not been found, was used. Madison is said to have been infatuated with the woman.

The negro denies that he killed the woman, but admits having been in the house. A year ago, it is said, he tried to commit suicide because the woman refused his attentions. Mrs. Grady's husband, who is in Columbus, left her, it is alleged, because of the notoriety she gained through Madison's infatuation.

President McKinley to Speak.

New York, Jan. 8.—General O. O. Howard announced at a meeting of the Peoples Choral union in Cooper Union that President McKinley was to be one of the speakers at the celebration of the birth of Abraham Lincoln, to be held at Carnegie hall the evening of Feb. 11. Governor Odell will preside. Colonel Henry Watterson, of Louisville, will deliver a lecture on Lincoln and Fred E. Brooks will read a poem on Lincoln.

HAUNTED HIS DEATH.

Breth Went Through Hazing Motions In Deathbed.

HE AND BOOZ BADLY TREATED.

Shocking Testimony of Members of the Dead Breth's Family—Sister Sent For Some of Dead Boy's Letters—Ex-Cadet Burnham One of the Witnesses.

Philadelphia, Jan. 8.—According to the testimony adduced before the congressional investigating committee, which is inquiring into the charges of hazing at the West Point military academy, Oscar L. Booz, of Bristol, Pa., and John E. Breth, of Altoona, Pa., had a rough time of it during their "plebe" year at that institution. The star witness of the day was former Cadet Anthony J. Burnham, Jr., son of Judge Burnham, of the court of appeals of the state of Kentucky, who was Booz's tent mate while in camp. The committee also heard for the first time testimony in regard to the experiences of Breth from the lips of his father, brothers and sisters.

Said Booz Was a Good Fellow.

Burnham, who was dismissed from the academy for deficiency in studies, said Booz became unpopular after his first fight with Keller. Personally he was a good fellow, but the cadet of the upper classes always hunted him as a coward. During the 12 months Burnham was at the academy there were 10 fights, and as far as he knew no one was punished. Abused cadets, he said, feared to make complaints, because they felt the hazers would make life all the more miserable for them. Booz, while in their tent, had told him of how upper class men had compelled him to swallow tobacco sauce under penalty of being "called out." The fourth class men were allowed their liberty on Saturday afternoons, according to the regulations, but the upper class men would not allow them to leave camp. If they disobeyed them, the "plebes," as a rule, would be punished for it.

The case of John Breth, of Altoona, Pa., who died from an ailment which, it is alleged, he received indirectly as a result of hazing at West Point, was taken up. The first witness called was Dr. E. E. Goodman, of Altoona, the Breth family physician. Dr. Goodman said Breth entered West Point in June, 1897, and died last October. His physical condition before entering the military academy was excellent. Dr. Goodman treated him two weeks after he came home from West Point for hemorrhoids. Later on young Breth went to Pittsburgh, where he was employed as a salesman by a Pittsburgh tobacco house. He returned home two months later suffering from nervousness and insomnia, but soon returned to Pittsburgh. Last October he again treated him for tenfold pneumonia, from which he died. Young Breth never told Dr. Goodman anything about the hazing at West Point. All the information the doctor had come to him from the boy's family. He became very nervous about a year after he returned from West Point and the physician often wondered what could have caused it.

Eating Soap Could Have Caused It.

It had been reported that Breth was compelled to eat soap at West Point. The doctor knew nothing about that, but if the boy had eaten soap it would have explained his physical condition on his return home.

Samuel J. Breth, father of Cadet Breth, testified that his son was appointed by Congressman Hicks, in March, 1897, and was dismissed from the academy because of deficiency in mathematics, in January, 1898. Mr. Breth said members of the family had received letters from the son in regard to hardships at West Point. The father and mother knew that the boys at the academy were more or less hazed, and Cadet Breth and his brother Harry had an understanding between them that if he had anything to write about hardships John would write to Henry only, so that the parents would not worry. He said Harry and one of the daughters visited John at the academy in August, 1897, and on their return home they said John had been severely hazed and that he had nervous prostration. At West Point John told them he had been so severely hazed that he became unconscious. The only one that was mentioned as being among the hazers was a cadet named Bender. The father was questioned at length as to what the cadet told him of the hazing, but the young man, it appears, said little to the parents. He told his brothers and sister more, and they kept the information from them. The father learned from the son, Harry, that John had been "choked almost." On his death bed, the father said, the boy went through the "choo-chooing" motions.

Wanted the Original Letters.

Harry Breth, the brother, was called and offered to submit copies of extracts of letters he received from John. The committee decided that it wanted the originals, which are now at the Breth homestead in Altoona. He was excused until the letters could be produced, and in order that Miss Rosa M. Breth, a sister, might return home and send them to the committee her testimony was then taken. She received a letter from her brother while he was in West Point hospital, in which he said the surgeon told him that he had a light attack of nervous prostration from overwork. John, however, told other members of the family when they visited him at West Point that his condition was due to hazing. John said he was hazed three times in one night. John wrote home that he had to eat eight slices of bread soaked in molasses. On his death bed he told her that "West Point is the cause of the breakdown in my health." He mentioned the names of Bender, Wood and Yonge as being "awful hazers."

While in the hospital, she said, John told her that he was visited by upper class men and told "that he had better get out of here tomorrow." In his last illness John told Harry some things of what took place in the hospital to make Harry believe Cadet Breth was even subjected to hazing in the hospital. This completed Miss Rosa Breth's testimony, and she left later for Altoona.

After Robert B. Wallace, who was one of Oscar Booz's instructors in a private school in this city, had told of Oscar's good record as a scholar, William A. Breth, another brother of John Breth, took the stand.

William's story was substantially as follows:

When John came home he told him that he had to do so much "curling" that he often became exhausted and until his muscles felt like leather. A cadet named Bender made him sit on the point of a bayonet until he fell off. He was made to sit on it again, and during this operation Bender played a violin. On another occasion, a hot July day, after a hard day's drill, he was compelled to don a rain coat and hold out dumb bells. On a Saturday all cadets were given a certain amount of liberty, but Bender prevented him from leaving camp. His brother made a complaint about it, which resulted in Bender exercising him more severely. He regarded "feeling inspection" as a joke. One night he was dragged out of bed, leaving the bedclothes behind him, and was dragged over rough stones in the company street. On another occasion he was so exhaustively exercised that on the next morning the officer in charge of the drill compelled him to drop out of line because of his weakness. One time John was on guard and Bender refused to give the sign of recognition as he passed, which was a breach of the regulations. He reported Bender, and the latter said he would make him fight, but the threat was never carried out. His brother considered West Point military academy the best in the world, but said the upper class men ran the place.

Witness in Danger of Being in Contempt.

Lucien H. Alexander, secretary of the board of examiners for the admission of law students to the bar, was called for the purpose of testifying to Booz's application for admission, and got into a legal tangle with the committee as to whether Booz passed the examination. Mr. Alexander explained that the courts of Philadelphia had made a rule that the matter of how students came out of an examination should not be made public, and he considered he would be in contempt of court if he divulged the information, although he was willing to make a personal application to the court for a rule permitting him to do so. The committee decided that he must choose between being in contempt of the courts of Philadelphia or the United States house of representatives, and he was given until 11 o'clock today to decide.

Mary G. Breth, another sister of Breth, was called and corroborated the testimony of other members of the family. She said her brother told her that one night he was hazed by three separate sets of cadets. He stood the first two, but fainted during the third act of hazing. When he regained consciousness he saw several men rubbing him. They appeared to be greatly frightened. Miss Breth also said that her brother, in speaking of hazing, said he "often ate soap," and "behave rope ends," at West Point. Miss Breth said her brother did not know Father O'Keefe, who testified before the military

It was intended to meet again this morning.

LODGE MADE A SPEECH.

He Spoke on Philippine Question—Predicted Great Commercial Future for United States.

Washington, Jan. 8.—A notable speech was delivered during the course of the session of the senate by Mr. Lodge, of Massachusetts. Addressing the senate on the amendment of the military committee striking out the provision in the army reorganization bill for a veterinary corps, he discussed briefly and principally in the form of a colloquy with Senator Bacon, of Georgia, the Philippine question and the necessity for an army of 100,000 men. In conclusion he drew a brilliant word picture of the commercial future of the United States, declaring that the trade conflict with Europe already begun could result only in the commercial and economic supremacy of this country over the entire world. In this industrial conflict he apprehended no danger from a material contest with any nation of the world, but he urged the necessity for a strong and scientifically organized army and a powerful navy in order that the United States might be prepared to defend its rights against any possible foe. The speech created a profound impression.

During the course of the session the senate ratified the committee proposition to eliminate the house provision for the establishment of a veterinary corps in the army. Senator Teller, of Colorado, gave notice of a substitute he will offer to the entire pending measure, continuing in full force and effect the act of March 3, 1899, increasing the size of the army, for three years, from July 1, 1901.

AGREED ON TIME TO VOTE.

Balloting on Reapportionment Bill May Occur Today.

Washington, Jan. 8.—It was agreed Monday that the final vote in the house on the reapportionment of representation from the various states would be taken before the session closed today. It was expected there would be a sequel Monday to the exciting clash of Saturday between Mr. Littlefield, of Maine, and Mr. Hopkins, of Illinois. But the latter made no effort at rejoinder and contented himself with the direction of the measure toward the final vote. He expressed confidence that the bill bearing his name will be passed today, although there might be a slight change, giving an additional member to Florida, Colorado and North Dakota, bringing the total membership up to 390. The notable speeches Monday were by Mr. Crumacker, of Indiana, dealing with alleged disfranchisement in the south; by Mr. Hepburn, of Iowa, severely arraigning the present rules as annihilating the constitutional prerogatives of the house, and by Mr. Grow, of Pennsylvania, comparing the old system in the house with that of the present.

W. J. BRYAN WAS PRESENT.

He Made a Speech at a Banquet in Omaha—Tillman Also One of the Orators.

Omaha, Jan. 8.—The tenth annual banquet of the Jacksonian club, of Nebraska, was held at the Millard hotel last night. The occasion was one of interest on account of the presence of the Hon. William J. Bryan, who responded to the toast "Democracy," and of Senator Benjamin R. Tillman, whose address was on "The Democratic Party: Its Duty and Destiny." Others also spoke.

100 BOYS MASSACRED.

Many of Them Cling to Christianity In Spite of Chinese Tortures.

London, Jan. 8.—A Sister of Charity, writing from the Maison De Jesu Infant, at Ning Po, Nov. 20, described the massacre at Nan King of 100 little boys. Some of them, she says, were roasted alive in the church. Others escaped to the orphanage, outside the city, but all were killed and the place burned.

"Despite threats of torture and the frequency of most painful death," the Sister declares, "apostasy was wonderfully rare."

A Pastor Elected.

Greensburg, Pa., Jan. 8.—The Rev. Stanley Krebs, of Reading, has been unanimously elected pastor of the First Reformed church here.

In event of conviction upon this charge Mr. Palmer may be fined $200 or less.

A GIRL KILLED.

Tenth Pennsylvania Veteran Accidentally Shot Her Near Waynesburg, Pa.

Waynesburg, Pa., Jan. 8.—Vernon Kelley, constable of Franklin township, went to the home of Miss Anna Clark and her sister to lend them a revolver. Kelley attempted to show the young women how to use the weapon, and, thinking that all of the chambers were empty, began snapping the hammer. He pointed the revolver at Miss Anna and pulled the trigger. The hammer fell on a loaded cartridge, the ball entering the girl's breast, and she died almost instantly. Miss Clark was a respected young woman. She was employed in the Waynesburg Democrat office, and was a student in the Waynesburg business college.

Kelley served with Company K, Tenth regiment, in the Philippines, and was wounded in battle. A week or two ago he narrowly escaped being killed by a gas explosion, in which he was injured. He was almost crazed over the occurrence and at once walked to Waynesburg and had himself placed in jail.

FUNERAL OF P. D. ARMOUR.

It Is Expected to Be Held Tomorrow Afternoon—Rev. Dr. Gunsaulus to Preach.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—The funeral of the late Philip D. Armour, it was expected, will be held about 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, at the home, No. 2115 Prairie avenue. Those who desire to look upon the face of Mr. Armour will be given the opportunity prior to the funeral. The body will lie in state at the Armour home from 9 o'clock in the morning until noon.

The meeting was held under the joint auspices of the Peoples Institute and the Dr. McGlynn Memorial association. Cha. S. Sprague Smith presided. A letter was read from Father Ducey, regretting his inability to be present, and recalling the virtues and the devotion of Father McGlynn to his church. A telegram from Dr. R. Heber Newton was also read, asking the chair-

MURDERED IN HER HOME.

A Zanesville Woman Beaten to Death. Negro Barber Under Arrest.

Zanesville, O., Jan. 8.—Mrs. Vina Grady, aged 30, was murdered at her home, and Adrian Madison, a colored barber who was seen coming from the house with his clothing covered with blood, is charged with the crime. A blunt instrument, which has not been found, was used. Madison is said to have been infatuated with the woman.

The negro denies that he killed the woman, but admits having been in the house. A year ago, it is said, he tried to commit suicide because the woman refused his attentions. Mrs. Grady's husband, who is in Columbus, left her, it is alleged, because of the notoriety she gained through Madison's infatuation.

THE SHIPPING BILL WILL NOT "GO OVER."

Filibusters Disgusting Friends of the Army Bill—Letters Received by Senator Hanna—Practical and Patriotic Thoughts.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Congress has reconvened after the holiday recess, and the work of getting legislation through before March 4 is under full swing. The senate is up to its ears in the consideration of the army reorganization bill, and, despite the statements to the contrary, it is assured of an early vote. In the house the subject of reappointment is occupying attention as I write, and a hullabaloo is being raised by the representatives from certain sections of the south lest the disfranchised voters be eliminated from consideration in the fixing of the number of "male inhabitants over 21 years of age actually entitled to vote" as the basis of representation in future congresses. Enough has already transpired in this connection to show that the fears of the disfranchisers are thoroughly aroused.

The impression has gone abroad that the action of the senate in supplanting the shipping bill as unfinished business with the army reorganization bill places the former in the category of bills that are likely "to go over," and which means to fail for the lack of consideration. The impression is quite erroneous. The filibustering that goes on now is and can only be directed against the army bill, and it will be impossible for any one to assert that it is in order to defeat the shipping bill that the filibustering tactics are being resorted to in the senate. By the time the friends of the army reorganization bill have had a good full dose of filibustering they will be in no mood to encourage a further display of it in opposition to other important legislation.

Since Senator Hanna has blossomed out as an orator and a contributor to magazines he has been overwhelmed with letters of congratulation, of advice, and many contain stray bits of valuable information. It was my privilege to be permitted to go over one day's batch of letters he received bearing on the shipping subject, and some of them were very interesting. One man, for instance, from Oregon writes him as follows in part: "The press seems to have gone daft on the subject of 'tramp' steamships, as though no other class of vessels carried cargoes. You probably know, but seemingly many newspaper editors do not, that it is the regular line ships which build up trade, not tramps, the latter merely taking care of the overplusages at times. You are on the right track in legislating so as to establish direct lines of steamships to the ports of the world. They are the vessels that build up a nation's trade."

Another, a Democratic ex-member of congress from Georgia, writes him as follows, in part: "And it is upon this point [that providing for the admission of certain foreign built vessels owned by Americans] that I think the bill is so liberal. We in the south have believed that if foreign built vessels were placed under American registry we could as a nation do much to solve the 'shipping problem.' We have thought, too, that their admission would force our home builders to reduce their prices. But I saw very clearly in the Fifty-third congress that no such bill had even a ghost of a show of passing. I happen to know that nearly as many Democrats opposed it as Republicans, and I don't think this sentiment has changed. But your bill lets in, as I understand, 300,000 or 400,000 tons of foreign built ships on condition that their owners build new tonnage in our home yards as great as that admitted. This is a stroke of genius, and if Democrats reject this chance to get a partial free ship bill it seems to me they will never get another. You may make such use of this letter as you care to."

Strangely, in the same mail and

from the north—right in New England, too—comes a strong expression of hostility "to letting any foreign built ships under our flag, much less to any subsidy, so long as we have shipbuilding material and builders to put it together in ships the equal of the best the world over." But this writer further says: "What I hope most to see result from a subsidy bill is the construction of ships of the very highest speed, capable of outsteaming anything else afloat. These are the kind of ships we need and just as many of them as we can get. Don't be influenced by the clamor for 'tramps.' This is not a country where 'tramps' are welcome. We want something more respectable and more useful. One has but to go back to the Spanish-American war and remember the invaluable services of the swift steamships of our only line in the Atlantic trade to be able to realize the superior value of the very swiftest ships."

Senator Hanna's characteristic remark after reading over these suggestions was that they indicated that the object lessons of the Spanish-American war were by no means lost upon our intelligent citizens, and that patriotism is still far above partisanship with a vast majority of our people. ### FILIPINOS ORDERED DEPORTED.

Mabini and Others to Be Deported to Guam.

Manila, Jan. 8.—General MacArthur ordered the deportation of Generals Riera, Del Pilar, Hizon, Llanera and Santos to the island of Guam. Nine regimental and four subordinate officers, with eight civilians, including Trias, Teeson and Mabini, notorious assistants of the insurrectionists, have also been ordered to be deported. It is General MacArthur's intention to hold most of the active leaders of the rebels, who have been captured in Guam until the resumption of a condition of peace has been declared.

The first municipal election was held successfully at Baguio, province of Benguet, Saturday. The Igorrotes took part in the election.

SOME BOERS RETIRED.

General Kitchener Reported Fighting With General Babington's Force.

London, Jan. 8.—Reporting to the war office, under date of Jan. 6, Lord Kitchener said:

"Yesterday General Babington engaged Delarey's and Steenkamp's commandos at Naauwpoort. The enemy was forced to retire to the northwest. Our casualties have not yet been received, but are reported slight. A Boer doctor admitted that 20 Boers were killed or wounded. Commandant Duprez was taken prisoner."

"It appears from reports of the wounded who have arrived at Hell-broon that a detachment 120 strong, belonging to Knox's command, came into contact with a superior force near Lindley. I regret to say that Lieutenant Laing, two other officers and 15 men were killed and two officers and 20 men wounded. No details have come from Knox of this action."

EVENTS IN BRIEF.

Minnesota Republicans in caucus chose Senator Nelson to succeed himself.

Captain King, army officer, arrested at Ft. Morgan, accused of accepting a bribe.

The Philadelphia and Reading railroad purchased control of the New Jersey Central.

Kansas Republicans finally decided in caucus to support J. R. Burton for United States senator.

Edwin Mueller, the 14-year-old child of William E. Mueller, of Glenfield, near Pittsburgh, died after suffering from swallowing ice. Doctors said it was septicaemia poisoning.

At Harrisburg Elmer Barney, who shot and killed his brother-in-law, Isaac Miller, near Halifax, Pa., last summer and was convicted of murder in the first degree, was sentenced to be hanged.

Alpheus B. Stickney, president of the Chicago and Great Western railroad, was married to Miss May Crosby, daughter of Judge Josiah Crosby, of Dexter, Me., at the home of Rev. Thomas Vannes, in Brookline, Monday. The couple became acquainted 40 years ago, before Mr. Stickney went west.

19 KNOWN DEAD.

Horrible Fire In an Orphan Asylum.

FEARED THAT OTHERS PERISHED.

Terrific Explosion Occurred, After the Fire Was Discovered by Two Men Passing the Institution in Rochester, N. Y. Persons Were at Work.

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 8.—Fire broke out in the hospital section of the Rochester orphan asylum about 1 o'clock this morning on Habbell park and the flames spread rapidly to other sections of the institution. It is known that 19 of the children perished and it is feared that many more victims may be reported later.

The fire was first discovered by two men passing the asylum. They hastily sent in an alarm and then turned their attention toward arousing the nurses and the children. A terrific explosion was then heard and in a moment the entire hospital section was in flames. On the arrival of the fire apparatus a general alarm was sent in, calling out the entire department. The smoke began to pour out of every window in the main building and the screams and frantic cries of the children could be heard. The work of rescue began with a will. Children and nurses were carried from the building, all in an unconscious condition, some dead. Ambulances from the city, St. Mary's, Homeopathic and Hahnemann hospitals were summoned and the victims were removed to the several institutions.

There were 199 children at the hospital and a corps of about 30 nurses and attendants. Two of the women attendants are among the dead.

The origin of the fire is not known at this time. The property loss will probably exceed $20,000.

APPEAL FOR FERRELL.

Formal Application For Clemency Made to the Ohio State Board of Pardons.

Columbus, O., Jan. 8.—Formal application for clemency for Rosslyn H. Ferrell, under sentence of death for the murder of Express Messenger Lane last August, was filed with the state board of pardons. The application sets up the grounds of youth of the prisoner, his age being 22; his previous good character; good conduct since arrest; his circumstances at the time of the crime, which is held to have unbalanced his mind; that he was convicted on his own plea of guilty; doubt that the jury was free from prejudice; the claim that his mind was sufficiently unbalanced to entitle him to clemency, although not insane.

The board of pardons will meet in special session to hear the appeal on Thursday.

SALT WATER BLOOD.

An Operation That Is the Saving of Many Human Lives.

Transfusion of blood is a procedure that must have been employed by physicians in very early times. Ovid tells of Medea bringing back youth to the aged by the injection into their veins of the blood of young men, and doubtless the same means was employed by physicians for less fantastic objects. The injection of the blood of one person into the veins of another was until recently done to save life after severe hemorrhage and in various forms of blood poisoning. Sometimes a direct communication was made between the veins of the donor and of the recipient by means of a tube. At other times the healthy subject was bled into a bowl and the blood was beaten to remove the fibrin before it was passed into the blood vessels of the patient.

It is found that the blood when defibrinated is no longer a living fluid, and the corpuscles it contains serve no useful purpose when injected, but rather act as foreign matter which must be got rid of. Accordingly physicians now use distilled water in which a definite proportion of common salt and other chlorides have been dissolved. This solution is warmed and is injected slowly into a vein at the bend of the elbow, about a quart being used.

Often it is not even necessary to pour the fluid into a vein, but simply to inject it through one or more hollow needles into the tissues beneath the skin of the abdomen or the thigh.

This is done not only to supply an equivalent for fluid lost in hemorrhage or cholera, but also in certain diseases in which blood poisoning exists. In this latter case a large amount of fluid is injected slowly, and being taken up by the blood is almost immediately excreted through the kidneys, carrying with it much of the poison which the blood was unable to rid itself of unaided.

This operation has been felicitously called "blood washing," for this is what it really is, and to the process humanity owes the saving of many lives. —Youth's Companion.

Imprisoned by an Ostrich.

A guardsman in the reserve of officers who is better known for his swagger than his brains had an unfortunate experience in South Africa.

He was stationed about 100 miles from Cape Town at a remount depot. One morning a farmer stopped him as he was taking a constitutional and warned him against crossing an inclosure containing a cock ostrich which had become bad tempered. The guardsman said that no ostrich ever hatched would turn him out of his way and went on unmoved.

As he had not returned home four hours afterward his brother officers were alarmed and sent out search parties. What was their surprise to discover him lying on his back unhurt, with a cock ostrich sitting on his chest.

The bird had knocked him down each time he had tried to rise, but could not hurt him while he lay flat on his back. Yet leave his enemy he declined to do and therefore sat quietly upon him until driven off by the rescue party. —London Express.

HER SUMMONS CAME.

A SIGN IN WHICH MRS. GALLUP READ HER DEATH WARRANT.

[Copyright, 1900, by C. B. Lewis.]

As Mr. Gallup lighted his tin lantern after supper and started out to buy half a pound of Rio coffee for breakfast and call at the postoffice Mrs. Gallup was in excellent spirits and had most of the dishes ready for washing. He was absent 32 minutes, and when he arrived home he found her huddled up in the big rocking chair, with a pillow behind her head and the camphor bottle in her hand. She took three long sniffs at the bottle and gave three long drawn sighs as he entered, but it was labor thrown away. Mr. Gallup blew out his lantern and hung it up behind the cellar door, and, having deposited the coffee on a shelf in the pantry, he removed and hung up his coat and hat, sat down and took off his shoes and then, taking a circular from his pocket and putting on his glasses with great deliberation, began to read. It was a circular regarding a new discovery in the cure of consumption, and he had not yet finished with the first testimonial when Mrs. Gallup sobbed four times in succession and faintly asked: "Samuel Gallup, do you know that your dyin' wife is present in the room?"

He made no reply. That testimonial from one who had been cured after his coffin had been purchased made him hold his breath as he read.

"Yes; she is present," dolefully continued Mrs. Gallup after several sniffs

Huddled up in the big rocking chair.

at the bottle, "and she wants to hev a few last words with you. When you started over town, I was singin' 'Barbara Allen' and thinkin' my days might be long in this land. Not five minits later the summons come. I had just started to wash the dishes, and I had that cracked blue platter in my hand, but I hadn't gin it over two wipes when the dishcloth fell to the floor with a great spat. You are hearin' what I say, ain't you, Samuel?"

Mr. Gallup wasn't. He was devouring the second testimonial, which gave the case of a woman who had been given up by over 50 doctors, and yet two bottles furnished her with a new pair of lungs.

"When that dishcloth fell, I knew that my time had come. That's the way Mrs. Grover and Mrs. Taylor went. Their dishcloths fell, and in 24 hours they was in heaven. I shall be up there by to-morrow night, Samuel, while you'll be free to stay out all night to hear the political news. I'd hev died before you come back home, only I wanted to talk with you a leetle about the funeral. Let's see. If I die tonight, you'll hold the funeral day after to-morrow, won't you, at 2 o'clock in

Mr. Gallup was listening to a noise outside. He heard something to remind him of a hen trying to crow, and he wondered if it could be that so long after dark.

"If you want it a day sooner, you can hev it," continued Mrs. Gallup after sobs and gasps and sniffs at the bottle. "but you must look out or the nayburs will talk. Better hev it day after to-morrow, and I hope, for your sake, it won't be a rainy day. I've sometimes thought I'd like a big funeral when I went, with over 40 wagons in the purcession and the church bell a-tollin and the dogs a-howlin, but I've given that up. No, Samuel, you needn't make any spread over me. I'm one of the kind that kin go to heaven without any hurrah and fireworks. If there is ten wagons in the purcession, I shall be satisfied. Don't you think ten ought to be 'nuff for a person like me?"

It wasn't a direct question, but had it been Mr. Gallup would not have answered. He was devouring the third testimonial and making up his mind to try a bottle on the sly.

"Ten wagons in the purcession, Samuel, and the bells needn't toll nor nuthin else happen. If anybody is diggin taters or makin soft soap or dyin carpet rags, they needn't stop on my account. If 25 people come to the house, that will be 'nuff. We've got seven chairs altogether, countin them with broken backs, and Mrs. Walters will lend you the rest. You'll hev our own preacher, of course, but he needn't go on for an hour or two and tell how good I was and how much you'll miss me. If he says that my toil is o'er, and that you won't never find a more savin' wife, that'll be about 'nuff. Shall you do any cryin at the funeral, Samuel?"

No answer.

"I'd do a leetle bit if I was you—jest a leetle. If you don't, folks will talk about it same as they did about Jim Dewitt. He never cried at all, and to this day folks say he didn't use Hanner right. I don't ask you to break down and sob and git up an excitement, but you kin gasp a few times and wipe your eyes and blow your nose. I'm sorry you'll hev to take that long ride to the graveyard, as you could be playin checkers or sunthin, but I don't see how you are to git out of it. However, you won't never hev to go up there ag'in. When you git ready to buy me a gravestun, you kin send it up by a man. I s'pose you'll buy a stun of some sort, won't you?"

Mr. Gallup didn't hear. In the fourth testimonial a man declared that he had been saved after one whole lung and three-quarters of the other were gone, and it was a sketch to thrill the reader clear down to his toes.

"Of course I don't keer about no gravestun for myself," said Mrs. Gallup as she tried to wipe away her tears with the glass stopper of the bottle. "but if you don't put one up the nayburs will call you stingy. Get a cheap one, however. If you kin git one fur $10 and trade a lot of carpet rags in, I'd do it. I used to think I wanted a whole lot of readin on my gravestun, but I've changed my mind. Jest put on that Susan Gallup expired in the forty-ninth year of her age of general disability and that she has found rest where asthma, boils, backaches and rheumatiz cease from troublin. You needn't say a word about makin 40 yards of rag carpet and a bar'l of soft soap last year while enjoyin sore eyes and a boil on my arm or that I allus kept catnip, smartweed and peppermint herbs in the house and was a nurse to all the nayburs. No, Samuel, you needn't—say a word—about them things. Make it—a cheap—gravestun, and you needn't—never go up there—and—and—"

the testimonials and fully determined to buy at least three bottles and hide them in the wood shed he rose up, yawned and stretched and looked around to find Mrs. Gallup asleep and the camphor wasted on the floor.

THERE WASN'T ANY ROW.

It Was Simply a Case of Spontaneous Combustion.

He was a very young man, almost too young to be out on the street at that time of the night, 8:30 p. m., and his general appearance indicated that he had been picked up by a cyclone somewhere during his meanderings. He was not utterly demoralized, but there was something in his manner that would lead the close observer to the conclusion that all had not been well with him.

"Gee!" he exclaimed as he spun around the corner and went bump into a policeman.

"Hello," ejaculated that worthy, instinctively grabbing at him; "what's the row?"

"There wasn't any," responded the youth.

"What are you running like that for?" persisted the policeman.

"I've just been up against a case of spontaneous combustion."

"You look too green to burn," chuckled the bluecoat.

"It's on me, just the same. My girl lives around the corner, and I went to see her. I thought it was all—"

"Where does the combustion come in?" interrupted the officer.

"Come out, you mean," corrected the youth.

"Come off!" exclaimed the officer. "Tell me what the row is before I chase you."

"Well, that's what I'm trying to do," pleaded the boy. "The girl's old man and I don't harmonize a little bit, and when he met me at the door he fired me so suddenly that I had vertigo. If you don't call that spontaneous combustion, what the dickens do you call it?"

"Oh, excuse me," apologized the policeman. "you run along home and get into your trundle bed!" and the bluecoat gently wafted the remnant on its way. —Detroit Free Press.

Woeful Ignorance.

Farmer—See here, you! You remember putting two lightning rods on my barn last spring, don't you? Well, that barn was struck six weeks after and burned down.

Peddler—Struck by lightning?

"It was."

"In the daytime?"

"No; at night."

"Must 'a' been a dark night, wasn't it?"

"Yes; dark as pitch."

"Lanterns burnin'?"

"What lanterns?"

"Didn't you run lanterns up 'em on dark nights?"

"Never heard of anything like that."

"Well, if you don't know enough to keep your lightning rods showin you needn't blame me. G-lan!" —New York Weekly.

Forewarned.

A Yorkshire vicar tells how he once received the following note from one of his parishioners: "This is to give notice that I and Miss Jemima Brearley are coming to your church on Saturday afternoon next to undergo the operation of matrimony at your hands. Please be prompt, as the cab is hired by the hour. Forewarned is forearmed." —London Tit-Bits.

It Was Simply a Case of Spontaneous Combustion.

He was a very young man, almost too young to be out on the street at that time of the night, 8:30 p. m., and his general appearance indicated that he had been picked up by a cyclone somewhere during his meanderings. He was not utterly demoralized, but there was something in his manner that would lead the close observer to the conclusion that all had not been well with him.

"Gee!" he exclaimed as he spun around the corner and went bump into a policeman.

"Hello," ejaculated that worthy, instinctively grabbing at him; "what's the row?"

"There wasn't any," responded the youth.

"What are you running like that for?" persisted the policeman.

"I've just been up against a case of spontaneous combustion."

"You look too green to burn," chuckled the bluecoat.

"It's on me, just the same. My girl lives around the corner, and I went to see her. I thought it was all!"

"Where does the combustion come in?" interrupted the officer.

"Come out, you mean," corrected the youth.

"Come off!" exclaimed the officer. "Tell me what the row is before I chase you."

"Well, that's what I'm trying to do," pleaded the boy. "The girl's old man and I don't harmonize a little bit, and when he met me at the door he fired me so suddenly that I had vertigo. If you don't call that spontaneous combustion, what the dickens do you call it?"

"Oh, excuse me," apologized the policeman, "you run along home and get into your trundle bed!" and the bluecoat gently wafted the remnant on its way. —Detroit Free Press.

Woeful Ignorance.

Farmer—See here, you! You remember putting two lightning rods on my barn last spring, don't you? Well, that barn was struck six weeks after and burned down.

Peddler—Struck by lightning?

"It was."

"In the daytime?"

"No; at night."

"Must 'a been a dark night, wasn't it?"

"Yes; dark as pitch."

"Lanterns burnin'?"

"What lanterns?"

"Didn't you run lanterns up 'em on dark nights?"

"Never heard of anything like that."

"Well, if you don't know enough to keep your lightnin rods showin you needn't blame me. G-lan!" —New York Weekly.

Forewarned.

A Yorkshire vicar tells how he once received the following note from one of his parishioners: "This is to give notice that I and Miss Jemima Brearley are coming to your church on Saturday afternoon next to undergo the operation of matrimony at your hands. Please be prompt, as the cab is hired by the hour. Forewarned is forearmed." —London Tit-Bits.

FILES AN ANSWER.

Says a Receiver Should Not be Appointed for a Shoe Business in This City.

Lisbon, Jan. 8.—(Special.)—Alfred Peterson, of East Liverpool, has filed an answer in court in the case instituted a few days ago by John Carlson, his partner.

Peterson claims there is no valid reason or excuse whatever for the appointment of a receiver for the firm, as the business has been fairly prosperous, and if the same was now placed in the hands of a receiver it could not but result in great and irreparable loss, both to him and the plaintiff.

He states that they carry a $3,000 stock of shoes with only $800 indebtedness and that he has offered to settle with Carlson by selling to him his interest for $800, or buying Carlson's for $900, the purchaser to assume all indebtedness of the firm. He says that he is still willing to do this and wants the petition dismissed. A. H. Clark filed the answer.

A PENTCOSTAL SCENE.

Revival Services Held at Methodist Protestant Church Very Largely Attended.

At the revival meeting last night in the Methodist Protestant church the pastor, Rev. Gladden, preached from John 3:9, "How can these things be?" The after service was a pentecostal scene of unusual character. Throngs surrounded the altars for a deepening and quickening experience. Sobs were heard, tears flowed amid ejaculations and broken utterances. People were at the altars who had not been there before, and voices were lifted in earnest prayer that were new to the regular attendants. Truly it was a time of refreshing, from the presence of the Lord, an uplifting service, well attended and full of interest from the first. The singing was a feature.

The service will begin tonight at 8 o'clock sharp. You are cordially invited.

AN OPERATION

She has been a sufferer from cancer and the operation was performed only to bring relief. She cannot recover.

William Hamilton, a young man of this place, was taken into probate court last night and adjudged to be insane for the third time in the last year. Application has been made to admit him to the Massillon asylum.

Frank Sipe, of Lisbon, was arraigned by Prosecutor Brookes before Judge Boone last evening and was fined $5 and costs for assault and battery. Sipe was arrested for striking his mother-in-law over the arm with a poker.

Christina McGillivray, of Madison township, left no will and Alex McBane was today appointed administrator with $30,000 bond. W. K. George, John Patterson and Evan McIntosh were appointed appraisers.

POLICE BUSINESS.

THE OFFENDERS WERE ARRESTED BY CHIEF THOMPSON.

One Was Drunk And the Other Followed Ladies and Frightened Them.

Business took a slight increase at the police department last night, and as a result two offenders found their way into the city jail assisted by Chief Thompson.

Joe Bentley, of Wellsville, was very drunk when Chief Thompson placed him under arrest and called the patrol wagon to help convey him to the city jail. When he thoroughly sobers up he will be given a hearing.

Thomas Matthews got in trouble last evening and he deserved to occupy a cell in the city jail. He was making a practice of following and frightening ladies on the streets. Chief Thompson placed him under arrest and he left $10 and a watch as security for his appearance this afternoon. If the charge is proved against him there would be any of the $10 left when Mayor Davidson gets through with him.

COMMUNICATION FROM DR. TAGGART

CHURCH POSITION IS OUTLINED

Mr. Editor—An article on "the United Presbyterian church" appeared in your last evening's paper, which, whatever may have been the motive by which it was "communicated," betrays a good deal of ignorance on the part of the writer in reference to the principle and polity of the church of which he writes. It also makes some misquotations and therefore misrepresentations of the articles of the testimony referred to.

The article on secret societies is not fully quoted, and a very important word in what is quoted is changed. The article does not say "church members must not have fellowship with such associations," but rather "ought not to have fellowship with such associations," which by many in the church is interpreted as bearing strong testimony against "such associations" without making it an absolute prohibition under all circumstances. The interpretation that has been put upon this article by the general assembly of the church in exempting its application to certain secret societies gives at least an implied sanction to such an interpretation.

In reference to the correctness of the principle presented in the article: "That all associations, whether formed for political or benevolent purposes, which impose upon their members an oath of secrecy, or an obligation to obey a code of unknown laws, are inconsistent with the genius and spirit of Christianity," we believe that no Christian who fully and truly understands the nature of an oath, or an ordinance of God, to be administered only under His authority by an officer of church or state, can have any doubt. An oath administered by a man without such authority is a profanation of a holy ordinance and a violation of the third commandment.

to obey a code of unknown laws or to give his support to that of which he is supposed to be entirely ignorant, simply on the representation of others, is certainly not only "inconsistent with the genius and spirit of Christianity," but with the spirit of true manhood. It is very significant that the great evangelists of all ages of the church, as Mr. Finney and Mr. Moody, have testified against secret oathbound societies.

The article on Psalmody is correctly and fully quoted, and if the principle accepted by all Presbyterian churches that God is to be worshipped in no other way than that appointed in His word as true, then we believe that a union on Scriptural grounds can only be consummated by the Presbyterian churches coming back to the use of the God-inspired Psalter of their fathers.

Before noticing the reference to the article on communion let me say that the writer of the article seems to have a wrong conception of the province and power of the general assembly. That court of the church has no authority to change any article of the testimony. Its province so far as any doctrine of the church is concerned is not enactment or repeal, but simply interpretation, and if he was acquainted with the action of the general assembly in this respect he would know that as far back as 1868 it gave an interpretation of that article that saved a disruption of the church, and placed the application of the principle embodied in the article in the hands of sessions of congregations. As thus interpreted, while it gives no minister the right to throw the sacraments of the church open to all without discrimination, it does not exclude any Christian who applies in a proper way. There is no ignoring of the spiritual unity of all Christians. The only purpose of the article is to preserve the purity of the divine ordinance. It is no barrier in the way of the union of the churches.

I have written the above in no spirit of controversy, but simply to correct some false impression, I was afraid the article in yesterday's paper might make on minds not familiar with the testimony of our church. We, as a church, hold to the supreme authority of God's word as the only rule of faith and practice and seek to base all our doctrines and practices on its teachings.

In reference to the union of the Presbyterian churches, I have only to say that if it can be brought about in harmony with the teachings of God's word it is a consummation devoutly to be wished. I believe the tendencies of the times in which we live is in that direction. I believe that the century upon which we have entered will see a consolidation of the forces of our Lord in many ways, and that the union of churches nearly allied in faith and practice will be one of these ways.

My earnest prayer is that when the union comes, as I pray it may, the motto of our church, "the Truth of God—Forbearance in Love," may have full exemplification. J. C. TAGGART.

Marriage and Divorce In the New Century.

(Copyright, 1900, The Christian Herald, New York.)

Reckless Marriages Should be Prevented.

By Bishop Samuel J. Fallows, Reformed Church of Illinois.

The new century should be characterized, in its earlier periods, by the passage of uniform and just divorce laws by the several states. Whether congress has the power to pass a constitutional law prescribing the same conditions for obtaining divorce in all the states is an open question. Eminent authorities do not agree upon the subject. Commissions of lawyers have been appointed at different times to urge uniformity of action by the various state legislatures. Little, however, has thus far been accomplished toward that end in any state.

In all the states, except South Carolina, which has no divorce laws, the violation of the marriage vows is an absolute cause for divorce.

In nearly all the states, physical incapacity is a cause, so is wilful desertion. The time of such wilful desertion varies from six months in Arizona, to one year in twenty states, to two years in ten states, to three years in eleven states and to five years in three other states. Habitual drunkenness is a cause in all but ten states. "Imprisonment for felony," or "conviction for felony" is a cause in all the states and territories except six.

Cruel, abusive treatment, intolerable cruelty, extreme cruelty, repeated cruelty are causes in all the states except seven.

Failure to provide by the husband is a cause, the time varying from six months in Arizona to one year in six states, to two years in Indiana and to three years in Delaware. No time is specified in the remainder of the states.

Fraud and fraudulent contract are causes in nine states.

Absence without being heard from is a cause, varying from three years in some of the states to seven in others. Voluntary separation for five years is a cause in Wisconsin.

Ungovernable temper, outrages or excesses, and the like, are causes in a large number of the states.

Insanity, idiocy at the time of marriage, incurable insanity are causes in several states.

In different states, other causes include notorious immorality of the husband before marriage but unknown to the wife; when the husband is a fugitive from justice; any gross neglect of duty; inability of husband and wife to live in peace and union; vagrancy of the husband, etc.

Previous residence for divorce varies from six months in six states, to one year in thirty-six states and territories, and three years in three other states.

In the state of New York absolute divorce is granted only for adultery.

The ratio of divorces to marriages varies from one to six in some of the states, to an average of one to thirteen or fourteen in other states.

In Cook county, in which Chicago is situated, the number of default divorce cases, that is cases where only one side is heard, is nine times that of the cases where both parties are present in court. About five or six minutes is the average time spent in hearing each case.

In 1890 these courts dissolved the marital relation in 35,000 cases. From 1867 to 1886 they granted 328,716 divorces.

The number of children affected by these proceedings, according to the records, was 267,739. Multitudes of other children were not included in this number.

The laws should be uniform throughout the country, as I have stated. As a churchman I might insist on one cause only for divorce—marital infidelity. But marriage is a civil contract as well as a religious ceremony. The state has the right to prescribe other causes. But they ought to be of a grave and serious character.

Christians must aim to prevent reckless marriages. They must help devise stricter methods of legal administration. They must strive to end the anomaly of a man's having a wife in one state who is not his wife in another, where he may reside.

A National Divorce Law Would End Bigamy.

By Judge David McAdam, of the New York Supreme Court.

You ask me what reforms should the new century bring in the matter of the divorce law—should we not have a uniform and just national divorce law? After considering all points, I find that the question merits an emphatic affirmative. The present condition of affairs with reference to divorce is deplorable. We have now 45 states, all of which (excepting South Carolina, in which divorces are not granted) have legislated differently upon this branch of the law of domestic relations. The legislation would not be so injurious in its consequences if the divorces authorized were confined to cases where both parties to the marriage actually resided within the state where the proceedings were instituted, so that actual service of process might be made within the jurisdiction of the state court. Such a decree, process having been personally served on the defendant within the state, is valid everywhere.

A uniform and just national divorce law would work a real reform. To enable congress to pass such a law it would be necessary to amend the federal constitution so as to grant to the national government power to legislate with reference to divorce. In conformity with the method of amendment which has heretofore been followed, congress might itself, by a two-thirds vote in each house, prepare and propose amendments, which proposed amendments would become law upon their ratification by the legislatures of three-fourths of the states. The difficulty of the task involved in procuring the consent of three-fourths of the states to their deprivation of jurisdiction in this important part of the law of domestic relations is, however, discouraging to the average reformer.

The marriage law should also be a national instead of an exclusive state concern. At present a man may marry in each of the 45 states, and if allowed to return to the state where he first married, he cannot be punished there for the bigamies. To reach him he must be indicted in another state, and then be extradited by the governor of that state, so that he may be tried there. And bigamous cohabitation within the United States could be made a criminal offense, cognizable by the federal authorities, so as to punish a party who, having committed bigamy in Canada or any other foreign country, lives in this country with the spurious wife. As a result of such national legislation there would be few bigamists in the country, and many here now might find good cause to emigrate to other climes.

A Conservative View of Uniform Divorce Laws.

By Frederick R. Coudert.

Several weighty arguments might be presented in favor of congressional legislation upon the subject of a uniform divorce law in all states. It certainly is unfortunate that a divorce regularly obtained in one state from a competent court should fail of its effect in another, and that a man or a woman should be a husband or wife in New York and a single man in Dakota or Nebraska. This, at least, is one of the troubles that might be removed by national legislation.

But is there not much to be said on the other side? I may frankly say, at the risk of impairing my regard that your readers may have for my opinion, that the way to deal with divorce laws would be to abrogate them in toto. The interests of society at large are paramount. Our sympathies are not always judicious advisers; the relief given to individuals is often a curse upon society.

While the national law would thus remedy one great inconvenience at least, we should inquire in advance of acting what kind of law we are likely to secure from congress. The state of New York has upon this subject been very conservative, and has only granted divorces in extreme cases. Most of our citizens of New York would be of opinion that if the national law which many desire is still farther to relax the marriage tie, it were best to allow things to remain as they are rather than to fly into the arms of unknown evils. Surely it would not be an advantage to citizens of New York to have the legislation of these states made the law here. It would save expense in individual cases, no doubt, as it would be easier to employ an attorney in this city, and less expensive, than to resort to professional service a thousand or two thousand miles away. Possibly many are only deterred from breaking up their present home by the expense. Why reduce the cost of matrimonial separation far below the present tariff of disbursements? On the whole, in the ignorance of what law we might get from congress, assuming that it would be inferior to our own, I am inclined to think that, unsatisfactory as the condition of things now is, it is safer to keep it out of national legislation.

PRESIDENTIAL LIGHTNING.

Storm's Frank Nerved a Young Law Student to Bet and He Won.

"I'm not more superstitious than the average individual," continued the man, "although my act would indicate the contrary. I was a young man in a law office in a Kentucky town. My preceptor had pasted over his desk a poster containing the portraits of all of the candidates, Lincoln and Hamlin, Breckinridge and Lane, Douglas and Johnson and Bell and Everett. The poster contained the platforms of the various parties. There was some uncertainty in that campaign. My preceptor was an enthusiastic Douglas man and wanted to bet all he had on his candidate. It was my first experience in a presidential campaign, and I had a fool notion that Bell and Everett would be elected. I had never made a money bet, but I was aching to take up my Blackstonian preceptor, although I lacked nerve."

"One day there was a thunderstorm. The lightning loosened a number of things in the town, the building in which I was a law student being one. In one of its pranks the lightning cut in the wall on which that political poster was posted. The result was that the upper part of the poster hung down from the wall, covering up all the candidates save Lincoln and Hamlin. Despite my sympathies for Bell and Everett I imagined I saw in this condition of the poster the result of that election, and a few days later when the Douglas enthusiast talked on his upper notes and offered to bet $25 even on his man I took him up. He was very much astonished to think I would bet on Lincoln and Hamlin. He said I was a young ass and other things and that he would bet with me to teach me a lesson. After the election he asked me how I came to take the chance, for there were few Lincoln votes in the town. When I told him the source of my tip, he grew serious."

"You have won your first bet on a presidential election," he said, "but remember, young man, lightning never

strikes in the same place twice."

Made It Fit the Name.

"Red Rock, N. Y.," said a man who spent some time there, "isn't much of a place, but there is something interesting about it that I fancy all the world doesn't know. The present name is not the one it has always borne, and what its other name was I don't know. Whatever it was the people did not like it and concluded they would change it. There was no particular reason why they should call it Red Rock, but that was determined upon, and so Red Rock it became."

"Then in the course of time strangers of an inquiring turn of mind began to ask why the place had such a name and as no reason could be given newcomers to the neighborhood began to want a name that meant something. This insistence grew so strong that the old residents began to look around for a reason for the name of their place, and at last they found a huge boulder near by which they said was what had suggested the name. But the boulder was gray instead of red, and the progressists insisted that that would not do. At last the old timers hit upon a new plan, and, procuring a barrel of red paint, they painted the big rock red. Red Rock indeed it was now, and not only was all opposition to the name overcome, but the painting of the rock every spring has become an annual festival, and the people celebrate it with a big picnic and general celebration."

"It was a new idea to me, and if there is any other town anywhere on earth that is christened every spring with red paint or any other color I don't know where it is."—New York Sun.

THE ARMY BILL.

The army bill will pass, as it should. Troops are required in the Philippines, in order that our volunteers may come home. These latter soldiers have done splendid service and are worthy of warm commendation. They should be permitted to practice marksmanship at short range, with copperheads as targets, when they do reach home, where they would have been domiciled in comfort long since, had it not been for the aid, comfort and sympathy furnished Aguinaldo and his bolo assassins by these same delectable cops. So lah.

P. D. ARMOUR.

All the great wealth of Philip D. Armour could not purchase for him a single minute of life. How insignificant the wealth of the whole world is in comparison with the value of a single human soul. Wealthy beyond compare is the man or woman who has purchased an eternity of happiness by the acceptance of the atonement made by the Son of God on Calvary's rugged mount. Philip D. Armour, in his dying moments, asked that the Lord's prayer should be read to him by the nurse at his bedside. His request was complied with; and as each sentence was finished by the nurse, the dying man repeated it, and the record is that "when the amen had been repeated by him, he sank back on the pillow and closed his eyes restfully." He apparently accepted God's mercy and died in the faith. God grant that this may be so, and that he has secured an inheritance that "is incorruptible, undefiled and that fadeeth not away;" a resting place in "the house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens." Rev. Dr. Gunshulius seems to assert that Philip D. Armour was a Christian man. The world knows that he was a just and a charitable man. He is in the presence of the Great

Judge, who is no respecter of persons, and before whom the king and the beggar stand on the same footing. "Be ye also ready, for ye know not the day nor the hour when the Son of Man cometh."

LAZINESS.

Laziness is a fatal disease. Fatal to ambition and to success. It is a bar against advancement of boy or of man. No employer, if he possesses good business characteristics, will keep a lazy man in his employ. The lazy fellow will not only hinder and hamper your work on account of his personal laziness or shiftlessness, but he will inoculate good and pushing and honorable workmen who are daily associated with him with his disease. The writer has tested the case fully. He has had the misfortune to employ both lazy men and lazy boys. The boys were gotten rid of right speedily, after being given a fair test; the men were held for a considerable length of time; and it required all the push and hustle in our lives and organisms to make amends for the loss incurred by the lazy and worthless fellows, and they came nigh ruining men who were really good and honest unionists, and believers in the adage that a fair day's pay should secure to an employer a fair day's work in return. Further, the lazy boy or man invariably carries in his makeup the characteristics of unlimited gall, infinite cheek and brazen impudence. Don't puzzle yourself over the conundrum as to what you will do with a constitutionally lazy boy or man. Discharge him instantly. He will never be anything but a hindrance and a block in your way.

LOST HIS GRIP.

A good story is told of an East End man who, on very few occasions, looks upon the wine when it is of the hue that puts men off their base.

Saturday night he came to town, and together with a few congenial spirits took on a load that would have kept a regular guessing. He had in his possession a satchel containing a valuable lot of jewelry, and after a few vain attempts to handle the grip and jag at the same time he gave it up, as it made him wobble, much after the fashion of an East Liverpool street car on the hill road.

He left the grip in trust at a Second street saloon and in about two minutes thereafter didn't know he ever owned a satchel. Mr. Pedler went home and was made as comfortable as it was possible for a man to be in his inebriated condition.

When he got sober he began to be very much concerned about the safety of his carpet bag, which was said to contain goods to the amount of $400. He came to this city early Monday morning, and after numerous attempts to locate his property, enlisted Constable Miller in his search.

All the business houses and saloons on the hill were canvassed without disclosing anything that would lead to its recovery, and as the pedler's memory was not in the best of order, he could make no suggestion that would aid the officer in his search. Finally Miller took the matter in his own hands, and succeeded in locating the valuables in the saloon of William Hancock, Second street and Locust alley, and had no difficulty in getting possession of the grip.

The East End man settled all obligations, secured his property and vows that when he indulges in another bout he will leave his valuables at home.

THE BOARDER RULES THE HOME

The Husband Demands That the Fellow Shall Take His

BUT THE WIFE LAYS DOWN

The Law and Says That the Husband Shall Go and the Boarder

REMAIN IN FULL POSSESSION

It is an astonishing case. The husband bears the reputation of being a good and honest and honorable Christian man, a good workman and a good provider, the head of a household, the father of three boys.

The boarder is a married man, with a wife in the old country. He is a much larger and stronger man than the husband, and is said to boast of his prowess as a bully and a pugilist. He is also a hard drinker, and the husband informs us that the fellow has made night hideous in his home and that he, the husband, has feared serious trouble at times and has not removed his clothing or gone to bed during the entire night.

The husband further states that he was very anxious to avoid trouble of any kind or character, even legal trouble; but affairs finally reached such a climax that he could no longer, as an honorable man, remain quiet, and he demanded that the blackguard and interloper should vacate his castle. The wife objected, and said he should not go, and the husband then told her that either himself or the boarder would go, and the woman said that, if such were his decision, the husband might take his departure, which he did.

Today, the husband came to the News Review office, asking the writer what he should do under such circumstances, and the writer gave him about the following advice:

"Go to Mayor Davidson and tell him the whole story, just as you have told me. Tell him the plain, unvarnished truth. Then ask that Mayor Davidson shall send with you to your home an officer of nerve and courage. Enter your home with the said officer, fully prepared to defend yourself in case of an unexpected attack by the bully and tough you have described to me. Order him to leave your home, which the law designates as your castle, at once, giving him time, under the eye of the officer, to pack his traps or whatever belongs to him. If he refuses to go repeat your order for him to vacate the premises, and if he still refuses, throw him out, or knock him out, or drag him out, assisted by the officer, if the mayor so permits. Possibly the mayor may advise you to take an easier way from the start. Possibly he may have you swear out a warrant against the fellow and let the law take him out as a disturber of the peace. But you get him out. Make sure of that, as the law gives you the right to do so. And when he goes, insist that the woman who has chosen him in preference to yourself shall go also; as we do not believe that any law, human or divine, will ask you to claim as your wife a woman who has acted as you say this woman has acted."

If the husband tells the truth in this very peculiar case, and he bears the reputation of being a strictly truthful and honest man, the boarder in question should be given an abbreviated and limited order to leave East Liverpool in an abbreviated and exceedingly limited space of time, under penalty of such treatment as would cause him to remember the special occasion as long as life shall last. East Liverpool needs to purge herself of all such miserable scum.

SPLENDID SERMON BY REV. GRIMES

He Occupied the Pulpit of the Second U. P. Church Last

"AN UNCHANGING CHRIST"

Was His Subject and His Discourse Was Both Eloquent
and Logical.

ALL THE NEWS OF EAST END

Rev. Grimes, of Connoquenessing, arrived in the East End yesterday and last night occupied the pulpit at the Second United Presbyterian church.

The reverend gentleman took for
his subject "An Unchanging Christ,"
and the sermon was one of the most eloquent and interesting ever delivered
in the city. He said in part:

"Jesus Christ, the same yesterday,
today and forever. This is a most wonderful statement. Nothing would appear more marvelous to us. We are so accustomed to change that we can hardly believe that He changes not,
yet the text is true. Time cannot change Him. He is the same today
as when he went about on earth doing
good. The same today as in the yesterday of his earthly life. The same as He will be in the tomorrow when
we shall be with the Lord. Circumstances cannot change him. He is not a creature of moods. He is the same loving one."

In conclusion he said: "How comforting and encouraging the thought
of this text. It has encouragement
for every class—for the individual
Christian, for the church of Christ
and especially for the sinner. Christ
the Savior changes not, but is able and
willing to save, today, even as in the day of His earthly activity."

Rev. Grimes will take for his subject
tonight: "The Christian's Lamp," and
it is the first of a series.

AN ACCIDENT.

With a Painful Injury Yesterday
While at Work.

William Hamilton, a jiggerman employed at the National pottery, met with a very painful accident yesterday.

The young man was making saucers and in some manner failed to raise the tool high enough to place it beyond the balance. It descended upon his hand, badly crushing his right hand.
The front finger of this hand was so badly mashed it was necessary to amputate it.

Dr. Davis was called and the wound dressed.

A CHIMNEY FIRE.

The East End Department Was Called Out Yesterday—Spence on Duty.
Ruhe Goes to Central Station.

The East End fire department was called out yesterday in answer to an alarm from First avenue and Sycamore street.

When they arrived it was found that a chimney fire had occurred in the residence and storeroom of W. L. Bennett, and the smoke had come through the shingles of the house, giving it the appearance of a very bad fire. No damage was done.

Fireman Ruhe was this morning transferred to central station, and John Spence entered upon his duties at Station No. 2.

Calhoun Ill.

was engaged today repairing the platform at the East End. Several holes were patched and other repairs made.
The improvement was badly needed.

evening for Shippingport, where their father is quite ill. The gentleman is very old and it is not thought that he will recover.

Well Attended.

Services at the East End churches last night were well attended, and

A SALEM CASE.

B. S. AMBLER TELLS WHY METZ-
GAR SHOULDN'T GET DAMAGES.

Says the Salem Railroad Benefited His Property Instead of Damaging It.

Lisbon, Jan. 8.—(Special.)—B. C.
Ambler, as receiver of the Salem railroad, filed an answer in court in the $4,000 damage case filed against him
by Paul Metzgar.

Metzgar filed the action to recover
for damages sustained by him when Ambler raised the grade of the Salem
railroad 18 inches. Answering generally to the action Ambler says that
all of the claims of Metzgar are ridiculous and unfounded and that instead of damaging Metzgar's property
as alleged, the Salem railroad and the defendant have benefited and improved

the property, as the plaintiff well
knows.

He wants the action dismissed and
claims that prior to the building of
the Salem railroad there was a very
low place just west of Metzgar's property which always contained water,
and at Metzgar's request he filled it up
so that now it is in good condition and
the buildings are so situated that they would no be damaged by water even
if the same existed.

HAUNTED HIS DEATH.

Breth Went Through Hazing Motions in Deathbed.

HE AND BOOZ BADLY TREATED.

Shocking Testimony of Members of the Dead Breth's Family—Sister Sent For Some of Dead Boy's Letters—Ex-Cadet Burnham One of the Witnesses.

Philadelphia, Jan. 8.—According to the testimony adduced before the congressional investigating committee, which is inquiring into the charges of hazing at the West Point military academy, Oscar L. Booz, of Bristol, Pa., and John E. Breth, of Altoona, Pa., had a rough time of it during their "plebe" year at that institution. The star witness of the day was former Cadet Anthony J. Burnham, Jr., son of Judge Burnham, of the court of appeals of the state of Kentucky, who was Booz's tent mate while in camp. The committee also heard for the first time testimony in regard to the experiences of Breth from the lips of his father, brothers and sisters.

Said Booz Was a Good Fellow.

Burnham, who was dismissed from the academy for deficiency in studies, said Booz became unpopular after his first fight with Keller. Personally he was a good fellow, but the cadet of the upper classes always aunted him as a coward. During the 12 months Burnham was at the academy there were 10 fights, and as far as he knew no one was punished. Abused cadets, he said, feared to make complaints, because they felt the hazers would make life all the more miserable for them. Booz, while in their tent, had told him of how upper class men had compelled him to swallow tobacco sauce under penalty of being "called out." The fourth class men were allowed their liberty on Saturday afternoons, according to the regulations, but the upper class men would not allow them to leave camp. If they disobeyed them, the "plebes," as a rule, would be punished for it.

The case of John Breth, of Altoona, Pa., who died from an ailment which it is alleged, he received indirectly as a result of hazing at West Point, was taken up. The first witness called was Dr. E. E. Goodman, of Altoona, the Breth family physician. Dr. Goodman said Breth entered West Point in June, 1897, and died last October. His physical condition before entering the military academy was excellent. Dr. Goodman treated him two weeks after he came home from West Point for hemorrhoids. Later on young Breth went to Pittsburgh, where he was employed as a salesman by a Pittsburgh tobacco house. He returned home two months later suffering from nervousness and insomnia, but soon returned to Pittsburgh. Last October he again treated him for tenfold pneumonia, from which he died. Young Breth never told Dr. Goodman anything about the hazing at West Point. All the information the doctor had come to him from the boy's family. He became very nervous about a year after he returned from West Point and the physician often wondered what could have caused it.

Eating Soap Could Have Caused It.

It had been reported that Breth was compelled to eat soap at West Point. The doctor knew nothing about that, but if the boy had eaten soap it would have explained his physical condition on his return home.

Samuel J. Breth, father of Cadet Breth, testified that his son was appointed by Congressman Hicks, in March, 1897, and was dismissed from the academy because of deficiency in mathematics, in January, 1898. Mr. Breth said members of the family had received letters from the son in regard to hardships at West Point. The father and mother knew that the boys at the academy were more or less hazed, and Cadet Breth and his brother Harry had an understanding between them that if he had anything to write about hardships John would write to Harry only, so that the parents would not worry. He said Harry and one of the daughters visited John at the academy in August, 1897, and on their return home they said John had been severely hazed and that he had nervous prostration. At West Point John told them he had been so severely hazed that he became unconscious. The only one that was mentioned as being among the hazers was a cadet named Bender. The father was questioned at length as to what the cadet told him of the hazing but the young man, it appears, said little to the parents. He told his brothers and sister more, and they kept the information from them. The father learned from the son, Harry, that John had been "choked almost." On his death bed, the father said, the boy went through the "choo-chooing" motions.

Wanted the Original Letters.

Harry Breth, the brother, was called and offered to submit copies of extracts of letters he received from John. The committee decided that it wanted the originals, which are now at the Breth homestead in Altoona. He was excused until the letters could be produced, and in order that Miss Rosa M. Breth, a sister, might return home and send them to the committee her testimony was then taken. She received a letter from her brother while he was in West Point hospital, in which he said the surgeon told him that he had a light attack of nervous prostration from overwork. John, however, told other members of the family when they visited him at West Point that his condition was due to hazing. John said he was hazed three times in one night. John wrote home that he had to eat eight slices of bread soaked in molasses. On his death bed he told her that "West Point is the cause of the breakdown in my health." He mentioned the names of Bender, Wood and Yonge as being "awful hazers."

While in the hospital, she said, John told her that he was visited by upper class men and told "that he had better get out of here tomorrow." In his last illness John told Harry some things of what took place in the hospital to make Harry believe Cadet Breth was even subjected to hazing in the hospital. This completed Miss Rosa Breth's testimony, and she left later for Altoona.

After Robert B. Wallace, who was one of Oscar Booz's instructors in a private school in this city, had told of Oscar's good record as a scholar, William A. Breth, another brother of John Breth, took the stand.

William's story was substantially as follows:

When John came home he told him that he had to do so much "hogging" that he often became exhausted and until his muscles felt like leather. A cadet named Bender made him sit on the point of a bayonet until he fell off. He was made to sit on it again, and during this operation Bender played a violin. On another occasion, a hot July day, after a hard day's drill, he was compelled to don a rain coat and hold out dumb bells. On a Saturday all cadets were given a certain amount of liberty, but Bender prevented him from leaving camp. His brother made a complaint about it, which resulted in Bender exercising him more severely. He regarded "feeding inspection" as a joke. One night he was dragged out of bed, leaving the bedclothes behind him, and was dragged over rough stones in the company street. On another occasion he was so exhaustively exercised that on the next morning the officer in charge of the drill compelled him to drop out of line because of his weakness. One time John was on guard and Bender refused to give the sign of recognition as he passed, which was a breach of the regulations. He reported Bender, and the latter said he would make him fight, but the threat was never carried out. His brother considered West Point military academy the best in the world, but said the upper class men ran the place.

Witness in Danger of Being in Contempt.

Lucien H. Alexander, secretary of the board of examiners for the admission of law students to the bar, was called for the purpose of testifying to Booz's application for admission, and got into a legal tangle with the committee as to whether Booz passed the examination. Mr. Alexander explained that the courts of Philadelphia had made a rule that the matter of how students came out of an examination should not be made public, and he considered he would be in contempt of court if he divulged the information, although he was willing to make a personal application to the court for a rule permitting him to do so. The committee decided that he must choose between being in contempt of the courts of Philadelphia or the United States house of representatives, and he was given until 11 o'clock today to decide.

Mary G. Breth, another sister of Breth, was called and corroborated the testimony of other members of the family. She said her brother told her that one night he was hazed by three separate sets of cadets. He stood the first two, but fainted during the third act of hazing. When he regained consciousness he saw several men rubbing him. They appeared to be greatly frightened. Miss Breth also said that her brother, in speaking of hazing, said he "often ate soap" and "choked some ends" at West Point. Miss Breth said her brother did not know Father O'Keefe, who testified before the military

It was intended to meet again this morning.

LODGE MADE A SPEECH.

He Spoke on Philippine Question—Predicted Great Commercial Future for United States.

Washington, Jan. 8.—A notable speech was delivered during the course of the session of the senate by Mr. Lodge, of Massachusetts. Addressing the senate on the amendment of the military committee striking out the provision in the army reorganization bill for a veterinary corps, he discussed briefly and principally in the form of a colloquy with Senator Bacon, of Georgia, the Philippine question and the necessity for an army of 100,000 men. In conclusion he drew a brilliant word picture of the commercial future of the United States, declaring that the trade conflict with Europe already begun could result only in the commercial and economic supremacy of this country over the entire world. In this industrial conflict he apprehended no danger from a material contest with any nation of the world, but he urged the necessity for a strong and scientifically organized army and a powerful navy in order that the United States might be prepared to defend its rights against any possible foe. The speech created a profound impression.

During the course of the session the senate ratified the committee proposition to eliminate the house provision for the establishment of a veterinary corps in the army. Senator Teller, of Colorado, gave notice of a substitute he will offer to the entire pending measure, continuing in full force and effect the act of March 3, 1899, increasing the size of the army for three years, from July 1, 1901.

AGREED ON TIME TO VOTE.

Balloting on Rescission Bill May Occur Today.

Washington, Jan. 8.—It was agreed Monday that the final vote in the house on the reapportionment of representation from the various states would be taken before the session closed today. It was expected there would be a sequel Monday to the exciting clash of Saturday between Mr. Littlefield, of Maine, and Mr. Hopkins, of Illinois. But the latter made no effort at rejoinder and contented himself with the direction of the measure toward the final vote. He expressed confidence that the bill bearing his name will be passed today, although there might be a slight change, giving an additional member to Florida, Colorado and North Dakota, bringing the total membership up to 360. The notable speeches Monday were by Mr. Crumacker, of Indiana, dealing with alleged disfranchisement in the south; by Mr. Hepburn, of Iowa, severely arraigning the present rules as annihilating the constitutional prerogatives of the house, and by Mr. Grow, of Pennsylvania, comparing the old system in the house with that of the present.

W. J. BRYAN WAS PRESENT.

He Made a Speech at a Banquet in Omaha—Tillman Also One of the Orators.

Omaha, Jan. 8.—The tenth annual banquet of the Jacksonian club, of Nebraska, was held at the Millard hotel last night. The occasion was one of interest on account of the presence of the Hon. William J. Bryan, who responded to the toast "Democracy," and of Senator Benjamin R. Tillman, whose address was on "The Democratic Party: Its Duty and Destiny." Others also spoke.

100 BOYS MASSACRED.

Many of Them Cling to Christianity in Spite of Chinese Tortures.

London, Jan. 8.—A sister of Charity, writing from the Maison De Jesu Infant, at Ning Po, Nov. 20, described the massacre at Nan King of 100 little boys. Some of them, she says, were roasted alive in the church. Others escaped to the orphanage outside the city, but all were killed and the place burned. "Despite threats of torture and the frequency of most painful death," the sister declares, "apostasy was wonderfully rare."

Goodrich, of Justice Everett's court, on a charge of keeping the saloon in his hotel open on Sunday. The warrant for the arrest of Mr. Palmer was issued by Justice Everett upon complaint of Frank Hall, who recently endeavored to close the Sunday theaters.

Mr. Hall appeared in the justice's court and swore that Potter Palmer, "on Jan. 6, 1901, did keep open a tipping house, or a place where liquor was sold or given away, upon the first day of the week, to wit; the aforesaid date commonly known as Sunday." In event of conviction upon this charge Mr. Palmer may be fined $200 or less.

A GIRL KILLED.

Tenth Pennsylvania Veteran Accidentally Shot Her Near Waynesburg, Pa.

Waynesburg, Pa., Jan. 8.—Vernon Kelley, constable of Franklin township, went to the home of Miss Anna Clark and her sister to lend them a revolver. Kelley attempted to show the young women how to use the weapon, and, thinking that all of the chambers were empty, began snapping the trigger. The hammer fell on a loaded cartridge, the ball entering the girl's breast, and she died almost instantly. Miss Clark was a respected young woman. She was employed in the Waynesburg Democrat office, and was a student in the Waynesburg business college. Kelley served with Company K, Tenth regiment, in the Philippines, and was wounded in battle. A week or two ago he narrowly escaped being killed by a gas explosion, in which he was injured. He was almost crazed over the occurrence and at once walked to Waynesburg and had himself placed in jail.

FUNERAL OF P. D. ARMOUR.

Those who desire to look upon the face of Mr. Armour will be given the opportunity prior to the funeral. The body will lie in state at the Armour home from 9 o'clock in the morning until noon.

MURDERED IN HER HOME.

A Zanesville Woman Beaten to Death. Negro Barber Under Arrest.

Zanesville, O., Jan. 8.—Mrs. Vina Grady, aged 30, was murdered at her home, and Adrian Madison, a colored barber who was seen coming from the house with his clothing covered with blood, is charged with the crime. A blunt instrument, which has not been found, was used. Madison is said to have been infatuated with the woman.

The negro denies that he killed the woman, but admits having been in the house. A year ago, it is said, he tried to commit suicide because the woman refused his attentions. Mrs. Grady's husband, who is in Columbus, left her, it is alleged, because of the notoriety she gained through Madison's infatuation.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

THE SHIPPING BILL WILL NOT "GO OVER."

Filibusters Disgusting Friends of the Army Bill—Letters Received by Senator Hanna—Practical and Patriotic Thoughts.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Congress has reconvened after the holiday recess, and the work of getting legislation through before March 4 is under full swing. The senate is up to its ears in the consideration of the army reorganization bill, and, despite the statements to the contrary, it is assured of an early vote. In the house the subject of reapportionment is occupying attention as I write, and a hullabaloo is being raised by the representatives from certain sections of the south lest the disfranchised voters be eliminated from consideration in the fixing of the number of "male inhabitants over 21 years of age actually entitled to vote" as the basis of representation in future congresses. Enough has already transpired in this connection to show that the fears of the disfranchisers are thoroughly aroused.

The impression has gone abroad that the action of the senate in supplanting the shipping bill as unfinished business with the army reorganization bill places the former in the category of bills that are likely "to go over," and which means to fail for the lack of consideration. The impression is quite erroneous. The filibustering that goes on now is and can only be directed against the army bill, and it will be impossible for any one to assert that it is in order to defeat the shipping bill that the filibustering tactics are being resorted to in the senate. By the time the friends of the army reorganization bill have had a good full dose of filibustering they will be in no mood to encourage a further display of it in opposition to other important legislation.

Since Senator Hanna has blossomed out as an orator and a contributor to magazines he has been overwhelmed with letters of congratulation, of advice, and many contain stray bits of valuable information. It was my privilege to be permitted to go over one day's batch of letters he received bearing on the shipping subject, and some of them were very interesting. One man, for instance, from Oregon writes him as follows in part: "The press seems to have gone daft on the subject of 'tramp' steamships, as though no other class of vessels carried cargoes. You probably know, but seemingly many newspaper editors do not, that it is the regular line ships which build up trade, not tramps, the latter merely taking care of the overplusages at times. You are on the right track in legislating so as to establish direct lines of steamships to the ports of the world. They are the vessels that build up a nation's trade."

Another, a Democratic ex-member of congress from Georgia, writes him as follows, in part: "And it is upon this point [that providing for the admission of certain foreign built vessels owned by Americans] that I think the bill is so liberal. We in the south have believed that if foreign built vessels were placed under American registry we could as a nation do much to solve the 'shipping problem.' We have thought, too, that their admission would force our home builders to reduce their prices. But I saw very clearly in the Fifty-third congress that no such bill had even a ghost of a show of passing. I happen to know that nearly as many Democrats opposed it as Republicans, and I don't think this sentiment has changed. But your bill lets in, as I understand, 300,000 or 400,000 tons of foreign built ships on condition that their owners build new tonnage in our home yards as great as that admitted. This is a stroke of genius, and if Democrats reject this chance to get a partial free ship bill it seems to me they will never get another. You may make such use of this letter as you care to."

Strangely, in the same mail and

from the north—right in New England, too—comes a strong expression of hostility "to letting any foreign built ships under our flag, much less to any subsidy, so long as we have shipbuilding material and builders to put it together in ships the equal of the best the world over." But this writer further says: "What I hope most to see result from a subsidy bill is the construction of ships of the very highest speed, capable of outsteaming anything else afloat. These are the kind of ships we need and just as many of them as we can get. Don't be influenced by the clamor for 'tramps.' This is not a country where 'tramps' are welcome. We want something more respectable and more useful. One has but to go back to the Spanish-American war and remember the invaluable services of the swift steamships of our only line in the Atlantic trade to be able to realize the superior value of the very swiftest ships."

Senator Hanna's characteristic remark after reading over these suggestions was that they indicated that the object lessons of the Spanish-American war were by no means lost upon our intelligent citizens, and that patriotism is still far above partisanship with a vast majority of our people.

FILIPINOS ORDERED DEPORTED.

Mabini and Others to Be Deported to Guam.

Manila, Jan. 8.—General MacArthur ordered the deportation of Generals Ricarte, Del Pilar, Hizon, Llanera and Santos to the island of Guam. Nine regimental and four subordinate officers, with eight civilians, including Trias, Teeson and Mabini, notorious assistants of the insurrectionists, have also been ordered to be deported. It is General MacArthur's intention to hold most of the active leaders of the rebels, who have been captured in Guam until the resumption of a condition of peace has been declared.

General Kitchener Reported Fighting With General Babington's Force.

London, Jan. 8.—Reporting to the war office, under date of Jan. 6, Lord Kitchener said:

Our casualties have not yet been received, but are reported slight. A Boer doctor admitted that 20 Boers were killed or wounded. Commandant Duprez was taken prisoner."

"It appears from reports of the wounded who have arrived at Hell-brown that a detachment 120 strong, belonging to Knox's command, came into contact with a superior force near Lindley. I regret to say that Lieutenant Laing, two other officers and 15 men were killed and two officers and 20 men wounded. No details have come from Knox of this action."

19 KNOWN DEAD.

Horrible Fire In an Orphan Asylum.

FEARED THAT OTHERS PERISHED.

Terrific Explosion Occurred, After the Fire Was Discovered by Two Men Passing the Institution in Rochester, N. Y. Persons Were at Work.

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 8.—Fire broke out in the hospital section of the Rochester orphan asylum about 1 o'clock this morning on Hubbell park and the flames spread rapidly to other sections of the institution. It is known that 19 of the children perished and it is feared that many more victims may be reported later.

The fire was first discovered by two men passing the asylum. They hastily sent in an alarm and then turned their attention toward arousing the nurses and the children. A terrific explosion was then heard and in a moment the entire hospital section was in flames. On the arrival of the fire apparatus a general alarm was sent in, calling out the entire department. The smoke began to pour out of every window in the main building and the screams and frantic cries of the children could be heard. The work of rescue began with a will. Children and nurses were carried from the building, all in an unconscious condition, some dead. Ambulances from the city, St. Mary's, Homeopathic and Hahnemann hospitals were summoned and the victims were removed to the several institutions.

There were 199 children at the hospital and a corps of about 30 nurses and attendants. Two of the women attendants are among the dead.

The origin of the fire is not known at this time. The property loss will probably exceed $20,000.

APPEAL FOR FERRELL.

Formal Application For Clemency Made to the Ohio State Board of Pardons.

Columbus, O., Jan. 8.—Formal application for clemency for Rosslyn H. Ferrell, under sentence of death for the murder of Express Messenger Lane last August, was filed with the state board of pardons. The application sets up the grounds of youth of the prisoner, his age being 22; his previous good character; good conduct since arrest; his circumstances at the time of the crime, which is held to have unbalanced his mind; that he was convicted on his own plea of guilty; doubt that the jury was free from prejudice; the claim that his mind was sufficiently unbalanced to entitle him to clemency although not insane.

The board of pardons will meet in special session to hear the appeal on Thursday.

A SORRY SIGHT

It is, to see a strong man shaken like a reed by a paroxysm of coughing, which leaves him gasping for breath. People have suffered with bronchial affections for years, with obstinate, stubborn cough, and growing weakness. They have tried doctors and medicines in vain. At last they have been induced to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, with the general result experienced by all who put this wonderful medicine to the test—help at once, and a speedy cure.

For coughs, bronchial affections, weak lungs, spitting of blood, and other diseases of the organs of respiration, "Golden Medical Discovery" is practically a specific. It always helps; it almost always cures.

"I had been troubled with bronchitis and catarrh of the head for eight years; had severe cough, and at times great difficulty in breathing," writes J. W. Howerton, Esq., of Bigfall, Hancock Co., Tenn. "A portion of the time my appetite was poor and part of the time I was unable to do anything. I had been

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for paper covered, or 31 stamps for cloth binding, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

HAUNTED HIS DEATH.

Breth Went Through Hazing Motions In Deathbed.

HE AND BOOZ BADLY TREATED.

Shocking Testimony of Members of the Dead Breth's Family—Sister Sent For Some of Dead Boy's Letters—Ex-Cadet Burnham One of the Witnesses.

Philadelphia, Jan. 8.—According to the testimony adduced before the congressional investigating committee, which is inquiring into the charges of hazing at the West Point military academy, Oscar L. Booz, of Bristol, Pa., and John E. Breth, of Altoona, Pa., had a rough time of it during their "plebe" year at that institution. The star witness of the day was former Cadet Anthony J. Burnham, Jr., son of Judge Burnham, of the court of appeals of the state of Kentucky, who was Booz's tent mate while in camp. The committee also heard for the first time testimony in regard to the experiences of Breth from the lips of his father, brothers and sisters.

Said Booz Was a Good Fellow.

Burnham, who was dismissed from the academy for deficiency in studies, said Booz became unpopular after his first fight with Keller. Personally he was a good fellow, but the cadet of the upper classes always treated him as a coward. During the 12 months Burnham was at the academy there were 10 fights, and as far as he knew no one was punished. Abused cadets, he said, feared to make complaints, because they felt the hazers would make life all the more miserable for them. Booz, while in their tent, had told him of how upper class men had compelled him to swallow tobacco sauce under penalty of being "called out." The fourth class men were allowed their liberty on Saturday afternoons, according to the regulations, but the upper class men would not allow them to leave camp. If they disobeyed them, the "plebes," as a rule, would be punished for it.

The case of John Breth, of Altoona, Pa., who died from an ailment which, it is alleged, he received indirectly as a result of hazing at West Point, was taken up. The first witness called was Dr. E. E. Goodman, of Altoona, the Breth family physician. Dr. Goodman said Breth entered West Point in June, 1897, and died last October. His physical condition before entering the military academy was excellent. Dr. Goodman treated him two weeks after he came home from West Point for hemorrhoids. Later on young Breth went to Pittsburgh, where he was employed as a salesman by a Pittsburgh tobacco house. He returned home two months later suffering from nervousness and insomnia, but soon returned to Pittsburgh. Last October he again treated him for typhoid pneumonia, from which he died. Young Breth never told Dr. Goodman anything about the hazing at West Point. All the information the doctor had come to him from the boy's family. He became very nervous about a year after he returned from West Point and the physician often wondered what could have caused it.

Eating Soap Could Have Caused It.

It had been reported that Breth was compelled to eat soap at West Point. The doctor knew nothing about that, but if the boy had eaten soap it would have explained his physical condition on his return home.

Samuel J. Breth, father of Cadet Breth, testified that his son was appointed by Congressman Hicks, in March, 1897, and was dismissed from the academy because of deficiency in mathematics. In January, 1898, Mr. Breth said members of the family had received letters from the son in regard to hardships at West Point. The father and mother knew that the boys at the academy were more or less hazed, and Cadet Breth and his brother Harry had an understanding between them that if he had anything to write about hardships John would write to Harry only, so that the parents would not worry. He said Harry and one of the daughters visited John at the academy in August, 1897, and on their return home they said John had been severely hazed and that he had nervous prostration. At West Point John told them he had been so severely hazed that he became unconscious. The only one that was mentioned as being among the hazers was a cadet named Bender. The father was questioned at length as to what the cadet told him of the hazing, but the young man, it appears, said little to the parents. He told his brothers and sister more, and they kept the information from them. The father learned from the son Harry that John had been "choked almost." On his death bed, the father said, the boy went through the "choo-chooing" motions.

Wanted the Original Letters.

Harry Breth, the brother, was called and offered to submit copies of extracts of letters he received from John. The committee decided that it wanted the originals, which are now at the Breth homestead in Altoona. He was excused until the letters could be produced, and in order that Miss Rosa M. Breth, a sister, might return home and send them to the committee her testimony was then taken. She received a letter from her brother while he was in West Point hospital, in which he said the surgeon told him that he had a light attack of nervous prostration from overwork. John, however, told other members of the family when they visited him at West Point that his condition was due to hazing. John said he was hazed three times in one night. John wrote home that he had to eat eight slices of bread soaked in molasses. On his death bed he told her that "West Point is the cause of the breakdown in my health." He mentioned the names of Bender, Wood and Yonge as being "awful hazers."

While in the hospital, she said, John told her that he was visited by upper class men and told "that he had better get out of here tomorrow." In his last illness John told Harry some things of what took place in the hospital to make Harry believe Cadet Breth was even subjected to hazing in the hospital. This completed Miss Rosa Breth's testimony, and she left later for Altoona.

After Robert B. Wallace, who was one of Oscar Booz's instructors in a private school in this city, had told of Oscar's good record as a scholar, William A. Breth, another brother of John Breth, took the stand.

William's story was substantially as follows:

When John came home he told him that he had to do so much "cozling" that he often became exhausted and until his muscles felt like lead. A cadet named Bender made him sit on the point of a bayonet until he fell off. He was made to sit on it again, and during this operation Bender played a violin. On another occasion, a hot July day, after a hard day's drill, he was compelled to don a rain coat and hold out dumb bells. On a Saturday all cadets were given a certain amount of liberty, but Bender prevented him from leaving camp. His brother made a complaint about it, which resulted in Bender exercising him more severely. He regarded "feeling inspection" as a joke. One night he was dragged out of bed, leaving the bedclothes behind him, and was dragged over rough stones in the company street. On another occasion he was so exhaustively exercised that on the next morning the officer in charge of the drill compelled him to drop out of line because of his weakness. One time John was on guard and Bender refused to give the sign of recognition as he passed, which was a breach of the regulations. He reported Bender, and the latter said he would make him fight, but the threat was never carried out. His brother considered West Point military academy the best in the world, but said the upper class men ran the place.

Witness In Danger of Being In Contempt.

Lucien H. Alexander, secretary of the board of examiners for the admission of law students to the bar, was called for the purpose of testifying to Booz's application for admission, and got into a legal tangle with the committee as to whether Booz passed the examination. Mr. Alexander explained that the courts of Philadelphia had made a rule that the matter of how students came out of an examination should not be made public, and he considered he would be in contempt of court if he divulged the information, although he was willing to make a personal application to the court for a rule permitting him to do so. The committee decided that he must choose between being in contempt of the courts of Philadelphia or the United States house of representatives, and he was given until 11 o'clock today to decide.

Mary G. Breth, another sister of Breth, was called and corroborated the testimony of other members of the family. She said her brother told her that one night he was hazed by three separate sets of cadets. He stood the first two, but fainted during the third act of hazing. When he regained consciousness he saw several men rubbing him. They appeared to be greatly frightened. Miss Breth also said that her brother, in speaking of hazing, said he "often ate soap," and "chewed rope ends," at West Point. Miss Breth said her brother did not know Father O'Keefe, who testified before the military board of inquiry at West Point that he took a great interest in Cadet Breth. It was intended to meet again this morning.

LODGE MADE A SPEECH.

He Spoke on Philippine Question—Predicted Great Commercial Future for United States.

Washington, Jan. 8.—A notable speech was delivered during the course of the session of the senate by Mr. Lodge, of Massachusetts. Addressing the senate on the amendment of the military committee striking out the provision in the army reorganization bill for a veterinary corps, he discussed briefly and principally in the form of a colloquy with Senator Bacon, of Georgia, the Philippine question and the necessity for an army of 100,000 men. In conclusion he drew a brilliant word picture of the commercial future of the United States, declaring that the trade conflict with Europe already begun could result only in the commercial and economic supremacy of this country over the entire world. In this industrial conflict he apprehended no danger from a material contest with any nation of the world, but he urged the necessity for a strong and scientifically organized army and a powerful navy in order that the United States might be prepared to defend its rights against any possible foe. The speech created a profound impression.

During the course of the session the senate ratified the committee proposition to eliminate the house provision for the establishment of a veterinary corps in the army. Senator Teller, of Colorado, gave notice of a substitute he will offer to the entire pending measure, continuing in full force and effect the act of March 3, 1899, increasing the size of the army, for three years, from July 1, 1901.

AGREED ON TIME TO VOTE.

Balloting on Reapportionment Bill May Occur Today.

Washington, Jan. 8.—It was agreed Monday that the final vote in the house on the reapportionment of representation from the various states would be taken before the session closed today. It was expected there would be a sequel Monday to the exciting clash of Saturday between Mr. Littlefield, of Maine, and Mr. Hopkins, of Illinois. But the latter made no effort at rejoinder and contented himself with the direction of the measure toward the final vote. He expressed confidence that the bill bearing his name will be passed today, although there might be a slight change, giving an additional member to Florida, Colorado and North Dakota, bringing the total membership up to 360. The notable speeches Monday were by Mr. Crumpacker, of Indiana, dealing with alleged disfranchisement in the south; by Mr. Hepburn, of Iowa, severely arraigning the present rules as annihilating the constitutional prerogatives of the house, and by Mr. Grow, of Pennsylvania, comparing the old system in the house with that of the present.

W. J. BRYAN WAS PRESENT.

He Made a Speech at a Banquet In Omaha—Tillman Also One of the Orators.

Omaha, Jan. 8.—The tenth annual banquet of the Jacksonian club, of Nebraska, was held at the Millard hotel last night. The occasion was one of interest on account of the presence of the Hon. William J. Bryan, who responded to the toast "Democracy," and of Senator Benjamin R. Tillman, whose address was on "The Democratic Party; Its Duty and Destiny." Others also spoke.

100 BOYS MASSACRED.

Many of Them Cling to Christianity In Spite of Chinese Tortures.

London, Jan. 8.—A Sister of Charity, writing from the Maison De Jesu Infant, at Ning Po, Nov. 20, described the massacre at Nan King of 100 little boys. Some of them, she says, were roasted alive in the church. Others escaped to the orphanage, outside the city, but all were killed and the place burned.

"Despite threats of torture and the frequency of most painful death," the Sister declares, "apostasy was wonderfully rare."

A Pastor Elected.

Greensburg, Pa., Jan. 8.—The Rev. Stanley Krebs, of Reading, has been unanimously elected pastor of the First Reformed church here.

MAY ARREST PALMER.

WARRANT FOR MULTI-MILLIONAIRE

Frank Hall Appeared In a Justice's Court and Made a Charge Against Him. If Convicted, He May Be Fined $200 or Less.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—Potter Palmer, multi-millionaire, social leader and proprietor of the Palmer house, may be arrested today by Constable H. B. Goodrich, of Justice Everett's court, on a charge of keeping the saloon in his hotel open on Sunday. The warrant for the arrest of Mr. Palmer was issued by Justice Everett upon complaint of Frank Hall, who recently endeavored to close the Sunday theaters.

Mr. Hall appeared in the justice's court and swore that Potter Palmer, "on Jan. 6, 1901, did keep open a tipping house, or a place where liquor was sold or given away, upon the first day of the week, to wit; the aforesaid date commonly known as Sunday." In event of conviction upon this charge Mr. Palmer may be fined $200 or less.

A GIRL KILLED.

Tenth Pennsylvania Veteran Accidentally Shot Her Near Waynesburg, Pa.

Waynesburg, Pa., Jan. 8.—Vernon Kelley, constable of Franklin township, went to the home of Miss Anna Clark and her sister to lend them a revolver. Kelley attempted to show the young women how to use the weapon, and, thinking that all of the chambers were empty, began snapping the hammer. He pointed the revolver at Miss Anna and pulled the trigger. The hammer fell on a loaded cartridge, the ball entering the girl's breast, and she died almost instantly. Miss Clark was a respected young woman. She was employed in the Waynesburg Democrat office, and was a student in the Waynesburg business college.

Kelley served with Company K, Tenth regiment, in the Philippines, and was wounded in battle. A week or two ago he narrowly escaped being killed by a gas explosion, in which he was injured. He was almost crazed over the occurrence and at once walked to Waynesburg and had himself placed in jail.

FUNERAL OF P. D. ARMOUR.

It Is Expected to Be Held Tomorrow Afternoon—Rev. Dr. Gunsaulus to Preach.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—The funeral of the late Philip D. Armour, it was expected, will be held about 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, at the home, No. 2115 Prairie avenue. Those who desire to look upon the face of Mr. Armour will be given the opportunity prior to the funeral. The body will lie in state at the Armour home from 9 o'clock in the morning until noon.

While the holding of the funeral from the house will necessarily restrict the number in attendance, all of the Armour employes in Chicago, who number thousands, will be invited to view the body during the morning hours.

Rev. Frank W. Gunsaulus will preach the funeral sermon. The burial will be in the family lot at Graceland cemetery, and the pallbearers will be business associates of the deceased.

On the day of the funeral all of the plants and offices of the Armour company in Chicago and other cities will be closed for the entire day.

REMEMBERED M'GLYNN.

Anniversary Memorial Meeting In Cooper Union—Ducey Sent Regards, as Did Rev. Dr. Heber Newton.

New York, Jan. 8.—An anniversary memorial meeting was held last night in Cooper Union in honor of the Rev. Dr. Edward McGlynn, who died about a year ago. The meeting was held under the joint auspices of the Peoples Institute and the Dr. McGlynn Memorial association. Charles Sprague Smith presided. A letter was read from Father Ducey, regretting his inability to be present, and recalling the virtues and the devotion of Father McGlynn to his church. A telegram from Dr. R. Heber Newton was also read, asking the chairman of the occasion to "give love and honor for the great priest." Speeches were made by Sylvester L. Mulder, president of the Memorial association; Leroyson Perdy, the Rev. Father Bertell Henry George, Jr., Charles Frederick Adams and John S. Crosby.

MURDERED IN HER HOME.

A Zanesville Woman Beaten to Death. Negro Barber Under Arrest.

Zanesville, O., Jan. 8.—Mrs. Vina Grady, aged 30, was murdered at her home, and Adrian Madison, a colored barber who was seen coming from the house with his clothing covered with blood, is charged with the crime. A blunt instrument, which has not been found, was used. Madison is said to have been infatuated with the woman.

The negro denies that he killed the woman, but admits having been in the house. A year ago, it is said, he tried to commit suicide because the woman refused his attentions. Mrs. Grady's husband, who is in Columbus, left her, it is alleged, because of the notoriety she gained through Madison's infatuation.

President McKinley to Speak.

New York, Jan. 8.—General O. O. Howard announced at a meeting of the Peoples Choral union in Cooper Union that President McKinley was to be one of the speakers at the celebration of the birth of Abraham Lincoln, to be held at Carnegie hall the evening of Feb. 11. Governor Odell will preside. Colonel Henry Watterson, of Louisville, will deliver a lecture on Lincoln and Fred E. Brooks will read a poem on Lincoln.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

THE SHIPPING BILL WILL NOT "GO OVER."

Filibusters Disgusting Friends of the Army Bill—Letters Received by Senator Hanna—Practical and Patriotic Thoughts.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Congress has reconvened after the holiday recess, and the work of getting legislation through before March 4 is under full swing. The senate is up to its ears in the consideration of the army reorganization bill, and, despite the statements to the contrary, it is assured of an early vote. In the house the subject of reappointment is occupying attention as I write, and a hullabaloo is being raised by the representatives from certain sections of the south lest the disfranchised voters be eliminated from consideration in the fixing of the number of "male inhabitants over 21 years of age actually entitled to vote" as the basis of representation in future congresses. Enough has already transpired in this connection to show that the fears of the disfranchisers are thoroughly aroused.

The impression has gone abroad that the action of the senate in supplanting the shipping bill as unfinished business with the army reorganization bill places the former in the category of bills that are likely "to go over," and which means to fail for the lack of consideration. The impression is quite erroneous. The filibustering that goes on now is and can only be directed against the army bill, and it will be impossible for any one to assert that it is in order to defeat the shipping bill that the filibustering tactics are being resorted to in the senate. By the time the friends of the army reorganization bill have had a good full dose of filibustering they will be in no mood to encourage a further display of it in opposition to other important legislation.

Since Senator Hanna has blossomed out as an orator and a contributor to magazines he has been overwhelmed with letters of congratulation, of advice, and many contain stray bits of valuable information. It was my privilege to be permitted to go over one day's batch of letters he received bearing on the shipping subject, and some of them were very interesting. One man, for instance, from Oregon writes him as follows in part: "The press seems to have gone daft on the subject of 'tramp' steamships, as though no other class of vessels carried cargoes. You probably know, but seemingly many newspaper editors do not, that it is the regular line ships which build up trade, not tramps, the latter merely taking care of the overplusages at times. You are on the right track in legislating so as to establish direct lines of steamships to the ports of the world. They are the vessels that build up a nation's trade."

Another, a Democratic ex-member of congress from Georgia, writes him as follows, in part: "And it is upon this point [that providing for the admission of certain foreign built vessels owned by Americans] that I think the bill is so liberal. We in the south have believed that if foreign built vessels were placed under American registry we could as a nation do much to solve the 'shipping problem.' We have thought, too, that their admission would force our home builders to reduce their prices. But I saw very clearly in the Fifty-third congress that no such bill had even a ghost of a show of passing. I happen to know that nearly as many Democrats opposed it as Republicans, and I don't think this sentiment has changed. But your bill lets in, as I understand, 300,000 or 400,000 tons of foreign built ships on condition that their owners build new tonnage in our home yards as great as that admitted. This is a stroke of genius, and if Democrats reject this chance to get a partial free ship bill it seems to me they will never get another. You may make such use of this letter as you care to."

Strangely, in the same mail and

from the north—right in New England, too—comes a strong expression of hostility "to letting any foreign built ships under our flag, much less to any subsidy, so long as we have shipbuilding material and builders to put it together in ships the equal of the best the world over." But this writer further says: "What I hope most to see result from a subsidy bill is the construction of ships of the very highest speed, capable of outsteaming anything else afloat. These are the kind of ships we need and just as many of them as we can get. Don't be influenced by the clamor for 'tramps.' This is not a country where 'tramps' are welcome. We want something more respectable and more useful. One has but to go back to the Spanish-American war and remember the invaluable services of the swift steamships of our only line in the Atlantic trade to be able to realize the superior value of the very swiftest ships."

Senator Hanna's characteristic remark after reading over these suggestions was that they indicated that the object lessons of the Spanish-American war were by no means lost upon our intelligent citizens, and that patriotism is still far above partisanship with a vast majority of our people. ### FILIPINOS ORDERED DEPORTED.

Mabini and Others to Be Deported to Guam.

Manila, Jan. 8.—General MacArthur ordered the deportation of Generals Ricarte, Del Pilar, Hizon, Llanera and Santos to the island of Guam. Nine regimental and four subordinate officers, with eight civilians, including Trias, Teeson and Mabini, notorious assistants of the insurrectionists, have also been ordered to be deported. It is General MacArthur's intention to hold most of the active leaders of the rebels, who have been captured in Guam until the resumption of a condition of peace has been declared.

The first municipal election was held successfully at Bagnio, province of Benguet, Saturday. The Igorrotes took part in the election.

General Kitchener Reported Fighting With General Babington's Force.

London, Jan. 8.—Reporting to the war office, under date of Jan. 6, Lord Kitchener said:

Our casualties have not yet been received, but are reported slight. A Boer doctor admitted that 20 Boers were killed or wounded. Commandant Duprez was taken prisoner."

"It appears from reports of the wounded who have arrived at Hell-broon that a detachment 120 strong, belonging to Knox's command, came into contact with a superior force near Lindley. I regret to say that Lieutenant Laing, two other officers and 15 men were killed and two officers and 20 men wounded. No details have come from Knox of this action."

19 KNOWN DEAD.

Horrible Fire In an Orphan Asylum.

FEARED THAT OTHERS PERISHED.

Terrific Explosion Occurred, After the Fire Was Discovered by Two Men Passing the Institution in Rochester, N. Y. Persons Were at Work.

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 8.—Fire broke out in the hospital section of the Rochester orphan asylum about 1 o'clock this morning on Habbell park and the flames spread rapidly to other sections of the institution. It is known that 19 of the children perished and it is feared that many more victims may be reported later.

The fire was first discovered by two men passing the asylum. They hastily sent in an alarm and then turned their attention toward arousing the nurses and the children. A terrific explosion was then heard and in a moment the entire hospital section was in flames. On the arrival of the fire apparatus a general alarm was sent in, calling out the entire department. The smoke began to pour out of every window in the main building and the screams and frantic cries of the children could be heard. The work of rescue began with a will. Children and nurses were carried from the building, all in an unconscious condition, some dead. Ambulances from the city, St. Mary's, Homeopathic and Hahnemann hospitals were summoned and the victims were removed to the several institutions.

There were 109 children at the hospital and a corps of about 30 nurses and attendants. Two of the women attendants are among the dead.

The origin of the fire is not known at this time. The property loss will probably exceed $20,000.

APPEAL FOR FERRELL.

Formal Application For Clemency Made to the Ohio State Board of Pardons.

Columbus, O., Jan. 8.—Formal application for clemency for Rosslyn H. Ferrell, under sentence of death for the murder of Express Messenger Lane last August, was filed with the state board of pardons. The application sets up the grounds of youth of the prisoner, his age being 22; his previous good character; good conduct since arrest; his circumstances at the time of the crime, which is held to have unbalanced his mind; that he was convicted on his own plea of guilty; doubt that the jury was free from prejudice; the claim that his mind was sufficiently unbalanced to entitle him to clemency, although not insane.

The board of pardons will meet in special session to hear the appeal on Thursday.

A SORRY SIGHT

It is, to see a strong man shaken like a reed by a paroxysm of coughing, which leaves him gasping for breath. People have suffered with bronchial affections for years, with obstinate, stubborn cough, and growing weakness. They have tried doctors and medicines in vain. At last they have been induced to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, with the general result experienced by all who put this wonderful medicine to the test—help at once, and a speedy cure.

For coughs, bronchial affections, weak lungs, spitting of blood, and other diseases of the organs of respiration, "Golden Medical Discovery" is practically a specific. It always helps; it almost always cures.

"I had been troubled with bronchitis and catarrh of the head for eight years; had severe cough, and at times great difficulty in breathing," writes J. W. Howerton, Esq., of Big Fall, Hancock Co., Tenn. "A portion of the time my appetite was poor and part of the time I was unable to do anything. I had been

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for paper covered, or 31 stamps for cloth binding, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

SALT WATER BLOOD.

An Operation That Is the Saving of Many Human Lives.

Transfusion of blood is a procedure that must have been employed by physicians in very early times. Ovid tells of Medea bringing back youth to the aged by the injection into their veins of the blood of young men, and doubtless the same means was employed by physicians for less fantastic objects. The injection of the blood of one person into the veins of another was until recently done to save life after severe hemorrhage and in various forms of blood poisoning. Sometimes a direct communication was made between the veins of the donor and of the recipient by means of a tube. At other times the healthy subject was bled into a bowl and the blood was beaten to remove the fibrin before it was passed into the blood vessels of the patient.

The procedure is a dangerous one, however, although many lives have been saved by it, and it has now been almost entirely abandoned, a much safer plan being used.

It is found that the blood when defibrinated is no longer a living fluid, and the corpuscles it contains serve no useful purpose when injected, but rather act as foreign matter which must be got rid of. Accordingly physicians now use distilled water in which a definite proportion of common salt and other chlorides have been dissolved. This solution is warmed and is injected slowly into a vein at the bend of the elbow, about a quart being used.

Often it is not even necessary to pour the fluid into a vein, but simply to inject it through one or more hollow needles into the tissues beneath the skin of the abdomen or the thigh.

This is done not only to supply an equivalent for fluid lost in hemorrhage or cholera, but also in certain diseases in which blood poisoning exists. In this latter case a large amount of fluid is injected slowly, and being taken up by the blood is almost immediately excreted through the kidneys, carrying with it much of the poison which the blood was unable to rid itself of unaided.

This operation has been felicitously called "blood washing," for this is what it really is, and to the process humanity owes the saving of many lives. —Youth's Companion.

Imprisoned by an Ostrich.

A guardsman in the reserve of officers who is better known for his swag-gar than his brains had an unfortunate experience in South Africa.

He was stationed about 100 miles from Cape Town at a remount depot. One morning a farmer stopped him as he was taking a constitutional and warned him against crossing an inclosure containing a cock ostrich which had become bad tempered. The guardsman said that no ostrich ever hatched would turn him out of his way and went on unmoved.

As he had not returned home four hours afterward his brother officers were alarmed and sent out search parties. What was their surprise to discover him lying on his back unhurt, with a cock ostrich sitting on his chest.

The bird had knocked him down each time he had tried to rise, but could not hurt him while he lay flat on his back. Yet leave his enemy he declined to do and therefore sat quietly upon him until driven off by the rescue party. —London Express.

HER SUMMONS CAME.

A SIGN IN WHICH MRS. GALLUP READ HER DEATH WARRANT.

She Dropped the Dishcloth and After That Fatal Warning Spent the Balance of the Evening in Telling Mr. Gallup How She Thought He Ought to Run the Funeral.

As Mr. Gallup lighted his tin lantern after supper and started out to buy half a pound of Rio coffee for breakfast and call at the postoffice Mrs. Gallup was in excellent spirits and had most of the dishes ready for washing. He was absent 32 minutes, and when he arrived home he found her huddled up in the big rocking chair, with a pillow behind her head and the camphor bottle in her hand. She took three long sniffs at the bottle and gave three long drawn sighs as he entered, but it was labor thrown away. Mr. Gallup blew out his lantern and hung it up behind the cellar door, and, having deposited the coffee on a shelf in the pantry, he sat down and took off his shoes and then, taking a circular from his pocket and putting on his glasses with great deliberation, began to read. It was a circular regarding a new discovery in the cure of consumption, and he had not yet finished with the first testimonial when Mrs. Gallup sobbed four times in succession and faintly asked: "Samuel Gallup, do you know that your dyin' wife is present in the room?" He made no reply. That testimonial from one who had been cured after his coffin had been purchased made him hold his breath as he read. "Yes; she is present," dolefully continued Mrs. Gallup after several sniffs huddled up in the big rocking chair at the bottle, "and she wants to hev a few last words with you. When you started over town, I was singin' 'Barbara Allen' and thinkin' my days might be long in this land. Not five minits later the summons come. I had just started to wash the dishes, and I had that cracked blue platter in my hand, but I hadn't gin it over two wipes when the dishcloth fell to the floor with a great spat. You are hearin' what I say, ain't you, Samuel?"

Mr. Gallup wasn't. He was devouring the second testimonial, which gave the case of a woman who had been given up by over 50 doctors, and yet two bottles furnished her with a new pair of lungs.

"When that dishcloth fell, I knew that my time had come. That's the way Mrs. Grover and Mrs. Taylor went. Their dishcloths fell, and in 24 hours they was in heaven. I shall be up there by tomorrer night. Samuel, while you'll be free to stay out all night to hear the political news, I'd hev died before you come back home, only I wanted to talk with you a leetle about the funeral. Let's see. If I die tonight, you'll hold the funeral day after tomorrer, won't you, at 2 o'clock in

Mr. Gallup was listening to a noise outside. He heard something to remind him of a hen trying to crow, and he wondered if it could be that so long after dark.

"If you want it a day sooner, you can hev it," continued Mrs. Gallup after sobs and gasps and sniffs at the bottle, "but you must look out or the nayburs will talk. Better hev it day after tomorrer, and I hope, for your sake, it won't be a rainy day. I've sometimes thought I'd like a big funeral when I went, with over 40 wagons in the purcession and the church bell a-tollin' and the dogs a-howlin', but I've given that up. No, Samuel, you needn't make any spread over me. I'm one of the kind that kin go to heaven without any hurrah and fireworks. If there is ten wagons in the purcession, I shall be satisfied. Don't you think ten ought to be 'nuff for a person like me?"

It wasn't a direct question, but had it been Mr. Gallup would not have answered. He was devouring the third testimonial and making up his mind to try a bottle on the sly.

"Ten wagons in the purcession, Samuel, and the bells needn't toll nor nuthin' else happen. If anybody is diggin' taters or makin' soft soap or dyein' carpet rags, they needn't stop on my account. If 25 people come to the house, that will be 'nuff. We've got 'leven chairs altogether, countin' them with broken backs, and Mrs. Walters will lend you the rest. You'll hev our own preacher, of course, but he needn't go on for an hour or two and tell how good I was and how much you'll miss me. If he says that my toil is o'er, and that you won't never find a more savin' wife, that'll be about 'nuff. Shall you do any cryin' at the funeral, Samuel?"

No answer.

"I'd do a leetle bit if I was you—jest a leetle. If you don't, folks will talk about it same as they did about Jim Dewitt. He never cried at all, and to this day folks say he didn't use Hanner right. I don't ask you to break down and sob and git up an excitement, but you kin gasp a few times and wipe your eyes and blow your nose. I'm sorry you'll hev to take that long ride to the graveyard, as you could be playin' checkers or sunthin', but I don't see how you are to git out of it. However, you won't never hev to go up there ag'in. When you git ready to buy me a gravestun, you kin send it up by a man. I s'pose you'll buy a stun of some sort, won't you?"

Mr. Gallup didn't hear. In the fourth testimonial a man declared that he had been saved after one whole lung and three-quarters of the other were gone, and it was a sketch to thrill the reader clear down to his toes.

"Of course I don't keer about no gravestun for myself," said Mrs. Gallup as she tried to wipe away her tears with the glass stopper of the bottle, "but if you don't put one up the nayburs will call you stingy. Get a cheap one, however. If you kin git one for $10 and trade a lot of carpet rags in, I'd do it. I used to think I wanted a whole lot of readin' on my gravestun, but I've changed my mind. Jest put on that Susan Gallup expired in the forty-ninth year of her age of general disability and that she has found rest where asthma, boils, backaches and rheumatiz cease from troublin'. You needn't say a word about makin' 40 yards of rag carpet and a bar'l of soft soap last year while enjoyin' sore eyes and a boil on my arm or that I allus kept catnip, smartweed and peppermint herbs in the house and was a nurse to all the nayburs. No, Samuel, you needn't—say a word—about them things. Make it—a cheap—gravestun, and you needn't—never go up there—and—and!"

And when Mr. Gallup had finished

the testimonials and fully determined to buy at least three bottles and hide them in the wood shed he rose up, yawned and stretched and looked around to find Mrs. Gallup asleep and the camphor wasted on the floor.

THERE WASN'T ANY ROW.

It Was Simply a Case of Spontaneous Combustion.

He was a very young man, almost too young to be out on the street at that time of the night, 8:30 p. m., and his general appearance indicated that he had been picked up by a cyclone somewhere during his meanderings. He was not utterly demoralized, but there was something in his manner that would lead the close observer to the conclusion that all had not been well with him.

"Gee!" he exclaimed as he spun around the corner and went bump into a policeman.

"Hello," ejaculated that worthy, instinctively grabbing at him; "what's the row?"

"There wasn't any," responded the youth.

"What are you running like that for?" persisted the policeman.

"I've just been up against a case of spontaneous combustion."

"You look too green to burn," chuckled the bluecoat.

"It's on me, just the same. My girl lives around the corner, and I went to see her. I thought it was all!"

"Where does the combustion come in?" interrupted the officer.

"Come out, you mean," corrected the youth.

"Come off!" exclaimed the officer. "Tell me what the row is before I chase you."

"Well, that's what I'm trying to do," pleaded the boy. "The girl's old man and I don't harmonize a little bit, and when he met me at the door he fired me so suddenly that I had vertigo. If you don't call that spontaneous combustion, what the dickens do you call it?"

"Oh, excuse me," apologized the policeman, "you run along home and get into your trundle bed!" and the bluecoat gently wafted the remnant on its way. —Detroit Free Press.

Woeful Ignorance.

Farmer—See here, you! You remember putting two lightning rods on my barn last spring, don't you? Well, that barn was struck six weeks after and burned down.

Peddler—Struck by lightning?

"It was."

"In the daytime?"

"No; at night."

"Must 'a' been a dark night, wasn't it?"

"Yes; dark as pitch."

"Lanterns burnin'?"

"What lanterns?"

"Didn't you run lanterns up 'em on dark nights?"

"Never heard of anything like that."

"Well, if you don't know enough to keep your lightning rods showin' you needn't blame me. G-lang!" —New York Weekly.

Forewarned.

A Yorkshire vicar tells how he once received the following note from one of his parishioners: "This is to give notice that I and Miss Jemima Brearley are coming to your church on Saturday afternoon next to undergo the operation of matrimony at your hands. Please be prompt, as the cab is hired by the hour. Forewarned is forearmed." —London Tit-Bits.
